RECITAL

Vocal and Instrumental Music at Newtonville

A delightful evening was spent by those who attended the Piano Recital given by Mrs. Fred E. Perkins of Harvard street, Newtonville, last Friday evening.

The house was beautifully decorated with the flowers of the season and ferns.

Misses Elizabeth Smith and Mary Pillion acted as ushers.

Each member of the class did excellent work and much artistic ability was displayed.

The songs by Misses Agnes Quin (soprano) and Rose E. Hennessy (alto) were finely rendered. The selections accompanied by bells were greatly enjoyed, also the little songs and piano selection by the little 6-year-old Marjorie Peirce Perkins.

The following pupils took part:—Edith Geran, Rose E. Hennessy, Joseph Heallon, Lillian Keating, John O'Neil, Mary Pillion, Marjorie Perkins, Agnes and Frank Quin, Lillian and Mildred Shaughnessy and Elizabeth Smith.

The program closed with a pleasing concert by Mrs. Perkins assisted by Mr. Perkins (violin) and by Mrs. Perkins' cousin, Miss Gertrude Peirce Vinal of Dorchester (piano).

BENTON—BURR

Miss Dorothy Burr, daughter of Mr. Everett D. Burr and the late Dr. Burr of Boston and Newton Centre, was married on Tuesday evening to Corning Benton, Harvard, '07, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Benton of Newton Centre, where the wedding took place at the First Baptist Church. The pastor, Rev. Maurice A. Levy, was the officiating clergyman. The bride's younger sister, Miss Frances Burr, was maid of honor, and Austin C. Benton, Harvard, '07, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Other attendants were these bridesmaids: Miss Dorothy Lucas of Newtonville, Miss Fredrika Holden and Miss Eleanor Wildger, both of Brookline, and Miss Marion Gladwin of Westfield. The ushers were Walter Forbush, '07, Samuel Newhall, '07, and Carleton M. Burr, '14, all of Harvard, and Emory Johnson, Yale, '07, of Spuyten Duyvil, N. Y. The church ceremony was followed by a small reception at the home of the bride's mother, given to relatives and the more intimate friends of the bride couple. Mr. and Mrs. Benton will go to England on their wedding journey, and on their return will be at home after October 1 at Exeter, N. H., where Mr. Benton is one of the staff of teachers at Phillips Exeter Academy.

REVERE BEACH

All previous electrical displays are eclipsed by the brilliant constellation of incandescent lamps which glitter nightly along the Revere Beach Boulevard. Revere Beach has had some few lights in past seasons, but the number this year has been brought up to no less than half a million lamps throwing into the heavens a great yellow glow, the cyanure of the landscape from all points of the compass. From far out to sea, from the Nahant or Winthrop peninsulas, or from inland, the beach stands out a great achievement in permanent pyrotechnics. Hundreds of great arches span the boulevard, each one containing forty-eight large lights. Towers and facades of the amusement palaces are outlined in a wealth of lights artistically arranged. The owners of these places are vying with each other in the extravagance of electrical juice, yet it is hard to distinguish any supremacy among them. Many people who have never before visited Revere Beach are going miles to see the electrical show alone.

PROMOTED

Benjamin F. Tripp Appointed a Lieutenant in Fire Department

Benjamin B. Tripp of Engine Company No. 1, at Newton, was appointed by Chief W. B. Randlett, Monday, as a Lieutenant of the Fire Department and was also put in charge of the house.

Lieutenant Tripp, through his long service with the department, is thoroughly capable of filling his new position, and he is popular both in and out of the department. He first joined the department as a call member on October 15, 1888, and on April 1, 1895 became a regular member and engineer. After two years' service in this capacity he was appointed driver of Hose No. 1, which position he has since held.

MCLAUGHLIN—CROWLEY

The wedding of Miss Helen Cecelia Crowley, the daughter of Mrs. Mary A. Crowley of Newton Upper Falls and Mr. Robert B. McLaughlin, an instructor in the Trade School of New Britain, Conn., took place Wednesday morning, June 26, the ceremony being performed at nine o'clock at the Church of Mary Immaculate of Lourdes, by the pastor, Rev. T. J. Danahy.

The bride was gowned in white satin, charming with Duchess lace and pearl trimming, caught with bridal roses and maiden hair fern, and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her sister, Miss Margaret M. Crowley, was the maid of honor, and wore pink silk marquisette over pink satin, with hat to match and carried a bouquet of sweet peas. Mr. John W. Barrett of Newton Upper Falls was the best man.

A reception was held that evening at the home of the bride on Pennsylvania avenue, Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin being assisted in receiving by Mrs. Mary A. Crowley and Mrs. Alice McLaughlin. The house was beautifully decorated with roses and peonies and the happy couple received under a floral arch and bell. The ushers were Miss Margaret O'Brien of Allston, Miss Zoe Miller of Roxbury and Messrs. Daniel and Florence Crowley of Newton Upper Falls, brothers of the bride.

Guests were present from the Newtons, Greater Boston, Fall River, Gloucester and New Britain and many beautiful costumes were worn. The bride and groom received many beautiful gifts, including a chest of solid silver from co-workers of the bride in the Smith-Patterson Co., and a crystal regulator from that firm. Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin will reside at 115 Fairview street, New Britain, Conn., where they will be at home after Sept. first.

MR. ANDERSON BURIED

A large company of relatives and close friends of Mr. James Anderson, a prominent and well-known resident of Newtonville, gathered at a funeral service held for him on Friday afternoon at the family residence on Austin street. Mr. Anderson died on his 76th birthday, after a lingering illness extending over several months. He was associated in business with the firm of Bigelow, Kennard Co. of Boston for 43 years, all of which time he resided in Newtonville, where, by his kind and genial ways, he had won the love and esteem of a large circle of friends. Impressive services were conducted at 2 o'clock by Rev. James Watson Campbell of the Methodist Church, of which Mr. Anderson was an active member for many years. Appropriate selections were rendered by a quartet, and the floral tributes were numerous and very beautiful. The burial was in the family lot in the Newton Cemetery, where a delegation from the Newton Lodge, I. O. O. F., of which he was a member, also conducted services in the chapel.

CONSOLIDATED

Lexington Street Railway Absorbed by Middlesex & Boston

The Lexington & Boston Street Railway Company was consolidated with the Middlesex & Boston Street Railway Company Monday, and from now on both railways will be known as the Middlesex & Boston Street Railway Company. The consolidation was made possible through a recent act of the Railroad Commissioners which involved the issue of extra bonds and securities. Both roads have been governed by the same officials for some years.

Mr. George M. Cox, who has been acting general manager of both roads during the past year, has been made general manager. Besides having both roads under his control he is also manager of the Norumbega Park and Lexington Park entertainment places conducted by the road.

ROBINSON—ELLIOTT

Miss Elizabeth Peirce Elliott of Saxon road, Newton Highlands, and Mr. Elliot Harlow Robinson of Windsor road, Waban, were married on Saturday, June 29th, and after a reception at the Brae Burn Country Club, West Newton, left for a fortnight's trip upon the return from which they will reside at 50 Lakewood road, Newton Highlands, where their new house has recently been completed. The marriage ceremony took place at a half past eight in the evening at St. Paul's Church, Walnut street, Newton Highlands, the Rev. Albert Neilson Slayton officiating.

The bride made a charming picture, being gowned in white satin, hand embroidered and trimmed with lace and pearls and having a full court train, and wearing a veil of white tulle and orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her brother, Mr. Albert W. Elliott, gave her away, and she was attended by her cousin, Miss Madeline Wilbur Elliott of Bryn Mawr, Pa., as maid of honor, who wore pale pink silk, Japanese hand embroidered, trimmed with pink chiffon, a mob lace cap and carried pink Killarney roses, and by Miss Virginia Howe as flower girl, who wore white silk and carried a basket of roses and Master Spaulding Howe as page.

Mr. Gardner S. Gould of Newton Upper Falls was best man and the ushers, Messrs. Frederick J. Elliott and Albert H. Meilen of Newton Highlands, and Mr. Allan R. Thatcher of Middleboro, and Mr. Ralph L. Harlow of New York. A cousin of the groom, Mr. Harry A. Wood of Middleboro, acted as organist. St. Paul's was beautifully and harmoniously decorated in pink and white, the pews having bunches of white lilies' breath and ribbon, the couple were married under an arch of pink Killarney roses, and the chancel was a veritable bower of palms, flowers and pillars trimmed with pink hydrangeas and surmounted with many candles.

The full vested choir of 30 voices with violin and cello assisted at the service, rendering as one number a marriage hymn-anthem, composed by Mr. Robinson who has been choir-master at the church for some years. Many of the guests came from Philadelphia and Baltimore, where the bride formerly lived, and Newton and Brookline society was well represented.

The reception at Brae Burn was a merry affair, attended by about 200 guests, the receiving party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Elliot H. Robinson, Mrs. Adolphus W. Elliott, mother of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. John Haywood Robinson, parents of the groom. A stringed orchestra played during the evening and a spread in the main dining room followed.

The couple are well known in Newton, where the groom is connected with many varied interests.

TEACHERS CHANGE

School Committee Makes Many Appointments and Transfers

At the last meeting of school committee for the regular season Wednesday evening, June 26, a hearing was given on the protest of Newtonville citizens against the reopening of the old Adams School next fall for kindergarten purposes. LITTLEHALE—WILDE

Miss Mary Luella Wilde, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Wilde of Newton Upper Falls, became the bride of Mr. Charles E. Littlehale of Needham last Saturday evening, the ceremony being performed at seven o'clock by Rev. A. N. Slayton of St. Paul's Church, Newton Highlands, the happy couple standing under an arch of daisies and green leaves.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her cousin, Mr. William Dawson of Pawtucket, R. I., was gowned in crepe de chine, trimmed with shadow lace and rose buds. Her tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor, Miss Viola Estelle of Newton Upper Falls, was dressed in pink messaline and shadow lace and carried pink rose buds.

Mr. Frank W. Littlehale was the best man and the ushers were Miss Margaret Miller of Newton Upper Falls and Miss Edna Burns of Lowell.

A reception followed the ceremony until ten o'clock, Mr. and Mrs. Littlehale being assisted in receiving their friends by the best man and the maid of honor. Guests were present from Lowell, Lynn, Mansfield, Bristol, R. I., Pawtucket, R. I., Central Falls, R. I., Brockton, Mass., and Portland, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. Littlehale will reside at 27 Oak street, Newton Upper Falls, where they will be at home after October first.

SUPERVISED PLAY

Playground Commission Make Important Announcement for the Summer Season

The Playground Commission of Newton announces the opening of the first season of Supervised Playgrounds under Municipal Direction on Monday, July 8th. A staff of directors and assistants has been appointed, and the Superintendent who is to be the executive officer for the Commission is about to open headquarters at City Hall. The Commission have succeeded in getting together a well qualified corps of instructors, and the outlook is bright for a successful season.

Parents and guardians should carefully note the playgrounds which are to be supervised, and should familiarize themselves with the hours when the grounds are to be under supervision. All the children can be accommodated and it is hoped that the rare and supervision given will merit the full approval of the parents.

Besides organized plays and games like baseball, football, etc., it is proposed to develop such activities as drills, imaginative plays, folk-dancing, quiet games and occupation play. Not only will the children be taught to play the active games which are suitable for different ages and which develop skill, strength, endurance, courage, fair play and loyalty and which will stimulate co-operation and self-management, but they will be shown how to enjoy all kinds of restful and wholesome recreation. It is the intention to provide for boys and girls of grammar and high school ages, also to furnish instructive play and activities for the children of kindergarten age, and to provide places for even younger children for whom sweet grass and clean sand are a necessity.

During July and August the following playgrounds are to be under daily supervision:

Stearns School, Nonantum

Mr. R. C. Barry, master in charge of boys. Miss Rachel Nason, in charge of girls and children. Miss Martha T. Rice, assistant.

West Newton Common.

Mr. P. W. Waldron, master in charge of boys and men. Miss Flora M. Hale, in charge of girls and children. Mr. Waldron will also give some of his time to the Cabot Park Playground, where Mr. Stuart will act as assistant master.

Cabot Park

Miss Hale will devote some afternoons to the Cabot Park grounds, since it will not be expedient to have the girls and little children on the West Newton playground while big baseball games are in progress. Mr. Vincent Stuart, assistant master in charge of boys.

Newton Upper Falls

Mr. G. M. MacVicar, master in charge of boys and men. Miss Margaret Harding in charge of girls and little children.

Waban

If the number of children will warrant it, the instructors of the Newton Upper Falls Playground will give of their time on alternating days, two days a week, to the Waban grounds.

Newton Lower Falls

Mr. Robert J. Sisk, master in charge of boys and men. Miss Lucy Fiske Cooley, in charge of girls and little children.

A SENSIBLE FOURTH

Newton Has An Ideal Celebration of Independence Day

Independence Day was celebrated yesterday in a safe and sane manner as one could wish. The noise was far less than usual and the police report but three arrests all day long, one for violation of the city ordinances and two for drunkenness.

The fire department was kept fairly busy, with false alarms rung in early in the morning from box 172 and box 623.

The alarm from box 341 about 9 A. M. was for a fire at 187 Derby street, West Newton, in house occupied by Michael McHugh, caused by sparks from chimney. The alarm about 9 P. M. from box 29 was in the roof of house occupied by R. McNeil on Linwood avenue, caused by fire crackers.

There were village celebrations at Newton Centre, Nonantum, West Newton, Upper Falls and Waban.

West Newton

A large crowd was present at the celebration held on the West Newton Common. The speaker of the day was Mayor Hatfield, and the new flag pole, presented to the city by popular subscription, was dedicated. Capt. John Ryan, a member of Charles Ward Post, G. A. R., raised the new flag presented by the Daughters of Veterans.

The ball game between the Shamrocks of West Newton and the Knights of King Arthur was easily captured by the former team. During the afternoon athletic games were played, which were divided into three classes. The summary:

100 Yard Dash, Class C—Won by A. D. McRae; A. Roberts, second.

High Jump, Class C—Won by A. Tuelon.

Three Legged Race—Won by A. Oldfield and M. Callaghan; Milton Smith and Gordon Van Kirk, second.

Half Mile Relay, Class A—Won by White, Ford, Oldfield, Noonan.

Girls' Potato Race—Won by Mary Smith; Irene Forte, second.

High Jump—Won by A. Roberts; R. Palmer, second; R. Burrison, third.

75 Yard Dash, Class C—Won by A. Tuelon; W. E. Tolman, second.

Half Mile Relay, Class B—Won by Scott, O'Callaghan, Van Kirk, Oldfield.

Obstacle Race—Won by R. Cavallero; S. Philpott, second.

High Jump, Class B—Won by G. Van Kirk; C. T. Smith, second; W. White, third.

Egg Race for Girls—Won by Miss Lalond; Miss Kiley, second.

40 Yard Dash, Class A—Won by T. Healey; J. Mooney, second.

One Mile Relay—Won by Tuelon, Forte, Miner, Meekins.

50 Yard Dash, Class B—Won by G. Van Kirk; T. Callahan, second.

Sack Race, Class A—Won by R. Cavallero; J. Oldfield, second.

During the afternoon the band concert was enjoyed and several entertainments were conducted for the benefit of the women and children.

One Mile Relay, Class C—Won by MacRae, O'Callaghan, MacRae, Dolan.

Newton Centre

At Newton Centre, beginning at 8.30 A. M. there were games under the direction of Robert Barry, for all ages, boys and girls. Herbert J. Kellaway was chairman of the committee in charge; the judges were William H. Rice, Summer Clement and John Barry; the announcer Frederick C. Melcher and the starter Fred Rising.

In the afternoon two teams composed of the married and single men crossed bats for their annual game, but contrary to custom the single men won, with a score of 22 to 2.

For the senior class, boys, Roger Ellis won the running broad jump with 16 feet, 7 inches, Christopher Vachon and Carl Wood, second and third, 100 yard dash, Payson Barbour, Edward Doherty, and Robert Weiss, time 11 4-5 seconds.

Junior class 35 yard dash: Norman Edwards, Robert Hawkes, Neal McDonald. Human wheelbarrow race: Robert Hawkes and Norman Edwards won over Joseph Doherty and Alphonse Rochette. In the sack race the results were, Robert Hawkes, Alphonse Rochette, and Joseph Doherty, first, second and third.

Intermediate Class, 75 yard dash: Merrill Nutting, Daniel McGrath, and Robert Johnson captured the honors. In the three legged race a team consisting of Dewey Bennett and Daniel McGrath won with a slight lead over the second team, Alfred McCoy and Robert Johnson.

The 440 yard relay race was won by a team consisting of Frank Linehan, Hugh Bennett, Merrill Nutting and Daniel McGrath, with team two second, Alfred McCoy, Robert Johnson, Norman Edwards, and Charles Masters.

The girls' egg and spoon race was won by Katherine McCoy, with Virginia Shumonds second and Grace Kneeland third. Bean bag: Frances Coullough, Mildred Levesque and Mary McCoy. Hoop Rolling: Veronica Clark, Doris Boyd, and Grace Kneeland. Girls' relay flag race, first, Ruth Polly, Mildred Smith, Nellie Sullivan, May Kneeland. Cups were awarded for first place and medals for second and third.

In the evening there was a band concert and display of Italian fireworks on Crystal Lake.

Waban

Waban started things going at seven o'clock with an antique and horrible parade, of which Robert E. Hall was marshal. Prizes were awarded for the most grotesque costume, the most elaborate, and the most original.

A group of five won the first prize, C. A. St. Lawrence, Chester Banton, David Ambrose, F. C. Gallagher and Dana M. Dutch. The second was won by Cornelius Mehlman, and Daniel Kerr who represented hoboes. R. E. Hall got the third prize as the most original.

Prizes were awarded according to points rather than events, being classified special over 16 years old, class A, 14 to 16, class B, 12 to 14, and class C, 10 to 12. Prizes were awarded as follows: class A, Dana Putnam, James Wiley, Hall Walker; class B, Frank Barr, Ainsworth Rane, Stuart Gurly; class C, Donald Hall, Dudley Rhodes, Holland Buterworth. Specials, Daniel Kerr, James Horgan.

Girls' special class, Agnes Breck and Henrietta Barry; class B, Katherine Hovey, Dorothy Stetson, Margaret Lane; class C, Miss Wing, Emma Brown, Ethel Willing.

In the afternoon a team from the east side defeated the team from the west side by a score of 17 to 16.

After the baseball game George M. Angier awarded the prizes to the successful contestants at the ball park.

In the evening there were fireworks and a band concert, lasting until 10 o'clock.

Upper Falls

Newton Upper Falls turned out at 4 A. M. to witness the first parade in 16 years, which consisted of the Boys' Brigade of the First Methodist Church, a company of Armenians in kahki, and floats grotesque and beautiful. The members of Hose Company No. 7 of Upper Falls took the first prize with their float representing the Bingville Fire Department. T. E. Lees was marshal and Sampson Behiker was in command of the soldiers. The judges were Alderman T. J. Sullivan and M. V. Croker. A committee of 25, of which Florence Crowley was chairman, had the affair in hand.

The best ladies' prize went to Miss Emma Burns of Lowell, and a prize for the worst appearing woman to T. E. Lees, marshal of the parade, who was dressed in a woman's costume. The best men's individual prize was won by John Temperley of Newton Centre, and his dog; and for the worst exhibition, Frank Sheridan took the prize.

During the course of the morning a baseball game was played between St. James K. of C. and Upper Falls, resulting in a score of eight to six in favor of the Falls.

In the sports William T. Halliday took first in the 100 yard dash with John Dollache second. For the boys, same distance William Keller.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

At their new home on Bennington street, Newton last Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Tracy celebrated the 15th anniversary of their marriage, which also took the form of a house warming. Mr. and Mrs. Tracy removed to this city in May, coming here from Melrose, where they had resided for many years. Since their removal to this city they have speedily made hosts of friends, who welcomed them that evening, as well as a large gathering from Melrose, East Boston and Chelsea. The couple were married in Chelsea by Rev. Charles E. Jefferson, pastor of the Central Congregational Church, but who is now pastor of the Broadway Tabernacle Church, New York City. During the evening an excellent musical program was rendered by Mrs. Florence Gorman, while her husband presided at the piano. Miss Mary Edwards, a well-known reader, contributed several readings during the evening to the amusement of the gathering. Mr. and Mrs. Tracy held an impromptu reception during the evening, assisted by their two daughters, Doris and Natalie. After the reception refreshments were served

CLAFIN GUARD NOTES

After eighteen years' service in the M. V. M., Captain George F. Gullford was on June 11 retired from active service and placed upon the retired list with the rank of Major.

The command of the company until the election of a permanent company commander has fallen upon 1st Lieut. George H. Daniels. Lieut. Daniels has served the state for ten and one-half years in the position of Private, Corporal, Sergeant, 2d Lieut. and 1st Lieut., having held the latter position for seven and one-half years, he is a native of Newton, a graduate of the Newton High School, and the son of one of the city's oldest residents, he has an excellent record of military efficiency, having completed a three years' course in the Service Schools, M. V. M., second in a class of sixty, and the company feels confident that its interests will be well taken care of in the meantime.

After eight years' service with this company, 1st Sergt. David H. Kerr has voluntarily left us. Always a conscientious and hard worker, Sergt. Kerr will be missed in the work of the company. He still however retains his position as armorer of the building.

Lieut. Daniels, the company commander, has instituted numerous changes in the heretofore routine of the company to great advantage.

Drills from now on will start at 8.25 instead of 8.10 and the non-commissioned officers school will be held each Monday evening at 7.30 P. M.

Sergt. Robert McCabe is acting first sergeant and seems to have the make up of a good "top." The company is fortunate to have a man of his ability to step in and fill the place so well taken care of by Sergts. Randall and Kerr.

Several former members of the company have been calling at the building lately and signified their intention of re-enlisting. As there are a few vacancies, these men will be very welcome.

Applicants for enlistment or re-enlistment should apply to the company commander at the Armory any Monday or Friday evening.

Any men wishing to enlist to prepare themselves to serve Uncle Sam if necessity should arise, should do so without delay, as by the way the recruits are coming there will not be many vacancies soon.

It was thought that the announced maneuvers for this summer would have to be replaced by state camps due to the vetoing of the appropriation bill by President Taft, but as Congress has taken care of the matter it looks as if we would take part in the "Capture of New York."

Privates Arthur L. Keylor and Harold R. Weir have been appointed corporals.

Private John P. Tierney having successfully passed the examination for corporal has been warranted and was assigned to duty on May 30th.

Corporal John D. Earle having successfully passed the examination for sergeant has been warranted and was assigned to duty on May 30th.

Corporals Tierney and Keylor have been designated as company clerks by the company commander.

Private Edmunds is fast recovering from his recent accident and says he will be ready for duty by camp time.

MRS. H. LENAERTS

20TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Beardsley, both well-known residents of this city, observed the 20th anniversary of their wedding Friday evening by entertaining a large party of friends at their home on Crescent street, Auburndale.

The affair was attended by guests from the Newtons, Brookline, Waltham, Boston and Lynn, a number of whom were present at the wedding. A reception was held in a tent on the lawn. The couple receiving the guests under an arch of daisies. Assisting them in receiving the guests were Mrs. Susan Fogwill, the mother of Mrs. Beardsley, and Mrs. Margaret D. Beardsley, the mother of Mr. Beardsley. The ushers were Mr. W. U. Fogwill, Mr. A. E. Fogwill, and Mr. W. A. Swett, all of West Newton. The home was prettily decorated with palms, roses and spring flowers while the lawn was profusely illuminated with Japanese lanterns and red lights.

A number of costly gifts were presented to the happy couple. The Fogwill family and several neighbors presented them with a dinner-set and a punch-bowl and glasses were received from the Boynton Lodge of Odd Ladies of which Mrs. Beardsley is a member. The West Newton W. C. T. U. presented them with a jardenerre and pedestal. During the evening several selections were rendered by a trio from the Mrs. M. E. Beardsley Concert Company, of which Mrs. Beardsley is the manager.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Beardsley are well known in Newton. Mrs. Beardsley is a contralto soloist of note while her husband has gained much prominence in the contracting business. They were married June 28, 1892, in the West Newton Congregational Church, by the late Rev. H. D. Patrick. They have two children, Albert H., and Mildred F. Beardsley.

SERVICES EXTENDED TO NEWTON

The majority of homes in Newton contain many very beautiful and valuable Oriental rugs, which are in many instances the choicest and most admired objects of one's possessions.

We have been doing business on the north side of Boston for a number of years, but have recently begun to introduce our services into this new territory, which looks very promising. Our motto is "A satisfied subscriber is the best possible advertisement."

Our Oriental Rug repairing is all done by skilled native workmen under our immediate supervision or in other words under American management.

We respectfully solicit your patronage. We depend on volume and not on exorbitant prices.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE—Never before in the history of B. F. Keith's Theatre in Boston has this beautiful playhouse housed such a summer attraction as "The Meistersingers Camping Out." This magnificent scenic production, in which the Harvard, Schubert and Weber Male Quartettes of Boston appear, is without question the most superb spectacular ever staged in vaudeville. The beautiful scene showing a camp on the shores of the Rangley Lakes, the realistic lighting effects, and the splendid voices of "The Meistersingers," all combine to make this the greatest summer attraction ever seen in Boston. For the second week of "The Meistersingers" limited engagement, a complete change of program will be made, with new soloists. Leo Carrillo, the celebrated mimic and impersonator of Chinese and Italian characters, will appear with his new monologue introducing some of his inimitable dialect stories; and other big features will be the Aslington Girls, an original novelty; "In Old New York," a big musical comedy with a large company of funny comedians and pretty girls; Brenner and Ratliff, vivacious entertainers; the Great Sutcliffe troupe of Scotch dancers, acrobats, and bagpipers; Newkirk and Evans Sisters in droll songs and chatter; and Juggling Wilson, a funny clown.

Maddening Rapid Transit.

The accommodation trains of Germany seldom fail to provoke the wrath of American travelers. One of them thus vented his feelings in a letter home:

"One morning I saw from the carriage window a square forty acre field of some unknown grain. It stretched for a quarter of a mile along the track, and we were just at the first quarter of it. A feeble old man with a reaping hook had begun at that corner to mow directly away from the track round the field. Calling out to him, I asked the name of the grain, but he was probably deaf and did not hear. I sat watching him awhile and then put my question to the passengers. I went to every one in the car, but no one could answer my question. However, with some inquiry served as an introduction, and I passed the day very pleasantly in conversation going, toward evening, into the smoking compartment, I settled down to read a newspaper, and as the air was close I raised a window. A sharp sound of clashing steel struck my ears. I looked out. We had now arrived by a direct line at the far corner of the field. And the old man, having mowed along three sides, was there, whetting his blade."—Youth's Companion.

Preparing for the Wedding.

There was to be a wedding in eastern Kentucky. Many of the mountaineers would be there. Early in the morning of the nuptial day Bud Elghtower was noticed drilling an old No. 12 shoe with slugs and nails and plaster of paris.

"What you doin', Bud?" drawled Slim Reesley.

"Kain't you see wet I'm doin'? I'm makin' moonshine sperrits out'n cheese scrumplin's."

Sim chuckled.

"Gettin' good an' ready f'r th' wedding, I reckon."

"I reckon."

"Goin' to throw it at th' bridegroom, maybe?"

"Goin' to throw it at him, maybe, but it ain't goin' to hit him. It's goin' to break th' face of Snipe Tolliver an' do it accidental too. I been layin' f'r that Snipe f'r a right smart spell."

And he drove an extra railway spike in the hardening mess. —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Powdering Closet.

When capricious fashion ruled that ladies should wear only white hair—the color supplied by nature being of no importance—the operation of putting on the powder made special arrangements necessary. These took the form of a special room or cabinet, and in every house of any pretensions a small chamber was set aside for the exclusive use of powdering the hair. A curtain divided in the middle, a powdering stand to hold the bowl of powder and possibly a stool were all that the closet contained, and through this curtain the lady whose head was to be powdered protruded her head, the maid standing on the other side and "throwing" the powder at her head by means of a powder puff. To preserve the eyes and complexion a mask was held to the face. Unfortunately, no illustration of a "powdering closet" seems to have been preserved.—Courier de Louvres.

Why Lincoln Helped a Bug.

President Lincoln was walking with a friend about Washington and turned back for some distance to assist a beetle that had got on its back and lay on the walk, legs sprawling in air, vainly trying to turn itself over. The friend expressed surprise that the president, burdened with the cares of a warring nation, should find time to spare in assisting a bug.

"Well," said Lincoln, with that homely sincerity that touched the hearts of millions of his countrymen, "do you know that if I had left that bug struggling there on his back I wouldn't have felt just right. I wanted to put him on his feet and give him an equal chance with all the other bugs of his class."—Kansas City Star.

Cause For a Rebate.

A colored undertaker was requested to embalm the body of a colored man. The wife of the deceased asked what the cost would be. He named his usual charge, to which she quickly replied, "I think that's too much."

"But it is the regular fee," protested the undertaker.

"That may be," assented the widow, "but this ain't a regular corpse. My husband had a wooden leg."

The Family Skeleton.

"Pop, us boys is going to have a minstrel show."

"Yes, son."

"Well, can't we have the skeleton old Mrs. Gaddy says you've got in your closet to rattle the bones?"—Baltimore American.

Profiting by the Occasion.

"I met Pantouffe just now. He's awfully bad; can hardly eat anything and drinks nothing but water."

She—And didn't you like to invite him to dinner?—Pele Mele.

Consistently Dressed.

Mrs. Fuclose—Isn't my new décolleté gown great? I tell you, I'm in the wim now. Mr. Fuclose—You are certainly dressed for the part.—Philadelphia Record.

Wouldn't Let Him Die.

Bella—He said he would kiss me or die to the attempt. Della—Well! Bella—He has no life insurance, and I pitied his poor old mother.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

THE REAL GUIDE

You may bring to your office and put in a frame
A motto as fine as its paint,
But if you're a crook when you're playing the game
That motto won't make you a saint;
You can stick up the placards all over the hall,
But here is the word I announce,
It isn't the motto that hangs on the
wall,
But the motto you live that counts!If the motto says "Smile" and you carry a frown,
"Do it now" and you linger and wait,
If the motto says "Help" and you
trample men down,
If the motto says "Love" and you hate,
You won't get away with the mottoes
you stall,
For Truth will come forth with a hoax;
It isn't the motto that hangs on the
wall,
But the motto you live that counts!

POINTERS FOR THE MOTORIST

Care Is Necessary in Carrying Spares

Oftentimes motorists seem to think that no care is necessary in carrying spare tires, says a Michelin Expert.
Uncovered envelopes are tossed on roofs of limousines where sun and rain beat upon them. Unprotected inner tubes are thrown carelessly in to tool boxes where they come in contact with sharp tools.
Needless to say, such practices are destructive. Strong light is very injurious to rubber. So likewise is heat. For these reasons, if no other, spare tires should be kept in cases.
Moisture and oil are also injurious to tires. Waterproof wrappers which keep out light, moisture and oil and at the same time protect spares from injury by contact with sharp substances, can be had of any accessory dealer. Every motorist should use them.Cardboard boxes are never satisfactory for carrying tubes in a car.
Every vibration of the car causes
chaffing between the box and tube and since cardboard is harder than rubber, the tubes will inevitably be injured. Covers for inner tubes tubes should take the form of bags which will fit snugly around the tube.

POLICE NOTES

Joseph P. Fitzsimmons of Auburn-dale and Harold Rice of Waltham were in the Newton court this week on a charge of larceny of a canoe. Both were found guilty and given sentences of three months in the House of Correction. The sentences were then suspended until Sept. 28 by Judge Copeland. On Thursday night when the Wood avenue house was burned at Waltham the two defendants were among the hundreds that gathered to watch the fire. A few canoes were taken from the burning building and pushed into Packard's Cove for safety.
Fitzsimmons and Rice found one of these canoes and paddled up the river toward Auburndale. They landed and were carrying the canoe toward Fitzsimmons' home when a Newton patrolman met them.

FACTS OF THE CONTESTS

Was Member of Credential Committee

—Believes Charges of Roosevelt

Forces Unfounded—California Case

Clearest of All—Many Contests Dismissed Unanimously—Speaks Highly of Governor Hadley

The following statement concerning the Republican national convention
has been made by President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university:—"I look upon the action of the Chicago convention in renominating President Taft and in adopting a platform of conservative and orderly progress as having met the greatest crisis which has confronted the American people since the civil war," declared President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university. Dr. Butler was not only one of the delegates to the convention from New York,
but was the member of the resolutions committee selected to draft the first copy of the party platform."What was this crisis which has been successfully met?" was the query suggested by Dr. Butler's announcement."What was really at stake," he answered earnestly, "was the preservation of our representative form of government, with its provisions for the judicial protection of private rights,
from an attack that was in essence
and principle Bonapartist in character. Had the forces of law and orderly progress been overthrown in that convention, we should have been well on the way toward establishing in the United States an Imperialistic democracy. It is my own opinion, as it was that many delegates, that no equally serious attack upon the government has been made, save in the doctrines of nullification and secession."Dr. Butler was especially concerned and indignant over the charges which have been made to the effect that the contests for delegates brought by the Roosevelt forces were unjustly decided."There has been such crimination and so much reiteration of charges by the Roosevelt supporters," explained the Columbia president, "that those of us who have regard for our personal reputations feel that it is necessary to explain to the public at large that the majority of the convention was not in reality composed of 'thieves' or 'robbers.' Every contest was decided fairly and squarely by the national committee, and later by the committee on credentials, and finally by the convention itself. The country ought to know, and all Republican and independent voters who feel disposed to support Mr. Taft ought to know just what the facts are."

The Facts of the Contests

"The proposal that 68, or 78, or 92
delegates—all these suggestions were made at one time or another in some form—whose seats were contested should not be permitted to take part in the organization of the convention was preposterous. Senator Root's ruling on this point was in strict accord, not only with the law and precedent, but with common sense.
Had he ruled otherwise, it would be within the power of any person or with or without any basis, to disqualify a large part of the convention
and to turn it over to the minority.
No delegate whose seat was in contest was permitted to vote on his own case or any subsidiary motion relating directly thereto."The talk of the so-called fraudulent delegates," continued Dr. Butler,
"has just this amount of justification,
and no more. There were contests in four cases: Arizona, California, Texas and Washington, which in my judgment were worthy of serious consideration, because of either the questions of fact or of law that were involved. The remaining contests were either puerile or impertinent.
Most of them had been started by artificial stimulation after the delegates had been elected, for the purpose of influencing the public opinion in other states, as well as the convention itself.
"Before casting my vote on the contested seats in Arizona, Texas and Washington, I took the most competent advice I could get from lawyers who had studied the evidence and the arguments, and who had no personal or partisan interest in the matter, and I was guided by their judgment."
"What were the merits of the contests to which you refer?" Dr. Butler was asked.
"The Arizona case seemed perfectly clear," was the reply. "The Texas case offered the alternative of accepting a delegation chosen under the auspices of Cecil Lyon in accordance with his peculiar system, based on federal patronage, or a delegationchosen by and from the Republicans of the several congressional districts of Texas. It is not as well known in the north as it ought to be that the Texas convention consists of delegates from more than 250 counties, including 100 of which there is no discernible Republican organization. From about 100 of these 100 counties,
more or less, Mr. Lyon himself receives and votes proxies. Under his leadership the Republican vote in Texas has decreased from about 300,000 to less than 30,000. That his system of selecting delegates was a fraud and a fraud on the party and the public was to me perfectly evident."The Washington case presented elements of greater doubt than any other case that was considered. While with more time at my disposal, I might come to a different conclusion,
I felt on reading the statement of the two opposing parties and on examining the briefs of their counsel, that I should not be justified in voting to unseat the Taft delegates.

The California Case.

"The case of California was, in my judgment, the clearest of all," continued Dr. Butler, "although it is the one about which the greatest uproar
has been raised. In the California case there is no material difference upon the facts. The question arising there is purely one of law. It is a rule of the Republican party, finally established after a long struggle against the partisans of the unit rule in the convention of 1880, that every congressional district in the United States is entitled to its own separate representation in the national convention. In 1880 we did not permit Logan to cast the entire vote of Illinois
for Grant against the protest of a number of individual districts, although the state convention of Illinois had instructed him to do so. Precisely the same question arises this year in regard to California."If the presidential primary law—passed, be it remembered, after the call for this convention was issued,
at the special session of the legislature called by Governor Johnson—had provided for the election of delegates-
at-large by general vote of the Republicans of the state, and for district delegates by a general vote of Republican electors in each district,
there would have been no difficulty whatsoever. Such a law would have brought the California procedure within the rule as to district representation. But what was done was quite different. It was attempted to submerge the individual districts and their preferences under a state majority. That majority proved to be 77,000, and it carried with it not only the delegates-at-large from the state of California, but the Roosevelt delegates in every congressional district
but one. In that one district the Taft delegates received a majority of more than 100 votes. The sole question
submitted to the national committee,
to the committee on credentials, and to the convention in this case was,
are these two delegates entitled to their seats, despite the provisions of the California primary law? On that question I have not an instant's doubt.
To deprive them of their seats would mean not only that the Republican national convention is hereafter to establish the unit rule, with all its shocking unfairness, but that legislatures in Democratic states shall have power to dictate how the Republican convention shall be made up."If its action in the California case
the convention served notice that,
where presidential preference primary laws are enacted, they must not attempt to deprive separate congressional districts of the right of representation to which party law and party precedent entitle them."

Fair to the Minority.

Dr. Butler did not neglect to call attention to the fact that the national committee had in many instances dismissed unanimously the very contests
over which the Roosevelt supporters are now questioning the action of the convention, and that in the committee on credentials members opposed to President Taft's renomination voted with his friends on some of the matters in dispute."Mr. Taft's title to his nomination is just as clear as any man's could be," asserted Dr. Butler. "It is the result of the different methods of procedure in different parts of the country that the public at large has been led to believe that contests were decided unfairly in his favor.""Moreover, the majority of the convention was scrupulously fair to the minority. At every point ample time was given for the consideration of every disputed question, and a roll call was had every time it was asked for. It was a mistake to think that a convention of 1078 men can be turned into a rubber stamp. Senator Root's ruling were models of clearness, fairness and cogency. Nobody dreamed of appealing from any of them.""The convention was more good humored than the newspaper reports appear to represent. Most of the violent attacks and angry threats were made by those who were not delegates to the convention at all. The celebrated Mr. Flinn of Pittsburgh subsided after a day or two of ineffective vociferation
when he found that neither Chairman Roosewater nor Senator Root nor the convention as a whole was disposed to lie down and be ridden over rough-shod. In fact, he seemed pleased to find somebody that could hold his own against him."

The Platform.

Dr. Butler, as a member of the committee on resolutions and its most active worker, described the manner in which the platform was finally drafted. He explained that three working models were submitted to the committee, one from the Roosevelt faction, another from the friends of Mr. Taft, and a third from the supporters of Senator La Follette. The platform, as finally adopted, he declared, embodied portions of all three models."The committee devoted long and patient study and discussion to every important matter that came before it," asserted Dr. Butler, "and the proceedings were harmonious and helpful from beginning to end. Governor Hadley contributed greatly to the final drafting of the platform, both as to its substance and as to its language, and the entire Missouri delegation voted for its adoption. Governor Hadley has since issued a public statement that the platform is the most progressive declaration ever made by the Republican party, and he is entirely right.""The attitude toward the platform of the delegates from the great states
of Missouri and Illinois, taken together with the proceedings in the committee on resolutions itself, makes it plain to me that there is no very great difference of opinion among Republicans as to the policies to be pressed and enacted into law. On 95 percent of the topics discussed in the committee on resolutions the sentiment was unanimous; the only differences were as to forms of expression. It is these facts that make it seem clear that any so-called bolt from the Republican party or from Mr. Taft's candidacy can have nothing but a purely personal issue to rest upon.""No bolt was organized on such questions as workmen's compensation, public health, conservation, protection of American citizenship, control of the trusts, so that while wrongdoing will be punished, honest business will be free from danger or alarm; revision of the tariff downward
where duties are too high, the allevia-tion of the causes that operate to increase the cost of living, or any one of a dozen other topics, for the reason that the whole Republican party has declared itself in favor of just these things. No bolt can be successfully organized on the question of whether or not the people shall rule, because the Republican party has declared itself in favor of making 'rule of the people' as effective and potent as possible.""In a word," concluded Dr. Butler earnestly, "nothing is left but a purely personal issue, and that in turn must in large measure be based on perfectly reckless allegations of fraud, none of which will stand any investigation
whatever, and all of which were gone into with the greatest patience and care."3508

THE USES OF LEISURE

Sermon by the Rev. Harry Lutz of Channing Church

"Wisdom cometh by opportunity of leisure."—Ecclesiasticus 38:24.

These words are from an Essay of Ecclesiasticus on "The Wisdom of Business and the Wisdom of Leisure," which treats of the two general classes of human society determined by the fact of industrial or business occupation and the freedom from it. It presents the special opportunity of each class; and the value of each to the social body and general welfare, when their opportunities are rightly used.

The wisdom of world experience is that both classes are necessary to the constitution of human society. They are equally important to the general well-being and advancement. The artisan or business classes are necessary to the stability of society and world-life. As the writer says: "Without these shall not a city be inhabited, and men shall not sojourn nor walk up and down therein." "Their prayer is in the handwork of their craft." "They maintain the fabric of the world."

Then there are the professional or leisure classes. They are necessary to the wise ordering and advancement of society and world-life. Their prayer is in their study of human life, its qualities and relationships, and devising the ideal ways for its well-being and advancement. Their function is educative, regulative, and prophetic. They apply their minds to the wisdom of life, and "meditate the law of the Most High." "They will seek out the wisdom of the ancients, and will be occupied in prophecies." "They will declare instruction and judgment." They are the council of the people. They mount in the spirit of understanding shall direct the world-activities and forecast human progress. "So long as the world endureth" their "memorial shall not depart"; and "their name shall live from generation to generation."

Thus is human society described in terms of its natural division by work and leisure. The worth of each is estimated in the light of its opportunities. This description is confirmed by historic experience. Society is sustained and progress has come, by faithfulness to the opportunities of each. These two classes have long been taken for granted, as natural and necessary. In times past they gave rise to a distinction in habitual thought; which regarded the leisure class as superior to the busy class. There has long been an aristocracy of leisure people and a commonality of busy people. The "patrician and plebeian" distinction has long persisted in the world psychology.

Such line of distinction became so sharply drawn and rigid in feudal society, as to make it impossible to cross from one side to the other. Born on one side of the line, there was no chance to change to the other. But, with the break-down of feudalism, ecclesiasticism, and royalty in the great Revolutionary Movement of the Occidental World; that line of cleavage was erased from its new ideals. Yet, in point of psychological fact, it was only rubbed more dim, made less clearly defined; but still persisted with its difficulty of crossing from one to the other. It takes time and long education to eradicate it. There still exists, even in this, the most democratic nation of the world, a subtly persistent notion of superiority in the leisure class and divine right to its special privileges.

But, to a fair observance of the prevailing modern thought and formative forces, it will appear: that the idea of superiority and special privilege of the leisure class is relegated to the background of general attention, and become a negligible factor. Leisure by inheritance and bond-clipping is simply tolerated by the popular thought interest today as a negative burden upon the toilers awaiting the disposition of social and economic reconstruction.

It will also appear: that the pendulum of popular social thought-interest is swinging over to the other extreme, with the rapidly gaining idea: that the workers are superior to the leisure people. It is shaping itself by the inevitable suggestiveness of the other extreme social doctrine: that the laborer creates, and by natural right owns, all production; and the capitalist is a social parasite with inferior rights. The natural effect of popularizing this idea is the psychological conceit of it; which takes form in a sense of superiority to the duties of the leisure class, as a natural right and privilege, which is good so far; but leaves to luck and chance its use. No less, but more important than time and means for leisure, is the need of ideal interests for rightful use of its opportunities. The higher-life cultural and spiritual interests are paramount to all industrial and social readjustments. Their neglect is fatal to any theory or reform, however otherwise good.

But this defect of emphasis is not to be attributed to any certain forms of social agitation. It is due to the general psychological aspect of the age in which we live. The situation is well stated by Prof. Moulton, when he says: "The special vice of the time is the failure to see the moral obligation of leisure; that it becomes possible in our strenuous habits for a man or woman of high purpose to be so absorbed in good works as to forget the claims of personal development, to think that zeal in duty to God and our neighbor can excuse from duty to our self." People's characters and value for society depend quite as much upon the way they occupy their leisure hours as upon what they consider their specific work.

We are not here and now to discuss the social problem, nor attempt to forecast the final issue between work and leisure in the future constitution of society; but especially to consider what is fundamental to all of it:—the issues of work and leisure in the personal life. It certainly seems the psychology of our time is being mystified, and it is to be feared the active popular interest is being misled by the swinging pendulum of emphasis toward the other social extreme. The peril of it lies in the suggestiveness of the popular social dogma: Make outward conditions of living right, and then people will be right; give them leisure from the stress of work, and they will then straightway begin to improve. This is the fundamental assumption of the general social reform agitation.

What, we ask, is there to be seen in the actual world of people about us to warrant that assumption? We have a considerable leisure class now. Look about among them. What are they doing? What are their prevailing interests? Do they, as a rule, employ their time at improving themselves? Some do; but is the proportion great enough to warrant the assumption: that a mere extension of leisure will reverse the popular tendency to frivolous amusements, sports, and luxuriousness; and turn the tide of interest back to objects of human improvement? What do people actually choose to do when Sundays, holidays, and vacations release them from work? Do they generally imitate the leisure people who are given to self-improvement, or do they follow the lead of those who set the pace of amusement pursuit, sports, and luxuriousness? What is the actual motive in desiring leisure, as seen by the facts? This is not an idle questioning. It is vital to the whole issue. For, it will be the same people under whatever new order of social and economic construction.

It is not a seriously defective assumption, that urges a division of things and extensions of leisure, with little or no consideration for the principle of their right use. It seeks leisure and its privileges; but what ideal of opportunity does it set up? The cry is: give us leisure! give us leisure! But where do we hear anything of like emphasis about what to do with leisure when it is secured? Is there not an imperative need of attention to this matter at all points of human life? Is not the use of leisure prior in importance to the consideration of means for securing it? Is not this the greater issue before us today?

Life is made up of work and leisure. The total space between birth and death is the sum of so many hours and days of activity, and so many hours and days of leisure. Both are essential to the whole. Life is incomplete with either left out. There is no defense for the idle life with no work in it. There is profound wisdom in the old saying: "An idle brain is the Devil's workshop." The idle mind is sure to take its interest in lesser things upon a lower plane, where life is incomplete and dilatory; and evil is what happens when great is inactive. It requires mental effort to take interest in ideal things upon the higher plane of living. The lazy-minded are not found thereon. Without alert-mindedness and high ideals, the necessity of unremitting toil is morally and spiritually safer than leisure; but it dooms the life to arrest upon its present plane of development.

It is also true, as Prof. Moulton says: "A life without leisure is an immoral life. If a person because of preoccupation with his industrial, professional, philanthropic, or social duties has lost all control of his time, and cannot retire into himself and give heed to his self-development, he has lapsed from the life of freedom to the life of a slave. The fourth commandment is still valid; and the significance of it is not in the details of Sabbath observance, but the duty of leisure; its place in the decalogue means that the moral duty of leisure is as fundamental as the duty of purity or honesty. It is pre-eminent in the present age that this truth calls for assertion."

The modern social reform contention for the more equal distribution of leisure, by shortening hours of labor and increasing the returns to provide for hours of leisure, is fundamentally right. It is simply human. The modern social ideal will no longer tolerate the relegation of all work to one class and all leisure to another. It demands a more equitable portion of both to each and every person. But the perilous defect of the strenuous agitation for it lies in the insistence upon the privileges of leisure, without any corresponding emphasis upon the duties of leisure. It strives for leisure as a natural right and privilege, which is good so far; but leaves to luck and chance its use. No less, but more important than time and means for leisure, is the need of ideal interests for rightful use of its opportunities. The higher-life cultural and spiritual interests are paramount to all industrial and social readjustments. Their neglect is fatal to any theory or reform, however otherwise good.

But this defect of emphasis is not to be attributed to any certain forms of social agitation. It is due to the general psychological aspect of the age in which we live. The situation is well stated by Prof. Moulton, when he says: "The special vice of the time is the failure to see the moral obligation of leisure; that it becomes possible in our strenuous habits for a man or woman of high purpose to be so absorbed in good works as to forget the claims of personal development, to think that zeal in duty to God and our neighbor can excuse from duty to our self." People's characters and value for society depend quite as much upon the way they occupy their leisure hours as upon what they consider their specific work.

An adequate conception of life will add another element, and find it threefold: work, leisure, and becoming. School education fits for life's work; general culture prepares the leisure time; and religious exercise secures the becoming. Provision for these several parts of the all-round personal life is involved in the uses of leisure from the stress of effort.

What, then, is the high opportunity of leisure? It is the chance to think, and employ the means for life culture and improvement. But, it may be asked, cannot one be busy and think too? Yes, so one can. But it is only one kind of thinking. It is not the whole round of thinking. There is a certain psychological aspect of busy-ness thinking; that we need to consider and guard against its limitations. It tends to take the form of action, and its ideals become shaped in terms of getting things done and accomplishing results. It becomes obsessed with the idea of doing and getting. It becomes impatient with anything else. It is unsatisfied with ordinary action, and urgent for extraordinary doing. The merit of quiet, faithful doing is at length eclipsed behind the demand for spectacular performances.

It is not that the busy-life thinking is bad; but that it is one-sided; and there is a certain intoxication about it that runs riot with the ideals of living. The end of the spree is collapse of powers and remorse at the failure of any real life-satisfaction. Is not the psychological atmosphere already saturated with action-thought, and we all more or less hypnotized by its suggestiveness? Have not the issues of it already become conspicuously apparent in the popular clamor for spectacular performances and achievements, and the restless insatiable greed for new things to do; which quickly done, the pursuit is continued for the yet more, with maddening acceleration of speed and rapidly whirling kaleidoscopic confusion of ideal colors, in which no clear picture of satisfying end appears?

What is the trouble with it? Is it not just this: that the worship of the strenuous life is coming to its inevitable issue in strenuousness without life? Is not the veritable obsession for action simply crowding out the time and ability to live? Has not the contagion of doing been steadily depleting the health of living? Is not the great need: to pause in the worship of the strenuous; and consider, lest we forget what life really is?

Life does not consist alone in doing. That is only a part of it. It consists also of being and becoming. Is not being and becoming the more important part of life? Wherein does action have any real significance, or find any satisfying end; except in being and becoming?

This calls for quite another kind of thinking from what can be done while busy. It is the contemplative thinking, that can be done only when one retires from the whirl of things into himself, where he can stand off from his life-work and let it speak its real significance to him; where the ideals of action can take their rightful place along with the ideals of being and becoming to make up the whole-round ideal of human personality, as a part of some greater reality that includes his being; whereby he is to be known as a child of God.

This kind of thinking requires leisure. It is a sin against life not to provide it. It is fundamental wisdom to regard leisure as a duty and secure it. The time-honored institution of the Sabbath is precisely that. The agitation for extension of leisure time for all classes of people is sound with wisdom. The vacation habit is true to this basic necessity of life. All provisions for leisure are the opportunities for this meditative all-round thinking; in which the variable ideals can be weighed into thought, impress themselves into conviction, and enforce themselves in actuating motive. By this opportunity of leisure cometh wisdom of life, strength of being, and increase of becoming.

Now the value of this opportunity to each person will rest on the use of it. What use do we make of it, as a matter of fact? and what use ought we to make of it, as a matter of duty? Are practical questions we need to put to ourselves without any sophistry of excuse or dodging or obligation.

What do we actually do when the hour, the day, the week, the month of leisure comes? Do we fill it with more doings? Or do we fill it with some thoughtfulness as to what all doing is about? Do we rush to amusements, sports, and pleasure outings? Or do we seek some cultural life-improving interest?

Now this questioning is indeed extreme: to put all pleasurable interests on one side of the alternative, and all cultural interests on the other. But, is it too severe for our time? What is the prevailing habit, and the general suggestiveness of it? Does it put amusements, sports, and pleasurable interests in their rightful place as relaxation from the stress of work and recreation for its renewal again? Or does it make a business of it, that regards nothing else but the fun and pleasure?

What does all this mean? Not that games, sports, and amusements are bad things. They are good, in right proportion and place. But it is possible to have too much of even a good thing, or have it out of place and out of all proportion to other things. One piece of pie at a meal is a good thing; but a dozen pieces would be wicked. Now is not that about the situation with pleasurable interest? Not their badness; but their multiplication until they have come to occupy the whole foreground of popular attention, so that other possibilities of leisure are being pushed from the discredit of molly-coddishness, through the limbus margin of indifference, toward the darkening shades of general neglect. Over the portal of this latter-day tendency to the underworld of strenuous pleasurable life is written: leave behind all hope of being and becoming, ye who enter here! It is a solemn warning to deep and serious thought. It is a stern reminder of a mighty real fact, when it was said of a worse place "It is paved with good intentions": that mere innocence of pleasurable interests only paves with glittering respectability the shades of demoralization which underlies their whole absorption of attention to the neglect of cultural and spiritual uses of life. For it is only too true: that things which merely kill time with pleasurable sensations also kill life, which is made of it. As Franklin once said: "Dost thou love life? then do not squander time, for that is the stuff life is made of."

Said Matthew Arnold: "The plea that this or that person has no time for culture will vanish as soon as we desire culture so much that we begin to examine seriously into our present use of time." When the love of life and the desire for its culture come uppermost in attentive interest, then all pleasurable interests will be safely put to their reasonable place for reactive recreation and renewal of zest for life's work; and the margin of leisure will be wisely put to its higher uses for cultural improvement and spiritual uplift.

An hour withdrawn from frivolous pursuits and profitably employed, oft repeated, will make all the difference between an ignorant and a well-informed person; will make all the difference between bare existence and useful happy living; will make all the difference between a useless and one of noble beneficence; will make all the difference between failure and success, evil and good, mere being and infinite becoming.

It is wisely said: "No one is anxious about a young man while he is busy in useful work. But where does he eat his lunch? Where does he go after supper? Where does he spend his Sundays and holidays? The way he uses his spare moments reveals his character. The great majority of youth who go to the bad are ruined after supper. Most of those who climb upward to honor and fame devote their evenings to study or work or the society of the wise and good. Each evening is a crisis in the career of a young man." (O. S. Marden.)

When we consider what mighty possibilities lie in the good use of leisure hours so lightly thrown away in fun and diversion, the odd moments so liable to be worse than wasted; how a good education is picked up out of odds and ends of time which others fritter away, "as one man gathers a fortune by small economies another character is built by self-discipline and self-improvement out of the blocks of time the careless have cast over among the rubbish of self-indulgence and vice; how a fine spirituality is gathered out of the hours of communion with well-minded people in meditative thought, prayerful desire for things of the higher life, and worshipful aspiration to the Most High; how are we inspired by the vision of golden opportunities in leisure, to heed the call for their employment, and be quickened to the increase of life in their best uses? For, of them:

"This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin; This day for all hereafter choose we holiness or sin."

"Of memory many a poet sings; and Hope hath oft inspired the rhyme; But who the charm of music brings to celebrate the present time? Let the past guide, the future cheer, while youth and health are in their prime."

But, oh, be still thy greatest care—that awful point—the present time." (Whittier.)

"T is never offered twice; seize, then, the hour When fortune smiles, and duty points the way; Nor shrink aside to 'escape the spectre fear, Nor pause, though pleasure beckon from her bower; But bravely bear thee onward to the goal."

What then are the uses of leisure but the "stepping-stones to higher things" of knowledge, culture, and spiritual improvement; from doing to being, up the ascending way of becoming, toward the far height of excellency:

Our good shining table-lands On God himself is light and life immortal.

We thank thee, O God, for great thoughts and high hopes that lie deep in our hearts for visions of truth that lead toward the light of life in thee. By faith and love may we arise to their opportunities, and every hour be filled with steadfast purpose toward the perfect day of thy goodness.

God bless and keep us; His kindly presence give us peace and hope and joy, evermore.

BOARD OF HEALTH

Requests Report of All Cases of Malaria

To the Editor of the Newton Graphic:—The Forestry Department is now engaged in mosquito destruction work in co-operation with the Board of Health. In order that the scope of the work may be increased, I would request physicians to report to the Board of Health all cases of malaria which they have under treatment, so that the neighborhood may be inspected and any possible breeding places destroyed or sprayed.

CITY HALL

City Clerk and Mrs. F. M. Grant are spending their vacation at Falmouth Heights.

The City Hall was closed Wednesday afternoon by order of the mayor on account of the intense heat. A few offices were closed yesterday afternoon for the same reason.

Mayor Hatfield is spending the week at his summer camp on Lake Winnepesaukee.

Public Buildings Commissioner Forbush has awarded the contracts to furnish the various city departments with coal to two firms, the C. F. Eddy Co. taking the north side of the city at $5.79 per ton for furnace and $6.42 for other sizes of anthracite and the Luther Paul Co. having the south side at $6.10 for furnace and $6.84 for other sizes.

THE EDITOR

Allegorically speaking, the editor is a happy medium between a soupbone and a porter-house steak. Nobody ever saw a rich editor, says H. J. Hann, in the Birmingham (Ala.) News, and on the other hand no one ever encountered an editor who didn't head every subscription with a donation of four-blis and a stub-pen. The editor is said to belong to the fourth estate because that is the only kind he ever leaves. He is also one of the most cheerful and overworked preparators now passing as legal tender. He has to be.

Whenever a girl with a face like a cream puff marries a youth who never earned a dime outside the shooting gallery, the editor has to paint the bride as a radiant vision of blushing beauty and the groom as one of our rising young business men, or else disappoint an expectant circle of delinquent subscribers. If the editor fails to spread a two-column obituary over the death of a prominent citizen who never paid a grocery bill outside of the justice court, he is liable to be waited on by some two-faced relative of the deceased with an injured air and a punch in either hand.

It has been libelously reported that the editor's diet is confined mainly to slight drafts and summer squashes taken on subscription, but he appears to be as resigned to his lot as a man whose wife has gone to the seashore, and the only thing that can cause him to change his occupation is a sheriff's sale or an untimely death. Few editors go to the case nowadays and set up their editorials in long primer with a three-point lead. Modern machinery does everything but meet the payroll and pay the hired girl. The editor is the most cultured person in the community. He is the only man in the village who can tell "Barries Burned Away" from "Grant's Memoirs" and get away with it, and as a result he outranks the principal of the high school as a literateur.

LONGWOOD TENNIS

Annual Tennis Tournament to be Held Next Week

The Tournament for the Eastern Doubles Championship and the Twenty-second Annual Longwood Singles will take place on the grounds of the Longwood Cricket Club, July 15th to July 20th inclusive.

Some of the totes who are expected to take part in one or both events are Wm. P. Larned, Champion of the United States, and E. P. Larned, holder of the Longwood Challenge Trophy, Wm. J. Clothier, H. H. Hackett and B. C. Wright, former Champions of the United States in Singles or Doubles, M. E. McLoughlin of the International Team of 1911, R. N. Williams, Jr., and Craig Biddle of Philadelphia, Karl Behr, F. C. Inman and L. E. Mahan of New York, N. W. Niles, present, and R. C. Seaver, former, Singles Champions of Massachusetts, A. S. Dabney, Richard Bishop and G. P. Gardner, Jr., of Boston, and many other prominent players.

The presence of so many strong players will result in interesting matches throughout the week. Matches will occur both mornings and afternoons.

The Longwood Cricket Club, located at the corner of Brookline and Longwood avenues, Boston, may be reached in twenty minutes by electric cars from Park street subway, via Longwood avenue (avoiding the baseball crowd) or via Ipswich street and Brookline avenue, or in twelve minutes by the Brookline branch of the Boston & Albany Railroad to Longwood Station.

POINTERS FOR THE MOTORIST

Traveling on Deflated Tires Unaware

It often happens, says the Michelin Tire Expert, that motorists travel on deflated tires for considerable distances without knowing that such is the case. This is generally due to the fact that punctures are not always followed by sudden deflation, but frequently allow the air to escape very slowly.

A nail which has entered the tread of a tire will not generally penetrate to the inner tube until the wheel has made a number of revolutions. When it does pierce the tube the nail remains in the puncture, so that the tire would not be deflated for hours if the wheel were not in motion.

But with every turn of the wheel the nail as it is brought into contact with the ground moves more or less in its hole and allows a small amount of air to escape. It returns to its original position as soon as carried upward again. The escape of air is hardly noticeable at first, but very soon because the nail is moved about so repeatedly, the puncture enlarges and the escape of air becomes more apparent. This takes considerable time and in nine cases out of ten the motorist will not notice that his tire is flat until he has traveled several miles.

Oftentimes this is far enough to do much damage, for when a car is traveling on a deflated tire both tube and envelope are literally chewed between the rim and the ground. When the tire is examined it is found that the walls of the envelope are strained and the canvas torn, while the inner tube, if it be repaired and inflated, will show a thousand almost invisible cuts.

City Boys Given a Day of Pleasure at New Building

Forty boys from Boston enjoyed their outing at the Newton Y. M. C. A. last Wednesday. The boys ran races, played baseball, had two swims in the pool, enjoyed the fresh air and in many ways showed their pleasure in getting away from the hot streets of the city. A fine luncheon was prepared by Mrs. E. A. Whitney and Mrs. H. W. Bascom. A group comes each Wednesday and those who have given money to pay for the entertainment and those who look after the boys while at Newton will enjoy their vacations more knowing that forty boys each week are getting a treat which will come to them only once a year. One boy wished he might stay for two weeks, another said it was the best outing he ever had and other words of approval show that the plan as outlined by Messrs. Garcelon, Howard, Fales, Ellison, Huattis and Blaisell will be a great success.

A fishing trip for July 22nd is planned. Any man, whether a member of the Association or not, is cordially invited to go on this trip. A day spent on the water will prove delightful. The Schooner "Letter D" has been chartered for the day and if anyone is interested, telephone N. 692 or call at the Association building where full particulars will be given.

Many are taking advantage of the summer membership in the Association. There was a gain of 25 members during June. Many are joining now to take advantage of the swimming lessons being given by the Physical Director, Mr. Macpherson, and also to enjoy a dip in the pool this hot weather.

The flat roof of the building is being utilized by the Dormitory men for a sleeping porch these hot days. Plans are under way whereby they can sleep out of doors during a great part of the year.

FORMER RESIDENT DEAD

Mr. George S. Woodbridge, for many years a former resident of this city, died suddenly Monday night from heart failure, superinduced by heat prostration, while riding on an electric car between the North and South stations.

He was born in Hallowell, Me., February 18, 1854, the son of Dr. George Woodcross of that city. His parents died while he was an infant, and he was adopted by an uncle and given the uncle's family name. He spent his early life in Maine, where he was engaged in the grocery business. In 1861, at the beginning of the Civil War, he enlisted from Augusta for 2 years in the Eleventh Maine Regiment. He served until the close of the war.

In 1874 he married Miss Helen Johnson of Gardiner, Me. Shortly after he removed to Newton, Mass., where he became an active worker in G. A. R. circles. On the death of his wife, in 1886, he removed with his only son to Chicago. In 1890 he married Miss Eva Woodman of Augusta, Me., and four years later went to Sharon to live. He had been town assessor for the past sixteen years, and town treasurer for two years, holding both positions at the time of his death. He had served on a number of town committees, and was a member of the Improvement and Historical Association and was active in Unitarian Church affairs. His second wife died at Long Beach, Cal., last March, and Mr. Woodbridge is survived by one son, Francis, of Chicago.

POLICE COURT

Many Fines Imposed on Automobilists

Violations of the automobile law brought seven more chauffeurs into the police court Tuesday and all paid fines. Henry H. Wilcox of Newton was charged with failing to sound his horn at an obstructed corner and with neglecting to stop his machine when ordered to do so by a policeman. On the first charge he was fined $10, while on the second he was found not guilty. Failure to give proper signals at intersecting ways caused five others to be fined as follows: Edmund Cottle of Sheffield road, Winchester, $15; Walter P. Hoover, Brookline, $10; Gleason Sumner of Wakefield, $15; Herbert L. Legg of Boston, $10; John H. Peckham of Worcester, $15. For speeding Crompton Smith of Worcester paid $15.

In court Saturday morning Harry Perlmutter was fined $10 on the charge of assault and battery, and for disturbance fines of $25 and $10 were imposed on Israel Mendelovitz and Isaac Sheer, all of Nonantum. The trouble took place the latter part of last month in a hall on Dalby street, used as a synagogue and as a meeting place of a Jewish society. Morris Cohen, also of this city, was the complainant, and has brought a suit against Perlmutter for personal injuries. Charges had been preferred against Cohen, who was a member of the society, and a meeting was called for the purpose of seeing whether he would be dropped from the society. The vote was 7 to 7, and at this time Cohen entered the hall. Perlmutter, who is president of the society, informed Cohen that he was dropped from the society and immediately a fight was in progress. When the fight was at its thickest, the lights were extinguished. Cohen alleges that he was struck about the head and stomach that demanded medical assistance. The defendants all appealed from their fines.

CAMP PASSACONAWAY

Bear Island, N. H.

July 5, 1912.

One week of the camp season has just been marked by numerous activities. On Tuesday the boys took an all-day trip up Red Hill. They went in the motor boat to Center Harbor and from there they tramped to the top of the hill. This was a new experience to many of the boys and all seemed to thoroughly enjoy it.

The night before the Fourth was celebrated with a huge bonfire. At five o'clock on the morning of the Fourth the boys were up and busily setting off their fire crackers. Swimming races were held, winners as follows:—Seniors, Knight 15 points; Jackson 9; Wellman and French 4. Juniors:—Townsend 15; S. Smith 14; C. Smith 4. In the evening the camp furnished a display of fireworks. These were set off from the end of the pier and over the calm, still lake presented a beautiful sight.

The boys in camp are Wm. Wellman, Arthur Knight, James Townsend, Abram French, Sherwood Smith, Calvin Smith, Howard Thomas, Alfred Pratt, Albert Angier, Malcolm Ide, Charles Ide, E. French, Allan Cooke, Wm. King, Allan Hodder, Allan Hubbard, Wm. Curran, Edw. Curran, Leonard Jackson, Scott Keith, Henry Walcott, Blanchard Stebbins, Robert Nagle, Littleborn Wheeler and Wallace Richmond.

COMFORTABLE NANTUCKET

Where Massachusetts Newspaper Men Enjoy Their Annual Outing

That Massachusetts editors, their wives, daughters and sweethearts have unlimited confidence in the cooling breezes and calm atmosphere of Nantucket, is evidenced by the fact that for the fifth year, the annual outing of the newspapermen has been held at that delightful island. The party this year numbered over a hundred, and as in days gone by, everyone had an enjoyable outing and had no hesitation whatever in saying so. Nantucket, an island 28 miles off the shores of Cape Cod, is reached by steamboat from either New Bedford or Woods Hole, the latter place making the best connection with the railroad, and speaking of railroads, that much maligned corporation, the New Haven road, gives its summer patrons unexcelled service thruout the Cape district. Frequent and fast trains carry one rapidly from the heat and humidity of the city into the clear, cool breezes which blow constantly from Buzzards Bay. And the sail on the Vineyard and Nantucket sounds, with a brief stop at Oak Bluffs, is a fitting conclusion to the day, for one reaches Nantucket Harbor just at sunset.

The adjective "quaint" has been overworked in describing Nantucket. One who knows his old Boston, or Marblehead or Salem, can find many points of similarity to all three. Nantucket combines all of these and yet has a personality all its own. To my mind, Nantucket is comfortable—an adjective which best describes all its characteristics. It has tarvia roads, finely shaded streets, good stores and, finely shaded modern luxury, save the automobile. And in close juxtaposition to these one can find cobble paved streets, which shake your liver, neat and oddly shaped lanes and byways, a close intermingling of the houses of the wealthy and the weather-beaten fish houses of the more humble classes.

We in Newton, would be impressed with the houses built close to the street line, the lack of front lawns and the neat little steps which circle up to the front doors and then down again, for nearly every front door, with its brass knocker is two or three feet above the grade of the sidewalk. Possibly the greatest contrast is illustrated by the residence of Mr. J. F. Flanagan in this city and his home at Nantucket. Here Mr. Flanagan lives in a great parklike estate of many acres, all open to show its fine trees, its wide-spread lawns and beautiful flowers. "Moors End," his Nantucket home, is a brick house, built close to the street line, with its circular steps leading to the front door from the sidewalk, and the entire estate surrounded by a high brick wall, leaving the beauties of the grounds entirely to the imagination. And Moors End is typically Nantucket. Every house has its high fence or wall, and only thru the partially opened gate can you see the color and the beauty of the many old-fashioned flowers which fill the gardens.

One other Nantucket characteristic is also interesting. Many of the houses have a railed veranda like structure on the top surrounding the chimney, and called "the Captain's walk." It is said to be a custom handed down from former generations of seafaring people, and furnished a place where incoming vessels could be first discovered. But Nantucket's seamen are rapidly growing less and the "captain's walk" could furnish a melancholy subject for the philosopher if he chose to consider it.

But even if the seaman and the whaling of Nantucket are gone, nothing can take away its wonderful climate. For nowhere are breezes cooler, and nowhere is the summer temperature more steady and comfortable.

And when to an ideal temperature, one can add the thoroughly modern and comfortable accommodations furnished at the Sea Cliff Inn by mine host, Mr. Clifford Folger, the days will pass altogether too quickly. For the Sea Cliff Inn is the finest hotel on the island with an excellent table, good service and an attractive menu. Its rooms are large and airy, with such good beds, that there is always a haunting fear when you seek repose that you will not wake in time for breakfast. During the past year, Mr. Folger has greatly improved his office and lounging rooms and furnished them with new and comfortable furniture.

Take it all in all, Nantucket is surely a comfortable spot, and it will be the dream of the newspaper men of the state to reach that much desired point, when it will be possible to spend a whole summer in that island of the sea.

MUSICAL AT FERNDALE FARM

A very pretty and successful musical was given last Saturday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Pope, Ferndale Farm, Weston, by Misses Thelma, Theresa and Master Harold Pope, pianoforte pupils of Miss M. Violet White of Boston. Many guests were present, and after the music refreshments were served on the veranda which was prettily lighted with Japanese lanterns.

THEATRES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.—For the third tremendous week of their remarkably successful engagement "The Meistersingers" will introduce a number of new features, in addition to new songs. The combined Harvard, Schubert and Weber Male Quartets have created a veritable sensation in their new spectacular scenic production, "Camping Out," and as a result B. F. Keith's Theatre is packed to the doors nightly with an enthusiastic crowd. "The Meistersingers Camping Out" will be surrounded by a splendid vaudeville bill. Earl and Curtis have a dainty and clever musical comedy entitled "The Girl and The Drummer," which abounds in bright lines and catchy music; Rita Gould is a beautiful young woman with a remarkable soprano voice and some stunning gowns; Carl McCullough is a clever impersonator; Lida McMillan and Co. will appear in an uproarious comedy farce entitled "The Wrong Mr. Allen," and other features will be the Three Parelle Sisters, European gymnasts; Muriel and Francis, two clever girls, with a novel specialty; and Walton and Lester, acrobatic clowns.

Bab as in Arab

Life for a baby in Arabia is no joke, that of an infant of the upper classes being especially difficult. A royal baby's first toilet consists in winding a bandage around its body after it has been carefully bathed and perfumed. If the child be a girl on the seventh day after her birth holes, usually six in number, are pricked in her ears, and when she is two months old heavy gold rings are attached to them to be worn throughout her lifetime except during periods of mourning for relatives. On the fortieth day the baby's head is shaved, and the disposal of the hair is regarded as a weighty matter. It must not be burned or carelessly thrown away, but buried, thrown into the sea or hidden away. The fortieth day marks a turning point in the child's life. Heretofore it has only been seen by a few, but now it may be seen by anybody and is regarded as fairly launched on the tide of existence. Several charms are attached to its body for protection against the "evil eye." Everything the child uses is perfumed and covered at night with jessamine and before it is used fumigated with amber and musk and sprinkled with attar of roses.—Exchange.

Songs of Day Before Yesterday.
We made up a catalogue recently of popular songs of the last two decades. Hardly was it set in type before those omitted began to swarm to memory. "Shoo Fly, Don't Bother Me," might have been added to the numerous old timers. "Put Me Off at Buffalo," "And Her Golden Hair Was Hanging Down Her Back," "On the Banks of the Wabash Far Away," "Rosie O'Grady," "Take Me Back, Back, Back to Baltimore," and "I'd Leave My Happy Home For You-oo-oo-oo." "Goodbye, Dolly Gray," "She Was Happy Till She Met You," "Bedella," "Sammy" and "Teasing" had their intense and fleeting existence. Too popular to be overlooked were "Mister Dooley," "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree," "Everybody Works but Father" and "Waiting at the Church." Of the whole crop it seems as if all were transitory except "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight."—Collier's Weekly.

The Track of the Earth.
If the sun and earth and the earth's orbit could be seen, then the track of the earth would be a spiral around that of the sun. Go take a broomstick, wind wire around it like thread on a spool, take out the stick and stretch the coil until the space between each turn is, say, one-third of an inch and make a hundred turns of the wire. Then this spiral or coil would represent the track of the earth through space during a hundred years. The sun moves toward the star Vega at a speed of twelve miles per second and carries the earth, all the planets and their moons along. But they all move around the sun at the same time and therefore traverse spirals, represented fairly by extended coils of wire.—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

The Canny Justice.
"There's a durned fine lookin' car o' yours, mister," said the old man with the chin whisker as he inspected Dubbleigh's motor standing in front of the Eagle House at Togus.
"You bet it is," said Dubbleigh. "I came over here from Watkins Corner this morning in just fifty-five minutes. Going some, eh?"
"Ya-as," said the old gentleman, stroking his whisker thoughtfully.
"Kin ye prove it?"
"I have five witnesses in my guests," said Dubbleigh.
"Waah, I'll take yer word for it," said the stranger. "Jest fork over twenty-five, and we'll call it square. I'm jestice o' the peace round here, and it'll save time to settle this here v'l'ation right now."—Harper's Weekly.

The Sign.
A famous cranialogist while strolling leisurely through a churchyard found a gravedigger tossing up the earth in which there were two or three skulls. The cranialogist took them up and, after considering one a little time, said, "Ah, this is the skull of a philosopher!"
"Very likely, your honor," replied the solemn gravedigger. "Sure, I noticed it was somewhat cracked."—London Telegraph.

Didn't Convince Him.
"Keep out of debt, young man," said the philosopher. "People will think better of you for it."
"Perhaps," was the thoughtful reply, "and yet I've noticed that the more I owe people the gladder they always seem to see me."

Deserved Some.
Rhsan Frocks—This cake is awful nice, mamma. (Silence.) This cake is awful nice, mamma.
"Well, what of it?"
"Oh, nothing; only when the minister says it you always ask him to have more."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Would Attend to That.
Mother—I really think you'd be happier if you married a man who has less money. Daughter—Don't worry, mother; he will have less in a very short time.—Boston Transcript.

An Amateur.
"What an amateur gardener he is!"
"What's the matter?"
"He actually buys the tools that he can just as well borrow."—Detroit Free Press.

Optimistic.
Cheerful Undertaker—Beautiful day for the funeral, sir; just enough breeze to stir the plumes. Now jump in, sir, please.—London Tatler.

Lower Falls

—Mrs. R. C. Spring and her son Mason are at Swan's Island, Me., for the summer.

—Mr. Frederick and Miss Helen A. Curtis have gone to Swampscott for a few weeks.

—The American Mica Co. has been working short time because of the extreme heat.

—Mrs. William Fessenden and children are spending the vacation at her home in Nova Scotia.

—Miss Helen Warren, Miss Nellie O'Neil, and Miss Rose Cunningham are at Rye North Beach, N. H.

—Plans are in progress for a field day to be held by St. John's Church at the Riverside Recreation Grounds, August 17.

—The heat of Monday had one victim. An employee at Cordingley's was overcome and after being attended by Dr. Maskell he was removed to his home.

—The playground having been equipped and provided with an instructor, more and more children are taking advantage of its privileges every day.

—On Fourth of July morning the Lower Falls A. A. defeated Needham Y. M. C. A. at Needham by a score of 11 to 6. In the afternoon they defeated St. James K. of C., from Somerville by a score of 5 to 4 on the home grounds.

—The only Fourth of July accident in this neighborhood was that of little Eleanor Cooper who was badly burned while trying to light a fire-cracker. Mr. Cooper's hands were badly burned by putting out the fire but both escaped serious injury.

MAPLE LEAVES FALLING

The leaves of the Norway and Sycamore maples have been rapidly falling the past week, the intense dry weather causing a form of tree lice to deposit a substance, called honey dew, on the face of the leaf. This smothers the leaf and causes it to drop from the tree. The matter is not serious and will cease now that the drought has broken.

INTERESTING SIDE LIGHTS

Editor of the Graphic:—

There are certain important points in the application of the new "Workmen's Compensation" act, which went into effect July 1, which are worthy of careful consideration.

Any employer of labor may adopt the provisions of the act or not as he sees fit; there is nothing in the act by which he can be compelled to adopt it either by his employees or by anyone else.

If an employer elects not to adopt the act, he will be liable, just as he is under the present law, for damages on account of any "personal injury sustained by an employee in the course of his employment, or for death resulting from personal injury so sustained." The only difference is that he may not act in defense (as he may now under the existing law).

1. That the employee was negligent.

2. That the injury was caused by the negligence of a fellow employee.

3. That the employee assumed the risk of the injury.

If an employer adopts the provisions of the new act, he is required by law to insure himself against his liability to pay compensation to an injured employee. He must also notify his employees of the fact that he has adopted the act, which may be done by posting notices to that effect at his place of business.

The employees must then decide whether they will accept the provisions of the act; and if they decide to accept them, they need give no notice. If, however, they prefer not to accept compensation under the act, they may reserve their "Common Law Rights," in which case they may bring suit to recover damages just as under the present law. They must, however, give to their employer notice in writing of their intention to reserve their Common Law rights; and this must be done within thirty days of the receipt of notice that their employer has adopted the act.

Some of the employees of any given employer may accept compensation under the new act, and some may reserve their "Common Law Rights." In this case the employer will be liable for Compensation to those who accept the act, and for damages to those who reserve their common law rights.

Either or both of these liabilities may be insured against in the Stock Liability Insurance Companies now doing business in Massachusetts. Liability for Compensation may also be insured against in the so-called "State Company" provided for in the act; but the Common Law liability of an employer who does not adopt the act can be insured against only in a Stock Company—it cannot be insured against in the State Company.

The cost of this insurance is a matter in which every employer is greatly interested. The rates under the new law have been submitted by the companies to the Massachusetts Insurance Department for approval and most of them have been approved by him and promulgated. They are in most instances considerably in excess of the present rates, particularly in the case of the more hazardous occupations. The cost is 25 per cent higher for insurance against the Common Law liability of those employers who fall to adopt the act, and who thus forfeit their "three defenses" enumerated above.

Until policies can be adjusted under the new rates, and the provision of the new act are better understood, both by employers and employees, the Liability Insurance Companies are covering their present policy holders under riders which extend existing policies so as to cover under the new law for a period of thirty days from July 1, and they are issuing binders covering new risks for a period of thirty days. In this way employers are enabled to secure protection temporarily until they can know definitely the cost of insurance and decide in what way they will meet the new situation.

As a matter of practice it is expected that most employers will adopt the provisions of the new act, rather than assume the risks resulting from their failure to do so. Most employers, also, will undoubtedly accept compensation for their injuries, rather than reserve their right to sue at law for damages, although the amount of money which a jury might award might possibly be in excess of that allowed under the fixed schedule of the new law.

It is hoped that this new law will benefit the workmen by allowing a reasonable compensation in case of injury, rather than making it necessary for them to sue for damages as at present. It is hoped also that employers will be encouraged to protect their employees from injury more carefully, by improving the conditions under which they work, and by adopting numerous safety devices.

Very truly yours,
 S. T. EMERY.

MR. SANDERSON DEAD

Mr. Grafton Sanderson, a resident of West Newton and of Newtonville for nearly twenty years, died last Sunday at the Homeopathic Hospital in Boston. Mr. Sanderson was engaged in the brokerage business in Boston.

He was 44 years of age and a native of Wickford, R. I., being the son of the late Rev. James A. and Elizabeth Grafton Sanderson of Plymouth and a nephew of Bishop Sanderson of Wisconsin. He is survived by a widow, five daughters, Grace, Helena, Genevieve, Elizabeth and Maude, and one son, Grafton Sanderson, Jr.

Mr. Sanderson's death caused a great shock to his many friends, as he had resided on Otis street for several years and was very popular among a large circle. He was a member of St. John's Church, but the funeral was held at Plymouth, where impressive services were conducted Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 by Rev. James Thompson of Walpole, assisted by the rector of Christ Episcopal Church. There was music by the choir with vocal solos, "Crossing the Bar" and "Abide with Me." The service was attended by a large delegation of friends and business associates from Boston and there were many beautiful floral tributes, among which was a large pillow with the inscription "Father," from the family of the deceased. The burial was in the family lot at the cemetery in Plymouth.

REVERE BEACH

The last word in answering every demand of the public at Revere Beach came with the opening of the band concert season on Independence Day and the daily concerts which are now being held. The Metropolitan Park Commission have made an appropriation for public band concerts at Revere Beach every afternoon and evening excepting Mondays until Labor Day. The band is encamped in the state band stand on the boulevard and the music can be enjoyed from any part of the beach. During the afternoon concert from 3 to 5 o'clock thousands of bathers idle in the cooling waters of the ocean and listen to the strains of the music. Evening concerts are held from 8 to 10 o'clock. The music is under the direction of Theron D. Perkins. It has been said that suffering from heat is largely a mental condition. Whether or not this is true it is certain that the hot wave is entirely forgotten at Revere Beach. The rollicking laughter of the many thousands who thronged the beach and amusement houses along the great boulevard during the hot spell testify to the cooling influences of this sort of recreation.

STRUCK BY AUTO

Thomas C. Feery, 4 years of age, of 1101 Chestnut street, Upper Falls, was struck by an automobile owned and driven by Sandy O'Hara last Friday night, and was removed to the Newton Hospital. The boy was setting off firecrackers at the time and had just lit a bunch when he started to run away from them to the street. He became confused as the auto bore down upon him, and after safely getting by, turned back. O'Hara is trying to avoid the boy, run his auto in a post, badly injuring it. The boy was not seriously hurt.

Through Thick and Thin.
 If monarchs have often permitted themselves the indulgence of making puns the fact has not been recorded in the pages of history. One pun, however, is assigned to King Frederick William IV. of Prussia. It is said that on the occasion of a court ball he was standing near the middle of the dance hall in conversation with an exceedingly thin ambassador. In the haste and excitement of a fiery gallop a lieutenant of the hussars danced with his partner between the monarch and the person whom he was addressing, and then, seeing what he had done, he began to stammer abject apologies and explanations.

"Oh, that was nothing," replied the king, with a hearty laugh. "A hussar must go without fear through thick and thin."

A whimsical glance from his own portly figure to that of the slender ambassador accompanied this answer, and the hussar felt himself not only pardoned, but invited to share in the king's laugh.

Hired Relatives.

In Bukharest, the capital of Roumania, flourishes the noble profession of "hired relatives," which undertakes to furnish to everybody in want of parents, brothers, sisters, aunts, etc., the necessary persons to represent them. Persons who desire to get married, for instance, and have no parents to figure at their respective weddings or who are in possession of such who decline to give their consent to the marriage of their sons and daughters need do nothing more than station themselves near the entrance to the marriage license bureau. There they will soon find themselves accosted by some "gentleman" or "lady," who for a moderate sum of money is willing to take the place of the absent parent. For 20 lei ($4) quite a respectable looking father can be hired. Fifteen lei is paid for a brother, and a fashionably dressed mother costs the same amount. Investigation has disclosed the fact that some of these professional mothers have figured at weddings fifty times a year.

The Drum of the Ear.

The reason deaf people cannot hear is that the drum of the ear is imperfect or has been destroyed. Sound is nothing but the vibrations of the air acting on the drum of the ear. When people are quite deaf it is because the eardrum will not respond to these vibrations, but they can still feel these vibrations even if they cannot hear them. When a number of deaf mutes are sitting in a room together and one wishes to attract the attention of another he strikes his heel on the floor, and every one in the room feels the vibration and looks around to see who called. In the large asylums for the deaf and dumb the doors are hung very loosely, so that if you shake them it sets up a vibration like stamping on the floor, and that is the way they wake up deaf people that sleep too late in the morning.

A Lesson in Gunnery.

For two solid hours the gunnery instructor endeavored to instill some faint idea of the subject down for discussion, but his stock of patience was ebbing.

"Now," he bellowed, "are there any of you budding Nelsons who don't know the difference between firing by electricity and firing by percussion?"

One at least still needed further instruction on that point, and he said so. Then, like a clap of thunder, the instructor explained.

"If you got struck dead by lightning that would be electricity. See? But if I came over to you and gave you a clout over your fat head that, my son, would be percussion. Twig?"

The other saw and said so.—London Tit-Bits.

Automatic Cooking Boxes.

Automatic cooking boxes were in general use among the Hebrews nearly 2,000 years ago. The Greek and Roman writers frequently refer to them. In his edition of "Juvenile," for example, Friedlander cites a commentator who refers to "the Jews who a day before the Sabbath put their viands hot into the cooking boxes, the pots being covered with napkins and wrapped about with bay, so that they may have warm food on the Sabbath."

Pernicious Literature.

"Did you see that stout woman push that little man off the sidewalk?"
 "Yes."
 "What did she do it for?"
 "Why, she's been reading somewhere that women are displacing men in all the walks of life."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Staking a Play.

"We'll have to give her a prominent part in the new play."
 "But she can't act."
 "That's all right. We'll fix her up with seven gowns. That will keep her busy in the dressing room most of the time."—St. Louis Times.

Advantages of Travel.

All travel has its advantages. If the passenger visits better countries he may learn to improve his own, and if fortune carries him to worse he may learn to enjoy his own.—Johnson.

—A large oak tree near Grove street and opposite Laell Seminary was struck by lightning yesterday morning, the bark being entirely stripped off and a hole made in the sidewalk. A group of city laborers had left the shelter of the tree but a few minutes before it was hit.

—Miss Caroline, before sailing for Europe for the new styles in millinery, gave orders to close out her trimmed millinery. The stock includes the hats and toques of the late Mme. Taylor. Miss Caroline's new location, 480 Boylston street, is two doors below her former store, at Mme. Taylor's shop.

Verdi's Verdict.

At his home in Genoa, one evening in 1800, Verdi sat down to his piano and played some of the music from the score of "Cavalleria Rusticana." Bolto and Tebaldini were present at the time. When the "grand old man" of music came to the end of the duet between Alfredo and Santuzza he cried out, "Enough of this sort of thing," and rose from the piano. Quite a long time afterward Mascagni heard the sequel to the incident. On the morning after it occurred Tebaldini met Verdi and remarked that the latter looked tired. Verdi explained that he had sat up to a very late hour of the night. "After you left," he went on, "I went back to the piano and once more tried over 'Cavalleria,' and it gradually conquered my prejudice and made a great impression on me. There is so much sincerity in its melodies that, in spite of myself, I could not help going on with it, and now I must admit that the work pleases me vastly." And he added, "Here is a young man who will make a name for himself."

Reason For Waiting.

A certain young woman, although she is a trained stenographer, typewriter and bookkeeper, had very bad luck in trying to obtain a position at even a fair salary. Though there was no joke in the continual disappointments, she found a funny side to one experience. The manager of a place whose advertisement she answered told her that the salary paid at first would be $5 a week, that by the end of the year it would be increased to $8, while by the third year she would receive the magnificent sum of $10. Mechanically she agreed to let him know and went out. Apparently she had made a good impression, for when a couple of days had gone by she received a note asking whether she wanted the position or not. She sat down and wrote: "Dear Sir—Of course I intended to accept the position. I am simply waiting for the two years to pass, so that I can begin at $10 per. Yours truly,"—New York Times.

Exterminating Our Wild Life.

The forces that are actively seeking to destroy all our best wild life are overwhelmingly numerous and very aggressive. Unfortunately each one of these forces of destruction is steadily becoming more deadly. I assert, without fear of contradiction, that today every valuable wild species in our country is being killed faster than it is breeding. In our own times the great auk, passenger pigeon, Labrador duck, Eskimo curlew, Carolina parakeet, flamingo (in the United States), Palao's cormorant and the whooping crane have been completely exterminated. There are at least fourteen more species of birds that will be rendered extinct in the near future unless a revolution in public sentiment quickly and sternly stops the universal slaughter.—William T. Hornaday in Leslie's.

Noise In A Bank.

Banks were breaking in New York eight a day at the height of the 1901 panic, and it was a nerve racking time. A new president had taken charge of one shaky institution to try to save it. He was a good natured man, but had a voice like the bellow of an angry bull. Unfamiliar with banking details, he was nosing around the place. "Well, how much a day do you steal?" he bellowed at a clerk who was emptying bags filled with gold and silver into a sorting and counting machine. The clerk turned red, then white and stammered out some unintelligible reply. The new president went back to his office, thought hard for ten minutes and then sent for the clerk. He confessed to a shortage of $7,500.—New York Mail.

The Roman Forum.

From the age of Tiberius to that of Constantine the history of the Roman forum is represented, says Professor Lanciani, by four great fires followed by three great restorations. The first was that of Nero in 65. The second was that of Titus in 80. The third was in the reign of Commodus, 191. The fourth took place in 283, in the days of Carinus. A century later occurred the abolition of pagan worship, which is mentioned as the first incident in the destruction of the forum. Yet the place was in a tolerable degree of preservation as late as the beginning of the sixteenth century.

Sacrificed to Reform.

"You have abandoned the picturesque custom of crowning a queen of the May?" "Yes," replied the merry villager; "we had to give it up. There got to be so many candidates and so much campaigning that politics left us no time for business."—Washington Star.

Placing the Blame.

"I admit without hesitation," said the man who tries to conceal his self esteem, "that whatever I am today is due to the influence of my wife." "That's right," replied Mr. Growcher. "Always blame the woman."—Washington Star.

Justified.

"The hour of 12 has struck!" hissed the ghost. "I don't blame it," replied the materialist. "It was worked to death long ago."—Judge.

For President
WILLIAM H. TAFT

EDITORIAL

Midsummer heat is not conducive to clear thinking on political subjects,
but it seems fairly definite that the radical element in both the old parties will support either Wilson or Roosevelt, while the conservatives will rally behind President Taft.

It is a matter of regret that the personalities of the several candidates enter so largely into the decision of the average voter, for the verdict given next November will have a tremendous effect on our attitude towards our fundamental law, the constitution. For the real issue, next fall is not personalities, but principles. A popular demand that constitutional liberties shall be subject to the passing whim of the majority,
that legislation shall be initiated and enacted by popular vote—that our judges shall render their decisions, not in accordance with law, but in obedience to the demand of the "People," is possible if the so-called radical element receives an endorsement.
The election of President Taft, on the other hand, will mean that the great body of American citizenship not only believes in liberty, but believes in a liberty under law, a liberty to the minority as well as to the majority, to the poor as well as to the rich. Let us consider principle first and personalities last in deciding on our course next November.

Friends of Mr. G. Fred Simpson of this city are urging him to stand for the Republican nomination as a member of the Governor's Council from this district. Mr. Simpson was a candidate for this nomination in the fall of 1904 when Hon. W. W. Rawson was elected, and proved himself to be a good loser. The present councillor, Hon. H. E. Fletcher of Westford has served the usual three years, and at the present time Mr. Simpson's name is the only one heard as his successor. Mr. Simpson is one of the prominent business men of Boston and would make a valuable member of the executive council.

Mr. S. T. Emery of Newton Centre
sends me an interesting article this week on the new Workmen's Compensation act which has just gone into effect. Everyone employing labor should give it careful consideration.

The rain of yesterday was most welcome, even if it was accompanied by celestial music.

MOTHERS' REST NOTES

The Mothers' Rest at Needham Heights opened its hospitable doors about five weeks ago, and has given its welcome and fortnight's rest and comfort to a crowd of needy ones.

Every party has been full to overflowing, and the waiting list is long.
There are not enough baby carriages and piazza chairs to go round. Will you not send some that are still useful? If your vegetable or flower garden is overflowing with good things,
please send the surplus once in a while to the city people who seldom taste anything so good.

Every Sunday afternoon, with the exception of July 28, there is a service in the Recreation room of the house at four o'clock. Sunday afternoon the "Old old story" is told and though so many of our guests are climbing life's steep pathway through a grey mist we try to make them feel that the promise is for them.
Will you come to these services, help
in the singing and become acquainted with our guests? A coach meets the three o'clock car from the corner of Beacon and Walnut streets, Newton Centre. Get out at the Needham Heights postoffice.

And last but not least, join our ranks by sending two dollars or more for membership, and so help
some struggling woman and her little ones.

MRS. ARTHUR C. BADGER,
Chairman of Finance.
Oak Hill, Newton Centre.

PROSTRATIONS

During the intense heat of Tuesday afternoon there were two prostrations
at the Baco and Pettie Machine Shops at Upper Falls. William Ma-zon, 35, of 15 Williams street, and Walter F. Burns, both employees of the machine room where the thermometer soared near the 125 mark, were overcome while at work. Both were taken to the relief hospital, Newton Centre, where they received temporary relief and later were taken in the police ambulance to the Newton Hospital.

On Wednesday, Michael Lascovich,
another employee of the Baco and Pettie Co., was also prostrated by the heat and taken to the Newton Hospital.

WOODEN WEDDING

A large company of friends from Brookline, Worcester, South Framingham, Natick, Allston and the Newtons assembled at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stevens on Ashmont avenue, Newtonville on Tuesday evening,
the occasion being a celebration of the fifth anniversary of their marriage. The grounds were attractively decorated with flags and illuminated with Japanese lanterns and a collation was served. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens were assisted in receiving by Mr.
and Mrs. Waldo Hunter of Worcester, and Miss Hattie Stevens of Wellesley Hills. Among the guests were Mr.
and Mrs. Waldo Hunter, Mr. and Mrs.
Irene Smith, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Stiek-ney, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Gallagher, Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Lynch, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. MacPherson, Mr. and Mrs.
Frank Canfield, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Talbot West-worth, Mrs. Ida Simpson, Mrs. Rebecca Sloan, the Misses Etta Stevens, Dorothy Hunter, Annie Tapley, Stella
Stevens, May McGuinness, Mary King,

MRS. JOHNSON DEAD

Mrs. Cornelia A. Johnson, wife of Charles H. Johnson, passed away
Monday after a lingering illness extending over a period of several years. Mrs. Johnson was born in New York City August 29, 1843, and was the daughter of the late John and Letitia Hisco. She had been a resident of Newton for 47 years and had endeavored herself to a large circle of friends by her happy disposition and thoughtfulness of others.
The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at her late residence, 931 Washington street and was largely attended. Impressive services were conducted by the Rev. George W. Jones, pastor of the M. E. Church at Newton Lower Falls and appropriate selections were rendered by the Mendelssohn Male Quartet. There were many beautiful floral offerings and among them was a pillow with the inscription, "Grandma," from the grandchildren of the deceased. The burial was in the family lot at the Newton Cemetery. The survivors are a husband, one son, Mr. Elmer B.
Johnson of Seattle, Wash., one daughter, Mrs. Sydney H. Hobson of Walker street, Newtonville, and a stepdaughter, Mrs. Alice L. Moody of Newton Upper Falls.

MR. GEORGE B. REYNOLDS DEAD

Mr. George B. Reynolds died Tuesday at his home, 99 Derby street, West Newton. Although he had been ill for nearly two weeks his death came suddenly. He is survived by his mother and father, three brothers and three sisters.

Mr. Reynolds was a life-long resident of Newton, having been born here 47 years ago, and was the son of Christopher B. and Ellen Reynolds.
He was engaged as a wood-moulder with the M. F. Lucas Company at West Newton. He was a late member of Division 53, A. O. H., and Garden City Lodge, N. E. O. P., of West Newton.

The funeral took place yesterday morning from St. Bernard's Church, West Newton, with a requiem high mass, celebrated by Fr. Cronin. The services were attended by a large delegation from the Garden City Lodge, N. E. O. P., and from Division 53, A.
O. H., both societies the deceased belonging prominently connected with for several years. The bearers were Dennis Ryan, Michael J. O'Connell and Timothy Daly from the A. O. H. and William Belne, Thomas P. Roche and John Gallagher from the N. E. O. P.
The interment was in Calvary Cemtery, Waltham.

PROSTRATED BY HEAT

George F. Goodrich of 90 Charles street was overcome by heat last Sunday night in front of Norumbega Park, and taken to the Newton Hospital. This is the first heat prostration
in this city this year.

The Temper of a Thunderstorm.

A tall, well-groomed young woman
entered one of the department stores, accompanied by an angelic appearing little girl of three years. "What a beautiful child!" the shoppers murmured as she passed. From one counter to another the two went, purchasing gloves, a white lace veil, some rose pink ribbon, that the mother held under her daughter's chin and then at her child to see the effect, which the saleswoman declared perfect. All the time the child was sweetly acquiescent in all her mother's plans. Once or twice she spoke quietly to her mother, who answered her by saying, "Perhaps, later," and smiled. Suddenly a change came over the angelic face. It was like a great black thundercloud passing over the face of the sick.

"I won't stop teasing," shrieked the angelic one; "I won't! I want chocolate ice cream! I will have it! I will I will!" The voice rose in a shriek of rage and determination. Then she threw her dainty self to the floor and rolled over and over.—New York Mail

Napoleon's Last Doctor.

M. Frederic Masson has traced the remarkable career of Signor Antonio marchi, whom Cardinal Pesch sent to St. Helena to act as Napoleon's medical adviser. He was not even qualified, but was only a student holding an appointment in the dissecting room of the Florence hospital, and he diagnosed cancer of the stomach as a simple indigestion and counseled the emperor to cure it by digging in the garden. After Napoleon's death he tried to obtain a pension from his heirs on the strength of an unsupported statement that there was a codicil in the will bequeathing one to him. Marie Louise and Neipperg refused to do anything for him, but the matter ultimately went to arbitration, and he was awarded an annuity of 3,000 francs.
He raised a little ready money by selling Napoleon's death mask, and then, after setting up in medical practice in Paris and failing to obtain patients,
he crossed the ocean to New Orleans.
He died in Santiago in 1838.—Westminster Gazette.

Dickens' Resemblance to Tennyson.

Some of the great writers of the last century seem to have resembled each other in physical appearance as well as in genius. Mr. Comyns Carr in his "Eminent Victorians" states that he was struck at one of Dickens' readings
by the resemblance of Tennyson. Afterward, on seeing a pencil drawing which Millais made of Dickens after death, he found the likeness to the poet still more marked, and on the sketch being shown to Tennyson he, too, observed the resemblance. He gazed at it curiously for some minutes, then exclaimed: "Why, this is a most extraordinary drawing. It is exactly like myself." And Lady Dorothy Nevill in her "Reminiscences" tells of a painting purchased by a friend of hers as a portrait of Browning. It was afterward found to be a portrait of Dickens, made by an artist friend
at Gad's hill.

Oats and Ins of London.

When the late Franklin Fyles first visited London he told his traveling companion as they rose from breakfast the first morning that he would have to be gone most of the day. "I've got to see a doctor and a lawyer to whom I have cards of introduction," he explained, "and there are a couple of dramatic critics here who've written
me to call as soon as I reached town.
Then I'm going to hunt up Goldsmith's grave down in Temple Gardens. I'd rather see that than any other one thing in England."

A few minutes past 10 Mr. Fyles walked into the hotel again, and to his friend's surprised look, merely said
"Doctor and lawyer and critics all out.
Only man at home was Oliver."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Found Imitation Difficult.

Bert, a Wabash freshman, closed a letter to his cousin Joe, five years old,
by saying: "Now I must quit and write five pages on Esther."

The next day his father found Joe armed with tablet and pencil trying to hold down his young brother, Robert,
and said to him, "Joe, what are you doing?"

"I'm trying to write five pages on Rob, but he won't be still," replied the little fellow.—Indianapolis News.

In His Mind.

An artist gazes intently into the space within an empty frame.
"What see you there?" says a friend.
"I see a wonderful picture," was the reply.
"Oh, an intentionalist picture!" the friend retorts.—American Art News.

boy?
Mrs. Bjones—No: I'd rather keep him

Picking Up Pins.

"How do you make your living, my lad?"
"Picking up pins, sir."
"Dear me—What an odd occupation!

Disgraceful.

Willie—Has Jack a good reason for being ashamed of his ancestors? Billie
—I should say so. His grandfather struck out four times in a world's series.—Philadelphia Record.

Cooking Fish Out of Doors.

"Clean the fish, but do not sculp;
leave head, tail and fins intact and put
a small strip of bacon in each of them.
Dig a hole large enough for the fish to lie in with several inches to spare.
Build a fire in it and get a good hot bed of coals. Bake out half of them, cover the remainder with an inch of grass, place the fish on the grass, cover with more grass and pile the rest of the hot coals on top. Cover the hole with a frying pan or any other handy
thing, as, for instance, a flat stone.

"In thirty minutes they will be cooked, and Delmonico himself could not make them taste better. They are partly fried and partly steamed by the juices of the grass. The bacon fat has fried out and permeated the flesh. The grass juice adds a peculiar and exceedingly pleasant flavor, and when taken from the hole the grass which clings to the fish can be easily pulled off, and all the scales and skin will come with it."—Edward G. W.
Ferguson in Outing Magazine.

Fairies—Good and Bad.

Deep down in their hearts, if the truth were told, the majority of grown-ups have a strong regard for fairy stories, and there are few of us with so little imagination that we have not a liking for these light, fantastic tales.
Just as there are all sorts and conditions of men, so are fairies diverse as a class. The banshee is an Irish fairy, and Scotland calls it a brownie. An elf is a fairy of diminutive size, supposed to be fond of practical jokes.
Gnomes are eastern spirits, sometimes good, but occasionally bad. A gnome is a guardian of a coal mine or quarry
and a goblin a phantom spirit. Imps are the Welsh spirit of mischief and Jacko'-lantern a bog or marsh fairy who loves to mislead. Every one knows the mermaid as the sea spirit, and naiads are water nymphs. Oberon was king of the fairies, and a pixie is a fairy of Devon. Puck, full of fun, is Swedish, and a sylph is a spirit of the air.

Houses Keep London Warm.

The temperature of the air in London is raised by the artificial sources of heat existing in it no less than two degrees on the annual mean above that of its immediate vicinity. Mr.
Howard, in his work on climate, has fully established this fact by a comparison of a long series of observations made at Pinelaw, Stratford and Tottenham Green, all within five miles of London, with those made at the apartments of the Royal society in London and periodically recorded in "Philosophical Transactions." In explanation Mr. Howard refers to the heat induced by the populations (just as the temperature of a hive of bees) and from the domestic fires and from the foundries, breweries, steam engines and other manufactories.—John Timb's
"Curiosities of London."

Beadle and Minister.

A story is told about a west country minister and his beadle, showing the familiarity that used to exist between the minister and his man. The minister and John had got into an argument,
and it became so hot that John was like to lose his temper. The minister naturally tried to throw oil on the troubled waters.

"Man, John," he said, "it's a good thing we are not all of one mind. For example, had everybody been of my mind everybody would have been wanting my good wife Janet."
"Very true," replied John a little surly, "for if everybody had been in the same mind as me nobody would have taken her away. She may make a good enough minister's wife, but she would have made a pulchre aside my Jean!"
—London Answers.

Superstitious Miners.

Coal strikes have sometimes been threatened in England on curious grounds. In 1874 a woman was employed as a messenger at one of the collieries near Wasebury. As she commenced her day's work very early, she often met the miners on their way to the pit, and as the men considered it a bad omen to meet a woman first thing in the morning, trouble arose. By threats and persuasion they tried to get the offending female to give up her job, but, failing in this, they went in a body to the manager and fairly refused to go down until the woman had been dismissed.

A Punning Match.

Father ruefully gazed on his last shilling.
"Money has wings, and house rents
make it fly," he said.
"Yes," said his fifteen-year-old son,
"and some houses have wings, for I've seen many a house fly."
"You're smarter than your old dad,
maybe, my son, but I always thought that no part of a house except the chimney flew!"—London Tit-Bits.

It Reminded Him.

"The dew is falling," she said. "Let us go in before it settles."
"Yes," he answered, but a worried look stole into his face. Little did she dream that with him many dews were falling and that he was utterly unable to settle.—Judge.

There Were Others.

"John, I want the baby named 'Paul.'"
"My dear, Paul was a woman's name."
"Mercy! Did you think I meant that Paul? I'm naming him for Paul Jones."—Chicago Tribune.

Perfectly Proper.

Smith—Jones seems to have no thought for anything except his clothes. Brown—Yes; he is perfectly wrapped up in them.

Good faith is a seldom guest. When you have him bid him fast.—German

BROWN TAILS HERE

The annual flight of the brown tail moth took place on Monday, a small colony coming into the city from Weston and Welleley, and covering the north side of the city. The Forestry Department met the situation promptly and destroyed them with its powerful spraying machines.

AUBURDALE WINS

The Newton Sunday School Baseball League season has come to a close, after having played a series of interesting games. The team from the Auburdales Congregational Church was the winner in the series.

The league was divided into two sections, each team playing one game with every other team in its section and the winners of each section playing off the final for the championship.

The team from the Eliot Church won in its section and in the finals were matched against the Auburdales team which captured the pennant.

The members of the Auburdales team which won the banner and championship are F. Farley, E. Stickney, W. Conn, W. E. Moseley, G. Fluke, H. Temple, A. Davidson, E. Conn and substitutes, C. Frost, R. Fairbanks, H. Cowdrey, H. Leonard, and F. Davidson.

THE JOY OF LIVING

It's great to be glad, to feel the joy of knowing that you are living;

It's great to drink from the sparkling life

That the fountains of love are giving.

To walk and talk by the flowered way

Careless by a whispering breeze,

Hearing the music that grandly sweeps

Through the lyric limbs of the trees.

Live, laugh, love! It's a world of joy

To him with a gift for dreaming!

A million fairies are spreading roses

Where dewdrops like jewels are gleaming.

It's a mighty fine world, full of mighty fine folks

And only the sluggish is sad.

I'm glad I'm living, I'm glad you're living

And I'm glad that you're glad that I'm glad.

RESIDENCE OF MR. GEO. A. FROST
Struck by Lightning in Yesterday's Storm

The long drought was broken yesterday by a series of thunderstorms beginning in the morning and continuing well into the evening, and incidentally doing considerable damage in this city.

The lightning was sharp and the thunder particularly heavy, scaring children and horses, and striking in many places about town. The most damage was done at the fine residence of Mr. George A. Frost on Chestnut street, West Newton, which was struck about 11:30 A. M., the bolt entering the gable and passing through the partitions. The family were at their summer home at Beverly and the smoke in that neighborhood was so intense that one of the neighbors telephoned her husband in Boston that it was her own house that was burning. The fire department was able to protect the fine furnishings in the house and the damage is roughly estimated at about $5000. While the fire was burning, the barn of R. M. Clark on Homer street was also struck and an alarm rung in from box 712. The damage here was not heavy.

The lightning also affected the electric light and power and telephone service thruout the city. A bolt played around Eliot block, but with no substantial damage, a clothes reel was struck in the vicinity of Charlesbank road, a tree stripped of its bark on Grove street, Auburndale, and the chimney on the house of Mr. R. F. Gammons, 2d, on Brookside avenue, Newtonville, was also knocked down.

The rainfall was quite heavy, the water department gage showing a fall of one and a quarter inches, which is more than the total rainfall since May 25th.

MRS. SAMPSON INJURED

Mrs. Flora D. Sampson, the wife of Capt. A. D. W. Sampson of St. James street, Newton, was badly injured in the railroad accident which took place at Nantasket last Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Sampson was immediately removed to the Newton Hospital, where her condition is pronounced as quite serious. It has been impossible to make a thoro examination, but it is known that one or more ribs are broken and internal injuries are feared.

While riding his bicycle along Adams street, late Saturday night, Daniel Defaut, 18 years old, came into collision with a team owned by his father and driven by Harry Hoffman. The young man was thrown to the ground, receiving several cuts and bruises about the body. He was taken to Station 2, and attended by a physician and later taken to his home 199 Adams street.

—Mrs. Catherine E. MacClellan of Peabody street and Mrs. Otis of Providence, R. I., sailed Thursday for a two weeks' stay at Pictou, Nova Scotia.

NORUMBEGA PARK

The weather of the past week or more has been such as to drive the suffering citizen of the city to seek cool relief from the heat, and there is no better way than to take the trolley trip out to Norumbega Park, where one may sit beneath the shade trees or stroll through the leafy paths of this ideal summer resort which is constantly swept by the cool breezes from the Charles River. Here one is immune from the heat and in a condition to enjoy to the fullest all the attractive features of the park. In the Grape Arbor Cafe one may sit in a cozy nook, commanding an unexcelled view of the surrounding landscape, with the superb cuisine of this restaurant at one's service. The other attractions of the park, including the Zoological Garden, Casino, Chalet of Wonders, Merry-Go-Round, Swing Court, Rifle Range, etc., were never more popular than this season. In the open air theatre next week there will be another of the popular vaudeville programmes for which this theatre is noted. There will be the regular Sunday night concert this week.

ALCOHOL CHAT

A druggist recently said to us, "Why should I carry you Alcohol when my customers don't know about it, and it is more expensive than what I am carrying; I can get along with cheaper goods." We are using newspaper space for the purpose of notifying you that the best and purest Alcohol comes in sealed bottles, each bottle bearing across the cork the signature of the firm name, Chester H. Graves & Sons. If your druggist won't get it for you, let us know and we will see that your wants are satisfied, although we don't sell at retail, but will refer you to a druggist in your city where you can buy it.

RECOLLECTIONS OF A SCHOOLBOY

By Elliott J. Hyde

Once upon a time, as all good stories of my boyhood began, or, to be more exact, in the early sixties of the past century, during the great contest between the North and South, I remember attaining to the dignity of a desk shared by another. I had graduated from the little chair, with its iron rack on one side to hold my primer, and felt taller than I ever felt again, even after attaining my six feet.

I fear I was rather a forward youngster, presuming on the fact that my good father was chairman of the school committee and judge of the local court. And perhaps for that reason I was chosen by the master to act as a sort of aid, or monitor, as you say in these days; in reality, as an errand boy, for it was my happy privilege to be out of school in school hours. The telegraph was then almost a novelty, and an office had been established but recently in the little village where our school was located. Nearly every morning before the noon recess the schoolmaster would drop in and whisper in my ear, "Run over to the depot and get the latest news from the front." The stationmaster was always willing to furnish the latest news received over the wires, and usually wrote it down for me. Returning to the school, after having passed it over for my father to read, I handed it in to the principal, and if the news was important, he often sent me across the street to the home of a dear little gentleman whose interest was as keen as his welcome was kindly.

As the days passed, this good gentleman often visited our school, and at the morning devotions—for in old New England in those days school opened with prayer and reading of the Scriptures—whenever he honored us with his genial presence, we sang "America" till the habit of singing that grand old hymn became a daily habit.

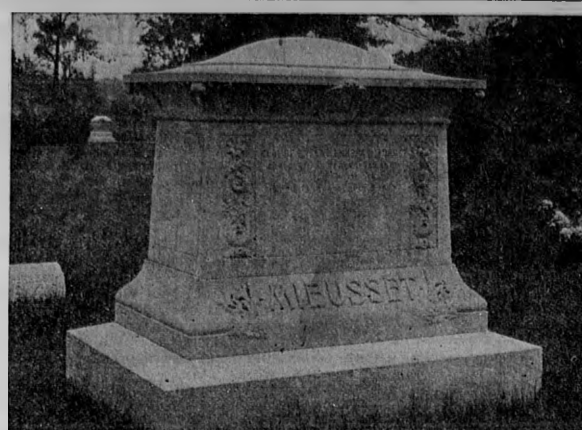

When in July, 1864, while yet the war was in progress, the town of Newton, Mass., dedicated its monument and memorial to the dead and those yet to die in the great Civil War, 1,100 children of the public schools of that town (now city) assembled at the Newton Cemetery, each with a medal of hard rubber strung on a red, white, and blue cord, and sang an original hymn written by our friend the doctor, whose beaming presence among us was in itself an inspiration.

It was a most beautiful day, and as this was the first monument erected in New England to those fallen in the war, the occasion was of great interest to the country at large. I will let the doctor, who was the historian of Newton, as well as minister of God, famous poet and scholar, describe the afternoon in his own words:

"The tranquil beauty of the day was in striking contrast with the storm of war and tumult still raging at the South. The end of the war was still nearly a year away, but the scenes of such an occasion had a stimulating effect upon the hearts of all who were present. And it may well be believed that every one left that hallowed spot with a fresh resolve to be found ready for any coming emergency."

At the conclusion of the ceremonies the thousands assembled united in one grand chorus in singing "America". And how we did sing! For the author of that great national hymn was our good doctor—yes, Dr. Samuel F. Smith. And now you can realize the honor that came to our particular school when he joined us in the journey back to the old school-house.

His after life was a busy one in his chosen line of work. An extensive traveler in mission fields, editor of many publications, poet and hymn writer, historian and gentleman, he passed the remainder of his long and happy life in the home across the street from the site of the old school-house in Newton Center, Mass. That home has now become a Mecca for visitors the world over.

AUTOS COLLIDE

Machine Wrecked, but No One Was Injured

Automobiles owned by Mr. Charles J. Bailey of Surrey road, Newton, and Mr. Charles A. FitzGerald of Chestnut street, West Newton, came into collision Tuesday morning at the corner of Crafts and Washington streets, wrecking both machines and giving the three persons in them a bad scare.

Mr. Bailey's car was running west on Washington street, toward Newtonville square, when Mr. FitzGerald came through Crafts street at right angles to the course of the other car. They struck nearly head on. Mr. Bailey's car was in charge of the chauffeur, Vincent J. Salla of Oak avenue, West Newton. He was accompanied by Richard Pyle of Fayette street, Newton, and when the crash came Pyle was thrown over the other machine. He was bruised and shaken and his clothes were torn, but he refused the services of a physician. Neither of the other men were hurt.

POINTERS FOR THE MOTORIST

The Importance of Proper Inflation

Of all questions relative to the preservation of pneumatic tires that of inflation is the most important.

Of the tires tested by the Michelin Tire Company on cars which stop at its factory a full 50% are found to be under-inflated, while of the tires sent in for repairs nearly 60% have suffered from this cause.

There are many ways aside from punctures and blow-outs in which the air pressure in a tire can sink below normal. The valve may not be air tight, or if the tire is new it may expand slightly when first used, with a consequent reduction in pressure.

Moreover, rubber while practically air tight is not entirely so and the air will gradually filter through into the atmosphere. Air is composed chiefly of oxygen and nitrogen. The co-efficient of diffusion of oxygen through rubber is higher than that of nitrogen, and in consequence the pressure in a recently inflated tire decreases in proportion to the diffusion of the oxygen. When the tire is re-inflated the proportion of nitrogen within the tire of course becomes larger. So long as the original air remains in the tire this proportion continues to increase with every inflation and thus the loss by diffusion becomes gradually smaller.

The temperature of the outer air is responsible only for the very slightest changes in the interior air pressure of a tire. These changes are so slight as to be negligible.

Over-inflation likewise is injurious—not to the tire so much as to the car. An over-inflated tire has little or no resiliency and thus transmits shocks to the chassis, which under incessant jarring is bound to suffer.

It is obviously necessary therefore to keep the tires pumped up to just the right pressure. The only way to accomplish this is frequently to use a pressure tester.

PENNANT HERE

Police Ball Team Plans to keep the Banner Permanently

Following the game between the Newton and Chelsea Police teams in Chelsea Tuesday Henry T. Parsons, the secretary of the Massachusetts Police Baseball League of which the teams are members, turned over to Manager William Kiley of the Newton team, the silk pennant which will be presented to the team winning the most games in the league. The pennant will be exhibited in various stores throughout the Newtons and Manager Kiley hopes to keep the pennant here for good.

Manager Kiley is much pleased with the way his team has gone thru the season. They have won four out of their five games played, their first setback coming Tuesday at the hands of the Chelsea team. Newton's defeat of that day could not be attributed to poor ball playing but came mainly thru the terrible onslaught on Mahoney's delivery by the Chelsea players in the first inning. After his with Clancy in the box they retaliated in great style but were unable to put the winning run across in their final session.

The pennant which was donated by people interested in the league is a fine piece of workmanship and a credit to the team which captures it. After being exhibited in stores in cities where league teams are located, it will be presented to the winner to be hung in their retiring rooms.

CAMP PASSACONAWAY

July 13 ended another busy week at Camp Passaconaway. Mr. and Mrs. Alan Hubbard of Newton Centre with their son Gilbert spent the week-end at camp and Mr. A. H. Walt spent July 13 and 14 with us.

Besides the everyday activities a special tournament in quoits was held, Blanchard Stebbins getting first prize. A singles tournament in tennis begins this Wednesday.

On Saturday, July 13, the boys gave their first vaudeville entertainment. Of the many good numbers, The Travelling Minstrels (Wm. Wellman, Alfred Pratt, Wilmet Whitney, Stuart Rider) was voted the best.

Rev. Mr. Levy and Mrs. Levy of Newton Centre spent Sunday with us and in the morning Mr. Levy gave a talk to the boys. A vesper service is held every Sunday evening at Birch Island and the boys seem to thoroughly enjoy the song service. On July 14 there were thirty boats at this service.

Camp Passaconaway won from the Centre Harbor Red Sox at Centre Harbor, Saturday, July 13, by a score of 10 to 0. Whitney was invincible, allowing only two hits, and was well supported.

BOY HURT

A back fire from an engine in one of the city automobiles driven by C. L. Berry of the street department was the cause of the alarm from box 26 Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Berry had started the engine when a quick communication of the spark caused a loud explosion and a sheet of flame shot from the rear of the machine. Some individual got excited over the matter and turned in the alarm.

The only real excitement attached to the ringing of the alarm was when a motor cycle carrying two boys collided with the sidewalk on Walnut street and threw one of the boys, the 16-year-old son of A. T. Vignoles of 29 Greenwood road, Chestnut Hill from the machine, breaking his leg in three places. The boy was picked up by Chief W. B. Randlett of the Fire Department and taken to a nearby doctor's office, where he received treatment and was later taken home.

SERIOUS ASSAULT

Man's Head Is Badly Smashed With a Hammer

As a result of a forceful argument in which a carpenter's hammer figured quite prominently, Nicholas Collelli, 26, living in the rear of 16 Middle street, Newton, was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction, and Giuseppe Santee of Waltham the man on the short end of the debate, is nursing a badly bruised head. Santee was also drunk when the argument occurred and paid $5 for his pastime. Judge Copeland acting on both cases Monday in court.

The affair took place at Collelli's house Sunday night. Collelli has some reputation as an entertainer and he left nothing undone on this occasion. They had supper, and wine, perhaps more wine than supper, and then things began to happen.

Collelli and Santee entered into an argument about Italy and things waxed warm and furious. The guest room wasn't large enough to hold the debaters so they repaired to the cellar to settle things.

Santee sat down on a box to think the matter over and Collelli began to look about the cellar. He found a hammer and used it so much that the handle was broken.

Police officers in the vicinity heard cries coming from Collelli's cellar and investigated. They found Santee lying on the floor with blood flowing from a deep wound in the head and his face was battered so that one would hardly know the man.

Both men were taken to Police Headquarters where Collelli was booked on an assault with a dangerous weapon and Santee was charged with being drunk and creating a disturbance.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

Over twenty have already signified their intention of going on the fishing trip, Monday, July 22nd. If there are any others who would enjoy going please telephone or write Mr. H. W. Bascom at the Newton Y. M. C. A. The party will leave Newton on the 6:06 train going through Lynn on the Narrow Gauge and taking the trolley from there to Swampscott where the Schooner "Letter D" will be ready for them. Those going are advised to wear their old clothes, bring a lunch on with them and be prepared for a good time. There is room for at least a dozen more on the boat. Chowder, coffee, bait, lines, etc. will be furnished by Captain Haley.

Another group of boys from Boston were entertained at the Association Wednesday. The luncheon was prepared by Miss Bertha Moore assisted by Mrs. Howard Moore and several young ladies who helped to wait on the table. It is a great pleasure for those who have the direct entertaining of these boys to notice the pleasure that it gives them to visit the Association building and enjoy its privileges. We wish that those who have contributed money toward the entertainment of these boys might hear the words of thanks and gratitude which they express. Any Wednesday afternoon we should like to have those interested come over and see the boys enjoying themselves.

New arrivals at the dormitory are Mr. Arthur E. Gillis of Dartmouth, Mr. R. M. Bowman from Washington, D. C., Mr. Harold A. Nelson and Mr. Edw. H. Taylor. There are five vacant rooms at present but more than enough to fill these rooms have already applied for accommodations during the fall and winter months.

Mr. Macpherson, Physical Director, took a group of boys down to L Street for salt water bathing. The party enjoyed a fine swim and a good outing. The swimming pool is reserved for business men after five o'clock during the summer months.

Base Ball Saturday at 3.30.

PECULIAR ACCIDENT

Runaway Train Smashes Coal Shed at West Newton

An unusual accident took place last week Wednesday afternoon at the coal yard of the B. S. Hatch Co. in West Newton.

While the regular West Newton freight of 24 cars was making its usual flying switch into the freight yard, the entire train took the open switch into the coal yard and trestle of the Hatch company. On the track and trestle were two cars in process of unloading and two empty steel cars. The heavy loaded train struck the empty cars first, standing them on end and carrying them along the trestle ripping the monitor roof off the coal shed. One of the two loaded coal cars was carried 140 feet and pushed off the end of the trestle, while the other car was pushed off to one side, ripping off the side of the building as it fell. Five men who were working about these cars had narrow escapes from serious injury while two men and a horse who were working below the trestle were only saved by a miracle. The damage is estimated at about $10,000.

NORUMBEGA—"THE MERRY CHAPERON"

That there is a host of fun in store for the patrons of the open air theatre at Norumbega Park next week, beginning Monday afternoon, July 22nd, and continuing throughout the week with two performances daily, may be well judged when one learns that "The Merry Chaperon" the Mathew Ott musical comedy that holds forth there is headed by an old friend and an able comedian, Bob Ott. Mr. Ott has the happy faculty of making one laugh the minute he steps upon the stage and never fails the audience in keeping the mirth at a bubbling point every minute of the performance. He is one of the few rising comedians that has a personality that gets out over the footlights and meets the audience more than half way. The company associated with Bob Ott in this funniest of plays with music is an exceedingly strong one including Carrie Engel, the accomplished comedienne, George Averhill, an entertainment of more than usual ability, and the Comedy Trio, which adds no little to the pleasing music of the piece. Among the many catchy song numbers are "Society Bear," "You Wonderful Girl," "Only One," "Garden of Love," "Havana," "Dramatic Rag," and "Fiddle-Dee-Dee." The chorus is pretty and truly accomplished.

The recent heat has had no effect upon the attendance at Norumbega Park, for here one is immune from the heat and every facility for a perfect day's outing is provided including, the canoeing and boating on the Charles, the Grape Arbor Cafe, the Zoological Garden, The Casino, the Chalet of Wonders, Rifle Range, Swing Court, Merry-Go-Round, etc.

NEW FIRE TRUCK

The new auto combination truck and chemical wagon costing $5,500 is now practically completed and is expected to arrive in the city sometime this week. The machine is now at the Cambridge repair shop where the finishing touches are being put on.

The auto is constructed along plans suggested by Chief Walter B. Randlett of the Fire Department and is of the latest model, combining all modern methods in fire fighting. The machine will be used at the Chestnut Hill station.

PLAYGROUNDS A SUCCESS

Playground Commission Makes an Encouraging Report on Attendance and Interest

Considering the intense heat last week, all the playgrounds now open for July and August report an increasing number of enthusiastic youngsters ready for work and play every day.

Baseball League

The formation of a Baseball League of Midgets, Intermediates and Seniors is assured. Teams in each are being organized and an inter-playground-schedule will be started as soon as a self-managing organization can be relied upon. The officials must be members of the organization and are elected to the office by the boys. No master, teacher or other playground official will be allowed to umpire these games. The idea is to give the boys an object lesson of what it means to vote for leaders. Much will be gained if our boys learn to play their games without quarrelling, to abide by the decision of their chosen leaders and to take victory or defeat manfully. It should not be necessary for the success of these games that masters or perhaps older boys must needs act as officials. The decision of a playmate—duly elected as umpire by a majority of fellow players—should always find loyal support by all the players.

No Shade on the West Newton Playground

To provide space for younger children and for girls is one of the most important functions of the Playgrounds. The motor-life of the child between 2 and 6 years of age is today especially restricted by lack of space around the home and by lack of proper sense stimulation. A few years ago the streets at least offered comparative safety to these young children for imagination play. The playground is to bring back to these children some of these valuable opportunities without which no child can attain physical or mental powers. But in our climate this work cannot be carried on without protection from the sun. This is lacking on the West Newton Common. Through the generosity of Mr. Bond a temporary playground with sufficient shade has been made available and this lot at the junction of Elm and River streets is now being used for little children.

POLICE NOTES

Following an argument over the erection of a fence between the house of Luigi Carderelli at 10 West street and his next door neighbor, Carderelli was arraigned before Associate Judge Copeland in court, Saturday morning charged with drunkenness and carrying a loaded revolver. On the first charge he was fined $5 and on the latter complaint a fine of $50 was imposed.

The trouble took place on Friday night when Carderelli became somewhat incensed because his neighbor had built the fence. Carderelli strongly disapproved and told his neighbor so in pretty strong terms. The argument became somewhat heated, in fact, noticeable enough to attract the attention of Officer Mills who was some distance away. He came upon the scene to find Carderelli under the influence of liquor with a loaded revolver in his possession. Fearing that the man might use the weapon, he was placed under arrest. Carderelli paid both fines and the revolver was declared confiscated.

Graphophones Needed

Folk-dancing is a most excellent form of exercise and for this reason a most important part of playground activities. It is also very popular with children and girls, and even young women take a keen interest in it. Owing to the lack of shelter buildings where pianos could be used, or owing to the great cost of musicians who could go from playground to playground, an attempt will be made to secure the necessary music for these dances by graphophones. Many fine records are now being manufactured for folk-dancing. The instructors in charge of the playgrounds are now making strong efforts to secure the loan of talking machines. Superintendent Hermann or any member of the Commission will be glad to learn of some citizens of our City who are willing to loan machines for July and August. The purchase money for the necessary records is assured, and if five graphophones can be got many children can be made happy for hours every day.

Parents Can Send Children to the Playgrounds

The supervision of the playgrounds now furnished by the City makes it possible for all the children to enjoy many kinds of vigorous and healthy outdoor activities under safe and sane guidance. Too many youngsters are still roaming about the streets and play in out of the way and dangerous places. The supervisors tend to provide not only physical and moral safety but will stimulate the minds of the children and will help them to form rational habits of recreation. This will encourage hearty cooperation and will develop loyalty and leadership. The child of today needs this stimulation which comes from joyous mingling with other children.

NEWTON MAN AN AUTHOR

Mr. Arthur W. Blakemore of Bennington street, Newton, is one of the authors of a book on the Inheritance Tax Law.

The subject of inheritance taxes is growing daily in importance, and is so woven into our taxing system that its principles will prove permanent.

No general work on the subject has been published for fifteen years. In that time the statutes have substantially changed, but have been in force long enough to receive final construction by the courts.

The book is divided into two parts. The first part treats the subject in the usual text-book form, with full citations of all authorities. The second contains all existing statutes, annotated with their judicial interpretation. To show the application of the early decisions, the earlier statutes referred to are reprinted. All reported opinions have been analyzed with great care, and discussions on disputed points by leading courts are quoted at length.

The book contains every American case, the full text of all existing statutes and of all prior statutes which have been construed by the courts and a full history of the legislation in every state.

Cold Storage

"Why haven't you been out to see us?" inquired Anne of Evelyn, whom she had met downtown by accident.

"If you knew how busy I am you would not ask," replied Evelyn. "With all my office work, I hardly have time to keep neat. I came out today to buy a new gown which I should have bought a month ago. Come with me and we'll take a look at the shop windows."

"Really, I dare not. Windows are fatal to me. If I look I am lost. I don't need a thing and one hates to waste money. I so seldom go anywhere that my gowns last forever. Evelyn, you cannot realize how curiously dull it is to have no occupation."

"If you understood the discomforts of working for a living you would appreciate your blessings better. Lonesome, are you? Why not make friends in the apartment house where you live?"

"Of course, that bit of advice is well meant, Evelyn, but in the circumstances it happens to be absurd."

"I fall to see why. If you were not so diffident—"

"My dear girl, I'm not in the least diffident; I am merely afraid of being frozen to death if I should try to make friends with my neighbors."

"I don't understand what you mean, said Evelyn."

"If that building were a cold storage warehouse," declared Anne, "the social atmosphere could not be more frigid. Mother and I have lived there a year and a half and not a soul out of all these apartments has made our acquaintance."

"Have you called on your neighbors?"

"Of course not. I would not be so forward as to make advances."

"Then it seems to me you are as bad as the others."

"Indeed, I am not—at least, I do not annoy others. Why, the man in the apartment above ours plays his piano at all hours of the night. He does not even make music, but thumps out some monotonous tune which is as dreary as the moaning of a lost soul. Then there is a woman across the hall with a baby that howls morning, noon and night. Mother went in one day and told her that all the child needed was a little peppermint. The woman replied that the baby was not ill, but was just lonesome whenever she was out of its sight."

"Didn't she come to call after that?" asked Evelyn.

"Is that a joke?" inquired Anne. "You cannot laugh me into liking them. There is a horrid old creature in the apartment below ours who knocks on the ceiling with a broom handle every time I run our sewing machine. We are disgusted with the building and mean to move as soon as our lease expires."

"You do not need to wait, because I'll take the lease off your hands as soon as you like. I am going to go to housekeeping with another girl before long and your apartment would suit us exactly. When you get ready to move let me know."

A few weeks later Evelyn received a note from Anne saying that she and her mother were about to take another apartment, so Evelyn called to see about transferring the lease. During the interval she learned Anne's mother had suffered a fall and was confined to her couch with a dislocated hip. During Evelyn's call so many persons dropped in that she had to remain an hour before she could have Anne to herself.

"I thought you said you knew no one in this building," exclaimed Evelyn at last. "I never saw more warm-hearted people. Yet you called this place a cold storage warehouse."

"That was before mother was hurt," explained Anne. "The moment the people heard of our trouble they rushed in to sympathize and tell us their troubles in turn. That woman with the baby has lost the poor little darling and every day she comes in and talks to us about it and tells of the flowers she lays on its grave."

"What of the lost soul above you who thumped the piano?" inquired Evelyn.

"Please forget the cruel remarks I made about him," cried Anne. "He had a dear mother who died, and he played the piano because it reminded him of her. He is not a musician, yet he could not bear to have the instrument stand silent and neglected. When he heard that mother was hurt he came to inquire if the noise of the piano annoyed her and he has been so kind. I don't know how we could have managed without him."

"Considering the beautiful way these people have behaved, I don't see why you want to move," said Evelyn.

"Oh, we have no intention of leaving the building; we shall take a large apartment, which will leave this for you."

"Why?" demanded Evelyn.

"It is a bit too soon to tell," said Anne, blushing, "yet, since you are determined to know, I am to be married. The young man who thumped the piano proved such a dear that mother and I feel we shall be fortunate to have him in the family."

"So the cold storage house was keeping your romance on ice all the while," laughed Evelyn. —Chicago Daily News.

The Misanthrope's Secret

To hear Uncle Joe tell it, Old Scrooge of the firm of Scrooge & Marley, was not in the running with Tom Torrence. Tom had farms and bank stock and township bonds and was just rolling in money. And Uncle Joe said Tom Torrence was too stingy to get married and that he was the closest man in a trade he had known since old Hee was a pup. But I know better.

For when I was a small, small boy, Tom Torrence bought my soul and thereafter I was his loyal slave until his dying day. When that purchase was made Tom Torrence was a young bachelor with laughing blue eyes and a smile that made a small boy feel good all over. And he bought me in this wise:

It was the day I had graduated from pink "slips" into the dear glory of a plaid blouse suit. We were at the county fair and Tom Torrence came up and shook hands with father and mother, and said, "Why, I ain't seen you for six years! Gee whizz! What's this you got, a girl or a boy?" And they all laughed and Tom says, says he, "Lemme take this youngster while you old folks trail around and see the display in the Agricultural Hall." And Tom took me bodily, and in the next hour he bought my soul.

Says he, "I got some money that I don't know what to do with. 'Less I spend it on a small boy." And I said, "Have you enough money to buy a 'Shoo-fly' box? They got candy and breastpins and gold dollars in 'em. But they cost ten cents!" And Tom squinted his eyes and grinned and said, "It's my treat," and bought "Shoo-fly" box, and in it was candy and a brass breastpin, but no gold dollar.

Then Tom said, "Now we'll take in the show!" And we went in and saw the fat woman and the living skeleton and the man with the India rubber skin. And we saw a live alligator and three monkeys and a little couple that were called General and Mrs. Tom Thumb.

Then he said, "Let's go see the nigger minstrels. They sing and dance and double shuffle and pick the banjo. Ever hear a banjo?" I never had. "Is it something like a macordeum?" I asked.

"Like a ma-cordeum?" said Tom. "It's better—a heap better. But you watch out that it don't put the devil in your toes!"

I hung back. The devil was a real personage to me—a personage with horns and big tusks and a cloven foot and he sat on his long tail that had a stinger on the end.

"Aw, come on," said Tom. "I was just foolin'. I meant banjo music is so fine it makes you want to get up and dance."

"So we went in and heard the minstrels. They cracked jokes I could not understand, though Tom laughed at them. But they sang strange, weird melodies, war time and camp meeting melodies. To me, who had never heard chorus singing except the long meter tunes on Sundays when they had preaching in the schoolhouse, it was indescribably fascinating. And the banjo—the next day when I nailed a board for a handle to my toy drum and strung it with mother's best sho strings, mother exclaimed, "For the land sakes!" and then sat down and laughed and said: "That's what comes of letting that boy trail around with Tom Torrence!"

There was a tent where tinny types were made. Only they called them "gams." "Want your picture took?" queried Tom. "Yes," I said, "I never had one took since I's a boy. I got one when I's a little girl and wore dresses."

Then Tom bought me grapes and peaches—ripe, rosy-cheeked, fine smelling peaches, full of juice and flavor. And he bought peanuts—the first I ever tasted. And he asked me what I wanted and I said: "I never tasted bologna sausage. It looks mighty good." So he bought bologna and crackers and they tasted better than the fried chicken and rolls mother had brought in a basket.

And on our way back to the family wagon I tried to express my appreciation and said: "You must be mighty rich, Tom," and the twinkle went out of Tom's eyes and he said: "No; but I would be if I had a little boy like you—who has a ma—like you have!"

But when he turned me over again to my father and mother and mother said: "I know that boy has been a whole lot of bother to you, Tom," Tom laughed and said: "No s're-see mam! I ain't had as much fun since I've been a pup."

That was years and years ago. Tom Torrence grew old and had lands and houses and bank stocks and bonds and was a bank president, and died. Men said he was too stingy to marry and keep a wife. But I know better.

What a singular destiny has been that of this remarkable man! To be regarded in his own age as a classic and in ours as a companion! To receive from his contemporaries that full homage which men of genius have in general received only from posterity: to be more intimately known to posterity than other men are known to his contemporaries.—Thomas B. A COOL TRIP

While the heat has been intense all over the state and Boston has been fairly scorching, hundreds are daily taking advantage of the delightfully cool trip to Provincetown and return on the fast, safe, iron steamship Dorothy Bradford, leaving the Bay Line Wharf, 400 Atlantic Ave., daily at 9 A. M. and Sundays and holidays at 9:30 A. M., this splendid steamer, which easily accommodates 1800 persons, skirts the coast of Massachusetts Bay, while its passengers enjoy the refreshing salt sea breezes, the charming scenery, past islands, forts and bays. Surely there is no better way to pass a summer's day as ample time is given for seeing the sights of the old historic town of Provincetown.

NEW RETAIL MANAGER FOR A. SHUMAN & CO., MR. EDWIN H. WOLF

Mr. Edwin H. Wolf of New York has associated himself with the well-known firm of A. Shuman & Co., as general manager for their entire retail plant. Mr. Wolf served his apprenticeship with Rogers, Peet & Co., New York, starting as a lad and advancing himself from one position to another until five years ago when he opened their 34th Street Store. A culmination of circumstances arising made it possible for Mr. Wolf to resign and accept the position of retail manager for A. Shuman & Co. Mr. Wolf is a thorough clothing man, having spent this entire time in the retail clothing business and has made an exhaustive study of scientific sales management. In the capacity of general manager A. Shuman & Co., Mr. Wolf's responsibilities will be the same as heretofore, although Boston will be a new field for him to work in.

CLAPIN GUARD NOTES

For the first time in years C Company now has a waiting list of men for whom there is now no room. Twenty-five applicants for enlistment and re-enlistment applied for examination Monday evening. Of these, fifteen passed, some of whom will be mustered in this evening and the remaining standing on the waiting list. Major Fred E. Jones, the regimental surgeon, examined the men and had quite an evening's work. Major Meredith, the battalion commander, was an interested spectator at the drill and it must have been a source of satisfaction to him to see the interest taken in recruiting by the men of C Company.

A company shoot was held at the range in Needham last Saturday with a large attendance. Ten shots were fired by each officer and man at the 200 yard range and some had a chance to shoot ten at the 500 yard distance. Corporal Foster was the high man of the day at the 200 with a total of 40.

Privates Keylor and Weir having successfully passed examination for corporal have been assigned to duty. Artificer George B. Wentworth has been nominated by Lieut. Daniels, the company commander, to be a corporal.

Private Henry J. Kelly has been appointed a lance-corporal.

Cooks Mahoney and Hickey are both busy men getting their field equipment in good order for the coming maneuvers.

Q.M. Sergt. Donnelly is another busy man and his work is showing results as the clean olive drab uniforms will show.

Non-commissioned officers school will be held on Friday night of this week at 7:45 P. M.

There will be a drill for the newly recruited men at the armory Friday evening of this week at 7:30 P. M.

RUSSELL-TRUESDELL

The wedding of Miss Eva M. Truesdell, the daughter of Mr. Oscar B. Truesdell of Newtonville and Mr. Frank V. Russell of Washington Park, Newtonville, took place Monday morning at the home of the bride on Washington terrace. The ceremony was performed at ten o'clock by Rev. R. T. Loring, rector of St. John's Church, and was witnessed by relatives and a few intimate friends. The bride was unattended and Mr. John Allison of Newtonville was the best man.

The house was prettily decorated with palms, cut flowers and asparagus vine.

A reception followed, Mr. and Mrs. Russell being assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Truesdell and Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Russell.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell will be at home at 74 Washington Park, Newtonville, after September 15th.

Discredited by a Knife.

An old politician whose tendencies were toward the teachings of prohibitionists tells how he accidentally spoiled the effect of a plea he was making against the liquor traffic before an outdoor audience in the northern part of Indiana. By the time he had made out the notes for his speech he had reached a point of view that boded ill for King Rum, and when he began speaking from them his imagination expanded and his language fairly reeked with firebrands hurled at the traffic. In the midst of it, while paying his special respects to those who helped the traffic along by their lenience toward it, a series of malevolent breezes tried to carry off the loose leaves of his manuscript. To stop the annoyance he opened up his pocketknife and pinned the pages to the pine board before him. He pinned them with such a vigorous jolt that a big corkscrew with which the other end of the knife was equipped popped open and stood up shamelessly before all those temperance people.

"I have always felt," the orator went on to say, "that the impression I made on that crowd was not commensurate with the beauty of my effort."—Indianapolis News.

First Drop Curtain Sign.

It is very seldom nowadays that we catch a glimpse of advertising signs on the drop curtains of any New York production, and yet time was when this method of advertising was a source of revenue to the manager, and curtains were literally covered with signs. It is related that one of the foremost producers along Broadway some twenty-five years ago, while putting on a big musical play, discovered that his funds were running low and he was unable to raise a loan. One of the scenes in the play represented Union square, at that time the first class retail center of New York city. He had an idea. He went to merchants whose places of business were on Union square and proposed to show their stores in his scene and with their signs plainly in sight, which would be a good ad. The suggestion was readily accepted, and the producer got all the money he required for bringing out his play and a great deal more.—New York Telegraph.

Lively Wedding Gifts.

No one ever received a more curious consignment of wedding presents than the famous lion trainer Bidel. "We spent our honeymoon at Lyons," he once told a friend, "and we had some queer presents from the ordinary point of view, as all my friends were anxious to give 'something useful.' Among other gifts were three bon constrictors and five alligators. I shall never forget how annoyed I was and how frightened my wife was when during the night two of the alligators broke out of their boxes in our bedroom and began exploring. I could not find the matches, and my wife and I remained on top of the bed canopy till morning. Luckily my wife did not think of the thing that was worrying me. I was dreadfully afraid that the alligators would wake up the bon constrictors."

Died For His Mate.

There is a tablet in the sailors' home at Melbourne to James Marr. He was a sailor before the mast on the Rip. On July 15, 1873, the Rip was caught in a squall. Marr sat astride of the gaff when a great wave broke over the boat and brought down the mainmast. There was only one chance to save the Rip. That was to cut away the litter. But Marr clung to the broken spar, and to cut away meant to send him overboard to his death. So, looking at him doubtfully, the men hesitated, their axes in their hands. Marr, helpless, pondered. He saw that his death would be the boat's salvation, and he shouted:

"Cut away, mates! Goodbye!" Then he let himself fall into the cold, wild sea.

Making Dolls.

The assembling by Gerwan dollmakers of the different parts of the dolls is often very complicated. The best jointed dolls have stout elastic cord on the inside, to which the movable parts are attached. A special branch of the industry is devoted to the making of dresses and hats. The latest Parisian styles are copied in dressing the larger sized dolls, and the creations turned out compare very favorably in miniature with the original.

THE NORTH POLE

Facts and Fancies Regarding That Well Known Summer Resort

Did Cook or Peary reach the Pole? That is a question asked by thousands. There is a diversity of opinion as to whether either of them did. Some believe Cook reached it. Many don't believe he did. Some have the opinion that Peary got there. Many doubt.

If Cook succeeded in arriving at the Pole in 1908, he is the true discoverer of the much sought for spot.

If Peary arrived at the Pole in 1909 he found a location where Cook had established a claim and planted the Stars and Stripes. But the place, where Cook thought he had found the Pole and drove a stick into the ice, was not there. Or rather, the ice in which he planted his stick had, doubtless drifted hundreds of miles to the south.

Therefore, if Peary arrived at the same location, he found ice but not the same as Cook found. And again, he could not find any thing that Cook left to mark the supposed Pole.

There have been various theories, in the years past about the Polar regions.

Captain John C. Symmes advanced the ridiculous theory that if any one reached the vicinity of the polar region, he would find a hole extending down towards the centre of the earth into which he could sail, perhaps through and emerge at the south Pole. This theory supposed the ocean extended around this hole and into it and by some force, to him unknown, continued in its place—that is the water was circulating from one pole to the other inside as well as outside.

Another theory and a more plausible one, was, that the north polar region was an open sea, neither ice nor snow to any considerable extent, the water so warm ice and snow melted in it.

Whence came this warm water? There were the reasons given. It is a well known fact that there are two ocean currents constantly moving northward—the Gulf stream on the Atlantic side and the Japanese current on the Pacific side. I will here refer particularly to the Atlantic current called the Gulf stream.

This stream starts from its headquarters in the Caribbean Sea. The trade winds sweeping across the Atlantic ocean force a large body of water into that sea. This finds its outlet towards and into the Gulf of Mexico and then, this enormous mass of water passes between Florida and the Bahamas and northward, constituting what is generally known as, and called, the Gulf Stream.

This water is warm from its tropical starting place and carries its warmth high up on its northward journey.

This stream flows nearly parallel to the North American continent, sending off branching currents to the right and left, on its way and carrying a milder temperature to many regions. One branch flows eastward south of the British Islands crossing the Atlantic Ocean.

These two offshoots of the Gulf stream give a climate much warmer than that of New England to many regions farther north.

Another branch flows westward through Davis Strait into Baffin Bay and perhaps (?) polar-ward, along the west coast of Greenland. A larger offshoot flows between Iceland and the European continent, dividing into two streams, one flowing eastward between Spitzbergen and Norway, the other westward directly up towards and into the Arctic Ocean.

It is a well known fact that Columbus based a part of his theory of a western continent on the many waifs, pieces of wood with carvings strange and grotesque and even a dug out canoe that had been cast on the islands near or on the main land of Europe.

Scientific men, because of this upflow or northward moving streams of water, have decided that there must be a corresponding downflow, otherwise the Arctic Ocean would become so full the earth would capsize from its enormous increase of weight and the Atlantic and Pacific would be depleted.

Whalers and explorers have found icebergs and ice floes generally drifting south. This shows conclusively that there are ocean streams flowing from the north. Now the question arises, "How does that water get to the Arctic Ocean after the investigators lose sight of its northward moving?"

The answer to this question has been solved in this way. They have decided that the warm, northward moving river reversing the ordinary course, sinks down or is forced down beneath the southward moving water, and continues on its northward way beneath the surface water flowing south.

One proof of this theory is the fact that in places where observations have been made where water and icebergs were observed moving south, other icebergs were seen moving against this current and advancing northward.

These conflicting and contrary movements were long and carefully studied by scientific men.

It is a well known fact that an iceberg floats with only about one ninth of its height above the water. Icebergs are melted by the sun heat and falling rain, above the water line. Below, by the ocean. If the water is warmer than the air, the iceberg melts faster below the water line.

Sometimes icebergs topple over. Why? Because the legs of the iceberg have melted more rapidly than the part above—the equilibrium is lost and over they tumble. Ships have sometimes been engulfed, crushed and sunk by this means.

If the theory—that the warmer current flows beneath the colder, what scientific reason can be given for it? It is that the upper or colder stream is the more powerful and swifter and overrides the lower and warmer. However we may reason about it, there is no doubt there is an upward flow of water to replace that which comes down from the north. If I have made this clear it is easily seen that there are streams of water running to the north pole and flowing southward all the time.

Did these scientific explorers find solid land at the place they called the Pole? From all the records they have given to the public they did not. Did they find an open polar sea?

The history of their advance to the positions where they considered the pole ought to be proved there was no open sea. Thus two of the old scientific theories have been exploded and proved untrue. Capt. Simmes' hollow earth theory is too absurd to be considered for a moment.

Dr. Cook and Commander Peary, in their description of their advance to the Pole, speak of icebergs and ice floes. They ascribe their very rapid advance as they neared the Pole to the smooth ice over an unbroken sea. Let us study the iceberg a little before we accept the statement that icebergs were seen and encountered there.

What are icebergs and where are they formed?

The beginning of the iceberg is in high, mountainous regions, like the Alps or the Alaskan mountains. The snow falls on the tops and sides and in the valleys and becomes a moving mass of snow and ice, pressing down into the lower lands and toward the ocean. By this continuous additions advances slowly down the valley, thawing and freezing as it moves along. The snow changes in general character, more like ice, the particles become rounded like the roe of fish and by this means is enabled to move over uneven surfaces with ease.

This river of snow and ice presses toward the valley and if the valley is open to the ocean it descends to the water and advances out on it. The pressure from behind forces it out farther and farther on the water, the front gently inclining downward.

It must be remembered that this is called a glacier and is frozen fresh water. Ice will float on fresh water and fresh water ice—glacial ice will float more readily than salt water ice.

This glacial ice is forced out on the ocean till the floating capacity becomes so great that the front floats upward—breaks off—severing its connection with the glacial streams and floats away on an iceberg. Thus icebergs are formed.

In order to produce the iceberg, the snow and rain must fall on a mountainous region and gradually move, a river of ice and snow to the ocean. Icebergs cannot be formed on the ocean. Ice floes—that is ice formed by the freezing of the salt water can never become an iceberg.

Taking into consideration the vast expanse of space in the Arctic region, near the north pole, entirely free from land it is impossible for icebergs to be found. Therefore, if our explorers saw icebergs near, what they decided to be the position of the pole, they made a vast mistake. No icebergs could be found there. But they did find an abundance of salt water ice. And the nearer they approached the situation of the pole the smoother they found the ice and the more rapid was their advance.

Now, both Cook and Peary tell of icebergs which looked very suspicious, that they were not near the pole, at least when they saw them. Then, again they made their most rapid advance the nearer the pole they got, because of smoother ice and easier walking and sledding. This proves the opinion that they were nearing the pole. Dr. Cook says he advanced twenty-seven miles some days. Commander Peary says he made thirty-five miles a day. Were either of these men encumbered by thick Arctic clothes of fur which would impede walking and the sleds loaded with provisions and instruments drawn by dogs must have made the advance slow, laborious and wearisome. These men were tired, weary, worn out, exhausted and underfed. With all these disadvantages it is possible to travel the number of miles a day they said they did?

And now comes the Norwegian Commander who made an effort to reach the South Pole. He feels sure that he succeeded and the scientific world gives him credit of success. Certainly his description of his journey presents strong probabilities that he is right. He did not find an open sea, nor ice floes but high land and mountains and there is more reason for finding and locating the sought for spot and that the exact polar place is not continually moving north.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE—Next week will mark the fourth and positively last week of "The Meistersingers Camping Out" at B. F. Keith's Theatre. This mammoth summer attraction has created a genuine future, and during the month the wonderful single of the combined Harvard, Schubert and Weber Male Quartettes, and the beautiful stage setting built by Mr. Keith for their vaudeville debut, have been the talk of all New England. For the last week of their remarkably successful engagement, a splendid program of popular and semi-operative airs has been selected, including several fine solos. This will be positively the last opportunity that will be given to the people of New England to hear the World's greatest organization of male voices, and the man who has not already heard this wonderful collection of master singers should lose any time in visiting the "Amusement Centre of Boston" and enjoying this great summer feature. "The Meistersingers" will be surrounded by a remarkable bill of all-star features. Kate Ellmore and Sam Williams will make their first appearance in their newest and latest fun travesty, "The Hunter and Hunter-ess," which gives Miss Ellmore an opportunity to introduce another one of her inimitable character creations. Armstrong and Ford is another clever team of new-comers, two comedians who bring something really original. Claude M. Roode, the wonderful aerial artist and tight wire expert, will return after a long absence, and other big features will be Alfredo, the Italian violinist; the Cycling Brunettes, most wonderful of wheelmen; and Williams and Segal, two dandy dancers.

Mr. Roosevelt, then is the choice of only 37 per cent of the Republicans in the States where he is strongest and this percentage is misleading because it is an undisputed fact that thousands and thousands of Democrats voted for him in these primaries. He is the choice of less than one-third of the Republicans in the States where he is strongest, less than 20 per cent of the Republicans of the whole country, and less than 10 per cent of the total number of voters.

MR. KELLY DEAD

Mr. Edward S. Kelley, a former resident of West Newton, died of pneumonia at Worcester last Saturday after a short illness.

He was born at Franklin, N. H., December 4, 1847, and came to Boston when a young man and learned the drug business, in which he continued all his life.

He was a member of one of the earliest classes in the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy, and was for seven years with T. Metcalf & Co.

About 1870 he opened on Boylston street the first drug store in the then newly developed Back Bay district, and carried it on about thirty years, at first alone and later with Mr. William C. Durkee under the firm name of Kelley & Durkee.

In 1893 he moved to West Newton, living about ten years on Highland avenue. For the last five years he had been connected with Brewer & Co. of Worcester.

Mr. Kelley was married in 1872 to Miss Laura J. Clapp, who died in 1900. He leaves two children, Elizabeth, wife of Raymond S. Fosgate of Shrewsbury, and Dr. Jacob Sleeper Kelley of Providence.

Funeral services were held at Worcester on Monday and the burial was at Franklin, N. H.

Dick: "Tom, how would you reform a lamp that smokes and goes out nights?" Tom: "Put it in the room with an upright piano, of course."

WILLIAM H. TAFT

EDITORIAL

Governor Foss said he wouldn't and now says he will, accept a third term as governor—if he can get it.
His attitude on this matter is characteristic and justifies the statement attributed to one of his former friends, that he is "the personification of procrastination and vacillation."

Senator Crane shows his character
and independence by voting in favor of Lorimer and his action makes some of us wonder if the popular impression of the matter is correct.

With a record of 71 arrests and a total of fines of $590 for violation of the automobile law during June, the expense of $250 for a motor cycle seemed a fairly good investment.

An attendance of about 1700 in a little over four days at the Nonantum playground shows that supervised play has a mission and a future in this city.

I wonder what former president Roosevelt would have said if the Senate had told him to mind his own business.

NEW-FANGLED SCHOOLS

(The Candlestick.)
They taught him how to hemstitch
and they taught him how to sing.
And how to make a basket out of variegated string.
And how to fold a paper so he wouldn't hurt his thumb
They taught a lot to Bertie but he couldn't do a sum.

They taught him how to mold the head of Hercules in clay.
And how to tell the difference 'twixt
the bluebird and the jay.
And how to sketch a horse in a lit-
But strangely they forgot to teach him
how to spell his name.

Now, Bertie's pa was cranky, and he went one day to find What 'twas they did that made his son so backward in the mind
"I don't want Bertie wrecked," he cried, his temper far from cool,
"I want him educated!" so he took him out of school.

A CURIOUS MIXUP

A small fire was discovered early yesterday morning in the house of Miss Jessie M. Fisher on Church street, Newton. Miss Fisher called the fire department and told them
of the matter, but in the excitement
they received the impression that it was Dr. Fisher's house in West Newton and rang in box 331. Miss Fisher waited twenty minutes and then called again, and a still alarm was sent into No. 1 engine at Newton.
They responded promptly, but the fire had made such headway that they pulled in box 16, but the damage
amounted to several hundred dollars in consequence of the delay. It is curious to note that this fire caused two telephone calls, two bells and one still alarm.

PLAQUE SPREAD BY CAMEL

Carcass of Dead Beast Left Exposed Caused Slight Outbreak in Russia.

The Paris Medical publishes some observations which throw an important light on the cases of plague which occurred in Russia some time ago. As far back as 1907 Dr. Klodnitzky noticed in the Caspian Sea, a slight outbreak of plague. Three women were attacked, and he was able to establish, after inquiry, that they had all three been engaged in handling the carcass of a camel which had died from some unknown cause. Later, in April, 1911, plague appeared in a little place in the district of Kamysch-Samara. Six persons were attacked with plague,
and all had eaten of a camel that had died.

At the end of September, in the same year, another camel in the district died, and then an autopsy was made. There were no clear indications of any injuries to account for death, but in the viscera the doctor found a bacillus identical with that of Yersin, the cultures of which reproduced plague in animals which were inoculated. Toward the end of the same month other human beings were attacked, and the outbreak coincided with the death of a camel, and tests with the blood produced a typical plague bacillus. Dr. Klodnitzky has no doubt that the cases of plague in the human beings owed their origin
to eating the flesh of plague-stricken camels, and he suggests that the camels in question had been eating herbage which had become infected by camels suffering from the disease.

EVER SEE A STOUT POSTMAN?

In London, for instance, Carriers
Walk Over Sixteen Miles Carrying Forty Pounds.

Has it ever struck you why a stout postman is such a rarity? The question is worth attention.

A postman who in a busy London residential district walks from fourteen to sixteen miles a day, starts out in the morning with mails weighing something like eighty pounds. As his letters and packages are distributed, the weight of his bag, of course,
grows less, so that the average weight
he carries during his trip is forty pounds. A pint of water weighs a pound. A 10-quart pail weighs about twenty pounds, and the average weight the postman carries is equal to two of these. If you want to know why postmen are thin, try a 15-mile walk with a 10-quart pail of water in each hand.

The driver of a brewery wagon, on the other hand, is usually fat. The reason is that he sits on the seat of his dray most of the day, and often consumes large quantities of liquid.
Police men, too, often grow fat
through standing about on their beats.
—Answers, London.

Surely Simple Enough.

"Jersey justice" is famed the country over, and one of the latest examples proves that it is indeed simple enough. In a city not a thousand miles from New York the Sunday law with regard to amusements is supposed to be strictly enforced. It was noticed recently, however, that a wealthy and influential brewer who was the principal owner of a house not noted for giving classic entertainments was permitted to present unmolested "sacred concerts," which consisted principally of high kicking and stale jokes. A "jail manager, learning of this went to the police commissioner with his tale of woe. That functionary, leaning his chin on his hand, regarded the theatrical man attentively for a moment, and then said: "You see, it's this way.
He can give his performance on Sunday and you can't. Now, you understand the law, don't you?" And who could fail to comprehend such a simple explanation?—New York Tribune.

Patrolman's Brave Act.

A New York patrolman of the East 126th street station, sent thrills up and down the spines of several hundred persons in Third avenue the other afternoon when he leaped for the head of a runaway horse, missed the bridle, fell sprawling, and then picked himself up in time to get a grab at the end of the flying wagon. Such was the speed at which the outfit was moving that the policeman, to the admiration of onlookers, was hoisted in to the wagon. He found it impossible to stop the horse, but calmly sat in the driver's seat and waited until the animal was halted by a string of street cars at 138th street. The horse had run more than three miles.

Sought to Swallow Will.

A curious scene occurred recently in a lawyer's office at Castanet, near Toulouse, France. The lawyer was reading the will of a landowner who recently died, in the presence of the relatives of the deceased. The deceased left practically his whole estate to his widow, and this fact so infuriated a cousin that he suddenly jumped up, snatched the will from the lawyer's hands, tore it into fragments
and, crumpling them into his mouth, endeavored to swallow them. He was seized by the throat and finally forced to disgorge the bits of paper, which were afterwards gummed together.

Literati.

"Did you get a plain cook as I asked you, my dear?"
"I couldn't have gotten one much plainer, my love."

Complex Problem

In a low rocker before the fire sat
the doctor's wife darning stockings.
Somewhere back in the room sat the doctor, reading his newspaper.

The doctor's wife addressed the fire, but the doctor answered. He knew it was useless to try to read
when his wife had something on her mind.

"I wonder what's going to become
of us," said the doctor's wife.
"Of whom?" asked the doctor.
"Of us Americans."

"What's the matter now?" questioned the doctor.

"I'm wondering where our American housekeepers are coming from.
This afternoon, just as I passed a big office building, three girls came out and walked ahead of me. You should have seen how they were dressed and how they acted."

"Young girls?"
"Of course."

"Well, how were they dressed?"
"You know, it was the usual way—
hair puffed out, short skirts, low necks. I don't object to all of that.
You don't want them to dress like back numbers. But you should have seen their shoes and stockings."

"Don't I know? You needn't tel me about the astonishing lack of sense that some women display."

"And men, too?"
"Oh, well, men, too, I suppose. But you started the conversation about girls."

"Yes, I was going to tell you. Those three girls were dressed as thin as could be. Not one of them had on a wrap, and you know how cold and damp it's been today. But that wasn't the worst. Two had on velvet shoes and the other girl had on satin ones
that were all run down at the heel and the satin torn. All of the three had on such short skirts that you could see their thin, filmy silk stockings. In fact, I thought one had black and white stockings till I noticed that the white spots were place-where the stitches had given out."

"Well, what about all that?"
"I walked back of them to the corner of the next street. They crossed the muddy, dirty pavement, and know they must have got their feet
wet. I watched them for a few minutes and saw them go into a cheap
ice cream parlor, and then—"

"And then what?"
"Well, I've been thinking. How can such girls keep house and have homes that give a man a chance to make something of himself?"

"They can't."

"Then what's going to become of us Americans?"

"Ask the university professors. I'm only a doctor."

"Oh, I know what the university professors say. They tell you that our hope lies in the immigrants, the people from the country, and all that.
But, ten to one, these were daughters of immigrants or country girls themselves."

"Do you know, madam, that I sat down here to read my newspaper?"
"Yes, I know. But I'm thinking
Anyway, I didn't ask you to answer
You don't have to answer if you don't want to. You see, I don't believe it darning and mending as much as my mother did. We don't have to. Times are different and things don't have to last so long; but girls should be taught to take care of things to a reasonable extent."

The man laid down his newspaper
"I'm surprised at you," he said.
"Why?"

"Don't you know that the majority of people are abnormal?"
"I really never thought about that.
Maybe you're right. People are kind of crazy nowadays, I believe. It's very unhygienic to dress warm and comfortable when the weather's cold, and women surely are crazy about their hats and shoes—from their heads to their feet."

"I tell you it's a fact," said the doctor. "I'm not joking. Don't I see it in my business every day?"

"I suppose you do. Doctors ought to understand people, if anybody does.
But if we think most persons are at normal, what are we?"

"Don't know."

"I think we're normal."

"Maybe."

"Then if everybody else is abnormal and we are the only ones who are normal, I suppose all the others think we're crazy."

"Maybe we are."

"Well," said the doctor's wife, slowly, after thinking it over, "you may be, but I know I'm not."—Chicago

Dangerous Reptiles.

Contrary to the belief of most people, only two native snakes, rattlesnakes and copperheads, are capable of inflicting serious injury to mankind
even if they would, and as the habitats of these two are rocky, mountainous woodlands, it is seldom that there is the slightest danger of harm
from meeting any of our other native snakes.

"You may be president some day,

"Great Scott!" replied the sadly flippant youth; "you're not trying to pick dark horses that far ahead, are you?"

She is intending to spend the remainder of the summer with her daughter, Mrs. A. H. Park, at her summer home, at Meganasett, Mass.

BRILLIANT RECEPTION

A noteworthy social event was the reception on Thursday of last week given by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Taft Haywood at their handsome residence in Franklin. Mrs. Haywood, who is the niece of Mrs. Sarah H. Estlinbrook of Park street is very prominent in social circles and guests numbering four hundred were present from New York, Boston, Newton, Cambridge, Winchester, Norwood, Franklin, Milford, Hopedale and Woonsocket. The Haywood residence with its spacious grounds were magnificently decorated for the occasion and presented a most brilliant scene a thousand Japanese lanterns lighted with electric bulbs being festooned throughout the grounds, and the beautiful Italian garden at the rear, was also lighted in the same way. The interior decorations were most attractive, the color scheme of each room being carried out in the flowers. The staircase had masses of pink rambler roses on the sides, with a huge bank of them on the first landing. A profusion of Killarney roses were used in charming arrangement in the living room and the orchestra was placed in an alcove of English ivy. In the dining-room where an elaborate menu was served, Taft roses were effectively arranged in a large centerpiece on the table. The ball room on the third floor was decorated like a hanging garden with baskets of rambler roses, and clusters of pink snap-dragon and gladioli with willow for the green. In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Taft Haywood, Mrs. William Haywood, and Miss Evelyn M. Wires. Mrs. Haywood wore an exquisite gown of rich black lace over white with blue satin trimmings and a corsage bouquet of Jacqueminot roses and a diamond necklace. A large number of the guests arrived by motor and refreshments were served to more than one hundred chauffeurs in the garage on the estate.

HEAVY RAINFALL

The rain of yesterday filled a long-felt want and incidentally helped out our water supply. The gage showed that 1.75 inches fell.

REAL ESTATE

Alvord Bros. have sold for William H. Lincoln to Dr. D. Crosby Greene, Jr., nearly seven acres of land on the southerly side of Dudley road in the Oak Hill section of Newton Centre. This parcel adjoins the tract purchased about a year ago through the same office, on which Dr. Greene has erected a very fine residence for his own occupancy.

Alvord Bros. have also sold for W. D. Hoffman to George Q. Hill estate No. 21 Saxon terrace, Newton Highlands, and 9000 feet of land, for occupancy, the whole assessed for $7500, of which $6500 is on the house and $1000 on the land.

Leases:—$5 Langley road for A. D. Chaffin to Prof. T. J. Bradley; 20 Ripley terrace to W. A. Chandler.

Gilbert Always Remembered.

This Gilbert story re-lives me from an old Harrowian, says a writer in the Manchester Guardian. In 1872 the people of the town got up theatricals to raise funds for a hospital. Dr. Butler, the head master, said he would not allow the school to go unless the pieces were first submitted to him. One was Gilbert's "Palace of Truth." In it is a passage in which the hero says to the heroine, "Meet me at 9 o'clock tonight outside the garden gate." Dr. Butler retorted this and substituted, "Meet me at 3 o'clock this afternoon." This seemed to him more decorous. Some years after Gilbert was invited to the Harrow speeches. In reply to the toast of his health he said, "I am very much interested in visiting Harrow, for as far as I know it is the only place in the world where a line of mine has ever been condemned as improper." Great consternation prevailed—all the greater because no one except the speaker and one other person, who was just leaving Harrow in 1872, knew what he meant. It was not Gilbert's way to forget these things.

Somewhat Absentminded.

Some amusing glimpses of the discoverer of chloroform are given in the "Recollections of Lady Priestly," wife of Simpson's assistant at the time of the discovery. "The professor," she writes, "used to make his experiments with chloroform on us girls, and with some of the liquid just poured on a handkerchief would have half a dozen of us lying about in various stages of sleep. Our mother feared nothing and was only too delighted to sacrifice, if unavoidable, a daughter or two to science! . . . He was extremely absentminded. I remember once hanging at his house when he had just arrived from some antiquarian expedition. The butler, who had been unpacking his things, came in and said confidentially, 'Doctor, you have left all your fannal vests behind! 'Ab! Oh!' replied Stimpson, feeling himself all over. 'I've got them all on.'"—Pall Mall Gazette.

Ooping the Baby.

"At the first sign of an attempt to standardize and sterilize the babies," says Ellis Parker Butler in Success Magazine, "I organized the Fond Fathers' Oop-de-baby Association of America. For thousands of years fathers have been permitted to oop-de-baby unrestrained, and this right was one of the first rights attacked by the advocates of the automatic baby. I considered it a double blow at the baby and at the father and resented it as such. If a father may not oop his own baby, what is the world coming to? Ooping a baby is a father's greatest pleasure. It is the act of grasping the baby under the arms, tossing the baby into the air and catching it on its down trip, while the words "Oop-de-baby!" are repeated at each toss. This is repeated until the baby is hysterical or drops on the floor by accident. It is then handed to its mother."

Admission to West Point.

A candidate for the Military academy at West Point must first get the indorsement of the senator or congressman from his district. The question of appointment is generally settled in each district by competitive examination, the representative in congress appointing the boy who obtains the highest marks. Once the candidate has passed this competitive examination and received the appointment to the academy he must pass both a mental and physical examination at the hands of the army officers assigned to duty at the West Point institution. All appointees must be between seventeen and twenty-two years old, free from any infirmity which might render them unfit for military service and be able to pass an examination in English grammar, English composition, English literature, algebra through quadratic equations, plane geometry, descriptive geography and the elements of physical geography, United States history and the outlines of general history.

Ingenious Old Jars.

From time to time fresh illustrations are afforded as to the ancients' ingenuity, with special reference to what are termed the "lost arts."

Recently it has been shown that the old Peruvians must have understood the laws of atmospheric pressure in order to construct the curious jars and vases they left. One of these pieces of pottery was ornamented with the figures of two monkeys, and when water was poured into or out of the vessel sounds like the screeching of monkeys were heard. Another similar vessel has the figure of a bird that uttered appropriate notes; another was ornamented with a cat that mewed and another with snakes that hissed. An ingenious water jar bore the form of an aged woman on whose cheeks tears were seen to trickle, while wobs were heard when water was poured from the jar.—New York Tribune.

Malvina Moves

Malvina sighed and arose from her typewriter. "I might have known that inspiration for love stories would flee from mountain boarding houses," she told herself as she swept a hand across her wide, intelligent eyes.

From the room below which was called parlor came the refrain of "Oh You Beautiful Dadd!" then, "Every Little Movement." The tone from the piano itself was like the jangle of many discordant tins, but the music—

Malvina stopped her ears, then, with quick movements slipped into her white jersey and out into the cool mountain air. Her nerves were in dire need of calm and quiet.

She walked on with lightened heart. The pungent odor of balsam and the cool breezes from the lake soothed her.

She approached a small camp with eager steps. How had this jewel in the forest escaped her before?

The young author did not stop to realize that this was her first venture into the depths of the woods. And with the writer's longing for seclusion Malvina pictured herself ensconced in that picturesque camp. She felt that all of her budding plot would burst into full bloom and that her name would appear in many of the magazines. Even under the trying position of living in boarding houses Malvina's work had found favor with two or three editors. James Blake of the Comet had been especially attracted to her stories. She hoped, before long to meet him. He had been a great help to her.

The girl's imaginings had brought her to the door of the camp. Her eyes opened wide in surprise. The place was open at doors and windows and was apparently without an inhabitant. Malvina's heart quickened its beat. Perhaps she could run away from the boarding house with her little typewriter and work here in this wonder house.

Inside all was rough, but not without a sense of the artistic. Malvina came to the quick conclusion that a man who was fond of hunting owned the camp and that he was there only during the hunting season.

With joyous feet she hurried back to the boarding house and from there to the village store. It was imperative to Malvina that when writing she have pink flowered curtains and a pink kimono. The latter she already had. The pink curtains which she would tack up in the camp must be purchased at

EFFECTS OF TOBACCO

Interesting Talk to Growing Boys by Mr. William Macpherson

The following article on Tobacco has recently been given as a talk by Mr. William Macpherson, physical director of the Newton Y. M. C. A., before boys' clubs and similar organizations.

The alarming increase in the use of tobacco by the boys and adults in this country is the cause for a great many articles being written concerning this drug especially its physiological effects on the growing organism, through smoking, chewing and snuffing.

It might be interesting to know something of the history of this plant. Tobacco originally came to the rest of the world from America. In November 1492, a party sent out by Columbus to explore Cuba reported that the natives perfumed themselves with certain herbs which they carried along with them. The habit of snuff taking was observed by Ramon Pene, a Franciscan, who was with Columbus on his second voyage (1494-1496), and the practice of chewing was first seen by the Spaniards on the coast of South America in 1502. Smoking was a universal usage among the Indians especially bound up in the most significant and solemn tribal ceremonies. Tobacco was not the original name of this plant, it got this name from an instrument used in the smoking of it by the natives of San Domingo. This was observed by Oviedo in 1535. The instrument was shaped like a letter Y; the two stems were put into the nose and the other end put into the smoke of the burning. In this way the smoke was drawn thru the nostrils.

The tobacco plant was first brought to Europe in 1558 by Francisco Fernandez, a physician, who had been sent by Phillip II of Spain to investigate the products of Mexico. Jean Nicot sent seeds to Catherine De Medici and for this service his name has been commemorated in the scientific name of Nicotiano.

At first this plant was supposed to contain miraculous healing powers and such names as "Divine Tobacco," "Herba Panacea" and "Our Holy Herb Nicotian" were conferred on it.

The habit of smoking was initiated and spread by English example. Ralph Lane, the first Governor of Virginia, and Sir Francis Drake brought to England after a trip to America the implements for smoking. Lane is credited with being the first English smoker. These implements were handed over to Raleigh and through the influence of such men the habit became firmly rooted in spite of great opposition from statesmen, clergy, imprisonment, and severe punishment.

The chemical composition of tobacco is as follows:

	Unfermented	Fermented
Water	23.50%	23.40%
Ash	14.89	15.27
Nicotine	2.50	1.79
Nitric Acid	1.89	1.97
Ammonia	0.67	0.71
Nit. Matters	12.19	13.31
Fibre	7.90	8.78
Starch	3.20	3.36
Nitrogen, free	29.37	27.99
Ether extract	3.87	3.42

Encyclo. Britt. says this of Nicotine: "It is a colourless oil, which boils at 247 degrees and when pure is almost odourless. It has a sharp burning taste, and is very poisonous. It dissolves readily in water and rapidly undergoes oxidation on exposure to air."

Let us begin at the bottom. Does it do anyone any physical good? Arguments in favor of tobacco for any physical reason are baseless. It does not aid digestion, preserve the teeth or disinfect. The only good that can come from tobacco is mental satisfaction. In all my inquiries from smokers including many physicians that is the only virtue that I have learned that it has. It gives one something to do when bored and this is practically sums up the agreeable results of tobacco. On the other hand the injurious effects of tobacco on you boys are very real and apparent and not delayed.

Everyone knows who has tried the first smoke or chew makes you feel sick, if this continued you would not prolong the use of this poison. But one must look for symptoms of slow poisoning. The popular belief that tobacco stunts the growth is supported by the fact that non-smokers and smokers were observed for a period of four years at Amherst College and nine years at Yale University with the following result. That those who do not smoke grow in height 24% more than those who do, and what is more startling non-smokers grew in lung capacity 76% more. Records at Yale show for a period of nine years that the smokers averaged 15 months older than the non-smokers yet they were shorter and of less lung capacity.

Every athlete knows that to smoke injures his chances to win, that his wind is not so good, and that his heart action not so strong. It also affects the precision of eye and hand. The moderate smoker is injured just as the moderate drinker is. All poisons comparatively harmless such as lead, mercury, and arsenic, when taken in repeated small doses produce a harmful effect. Just what effect the use of tobacco engenders we cannot absolutely know, but all physicians are agreed that it absolutely harmful to the growing organism, why it should be good to the matured person they have yet to explain.

There seems to be no question that smoke irritates the mucous membrane of the Bronchial tubes and renders them more susceptible to infection, and that it irritates the mucous membrane of the nose and throat. It would therefore seem fair to state that the man who does not use tobacco is less susceptible to disease and contagion, and recovers more quickly from a serious illness or operation. From this we should expect to find that tobacco shows most in later life, when vitality is ebbing and the machinery of the body is beginning to wear. It is in his middle age that a man begins to feel the harm. In short, though we know only the precise or immediate effect of nicotine and only some of the morbid processes which excessive smoking may produce it is likely that the worst aspect of tobacco is something that we do not know very much about, or the tendencies it possesses to reduce a man's general vigor.

The dominant characteristic of tobacco is the fact that it heightens blood-pressure. The irritant action by which it does this sometimes leads to still more harmful results. Its second action is narcotic. It lessens the connection between nerve-centers and the outside world. These two actions account for all the good and all the bad effects of tobacco. As a narcotic, it temporarily abolishes anxiety and discomfort by making the smoker care less about what is happening to him. But it is a well-known law of medicine that all the drugs which in the beginning lessen nerve-action increase it in the end. Thus smoking finally causes apprehension, hyper-excitability, and muscular unrest. Here this inevitable law seems to give contradictory results. Every physician knows that an enormous amount of insomnia is relieved by smoking, even if it is at the expense of laziness the next day; at the same time every physician knows that most

NEWTON BANK CLAIM

Senator Lodge Attempts to Revive Old Matter

A bill has been introduced by Senator Lodge in the U. S. Senate to reimburse the First National Bank of Newton $18,797.15 lost in interest. It is desired to lay the matter before the court of claims for adjustment.

The claim is an old one, which in the years gone by has often been before Congress and the departments. It is now brought to Senator Lodge's attention by E. B. Bishop, whose father, the late Judge Robert R. Bishop, and the late William Gaston sought in vain for reparation from the government.

The Newton bank, as pointed out in a letter by Mr. Bishop, last the money originally by the action of its cashier in depositing bank funds with the sub-treasury at Boston to cover the defalcation of two men. A receipt was given him by the cashier of the Boston sub-treasury in his official capacity with an agreement to return the money and securities, so deposited, the next morning.

But the defalcation was discovered, and the sub-treasury refused to surrender the property of the Newton bank. Most of it was returned, however, after a long period, but by a peculiar complication, interest the government collected on certain bonds belonging to the bank was not turned over.

DR. FIELD DEAD

Word has been received from Los Angeles, Cal., of the death, in that city on Thursday, July 10, of Dr. Henry M. Field, at the age of 74 years.

Dr. Field was a well known resident of Newton twenty-five years and more ago, living for many years at the corner of Franklin and Eldredge streets. He removed to Pasadena, Cal., about twenty-five years ago and was quite prominent in that city. He was a deacon in the North Congregational Church and took an active interest in church affairs. About five years ago he moved to Los Angeles, where he made his home with his only son, Eliot W. Field. He was professor emeritus of therapeutics at Dartmouth College.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE—Theodore Friebus, the most popular heavy man who ever appeared in stock in Boston, who is known to thousands of theatre-goers all over New England through his long association with the Boston Theatre and Castle square stock companies. Mr. Friebus has just closed a highly successful season at the Academy of Music in New York City, and has not appeared in Boston for three years, since he presented "The Fight in The Lighthouse" at B. F. Keith's. For his second vaudeville appearance Mr. Friebus has chosen a vehicle of an entirely different type, a bright farce comedy, bearing the title of "Peter Pecker's Predecessor." This sketch is the work of Rev. John Snyder, known to playgoers all over America as the author of "As Ye Sow." Aside from the return of Mr. Friebus, the week will also be notable for the first appearance in Boston of Kate Ellmore and Sam Williams in their new travesty, "The Hunter and the Huntress." This is one of the funniest characters Miss Ellmore ever created, and introduces her in a new light to vaudeville patrons. Other splendid features of a great summer show will be the Four Regals, in their spectacular novelty, "The Armors;" Halligan and Sykes, the two newcomers with an original specialty; Adonis and his Dog, a beautiful posing and contortionist novelty; Armstrong and Lawrence, another new pair of entertainers, Lavine-Climaron Trio in a grotesque comedy act; Grace Edmond, a remarkably pretty girl, who sings a number of catchy songs; and Shreck and Percival, knockabout comedians.

MORE FINES

A Few More Automobilists in the Police Court.

Dr. Alden R. Newhall of Holliston was arraigned in the Police Court Tuesday morning on the charge of driving his automobile at an excessive rate of speed along the Commonwealth avenue boulevard, and a fine of $15 was imposed by Judge Copeland, which he appealed. The defendant was summoned into court on complaint of motorcycle patrolman Judson J. Sartwell, who trailed along behind the defendant's automobile and at times he stated was going along at the rate of 47 miles an hour. Patrolman Mahoney also testified that Dr. Newhall drove past Walnut street, which is one of the most dangerous crossings in the city, at a rate of speed of 35 miles an hour, and did not sound his horn. Dr. Newhall testified that he was in a hurry to get home on account of a sick patient, and although he did not think he was going at the speed the officer gave, he knew that he was going along at a fairly good speed. He was held in $300 bonds for his appearance before the Superior Court.

George T. Parachos of Beacon street, Boston, was fined $20 Wednesday for overspeeding along the Commonwealth avenue Boulevard. He appealed and furnished $100 cash bond for his appearance before the Superior Court. T. Vernon Willey of South Barre, summoned into court on the charge of not slowing down and giving a timely signal when approaching an intersecting way, was found guilty and a fine of $15, which he paid, was imposed by the court.

The charge of assault and battery against John Dillingham was placed on file Wednesday morning by Judge Copeland, but the court ordered him to pay the costs, amounting to $4.80. Dillingham is employed as a hostler in the roundhouse at Riverside, and it is alleged threw a piece of coal at another employe, inflicting a cut on the face.

Edward F. Young, formerly of this city, was arrested Tuesday by Inspector Richard Goode at Manchester, N. H., on the charge of desertion and abandonment of his 18-year-old wife. When arraigned in court he told the court that he had completed arrangements, whereby his wife was to remove to Manchester and the couple were going housekeeping there. Judge Copeland continued the case until Oct. 12, and in the meantime he must pay his wife the sum of $4 weekly for her support.

MORGAN—LEAVITT

The wedding of Miss Sarah Elizabeth Leavitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Leavitt of Pearl street, Newton, and Mr. Frederick W. Morgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Morgan of 417 Centre street, occurred last Saturday evening. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Newell C. Maynard of Peabody.

GOOD WORK

Boston Boys Royally Entertained at Newton Y. M. C. A.

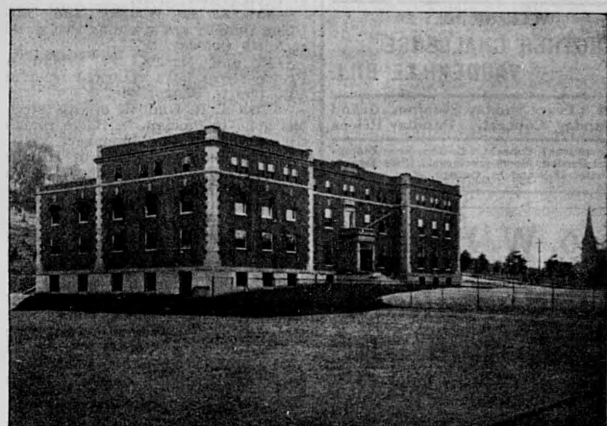

The Fresh Air Fund established this year at the Newton Y. M. C. A. for the purpose of furnishing a day's outing to boys from the city of Boston has thus far proved a great success.

It was hoped to raise $100 thru personal requests and appeals made earlier in the season in the Graphic and other local papers and $96 has already been contributed.

The money is used to pay car fares to and from Boston and to provide a plain but substantial lunch. The boys are met at Nonantum Square and conducted to the splendid building of the Y. M. C. A., where the first request is for a swim. As no one is allowed to enter the swimming pool without a thoro bath with soap and water, some of the boys have had building and immediately the boys were shown to the coat room to have their caps checked. I was given the use of the cosy ladies' parlor and introduced to the hostesses in the kitchen who were making sandwiches. I offered assistance but was invited to rest. The boys have had a game of baseball and are now in the swimming pool and judging from the sound, they are having a grand time. The tables are being set and soon they will sit down to a lunch consisting of plenty of sandwiches, doughnuts, bananas and lemonade.

5.30 P. M. The company has dispersed after a fine day of sports, after dinner at which grace was said in this fashion by the Secretary, "Now you fellows have had a good time and quite a shock in experiencing the new sensation of being clean. But they do enjoy the swimming pool, if noise and splashing of water is any criterion. Then, if the sun is not too hot, there is baseball and out of door sports suitable for all. At noon, a committee of ladies, serve a bountiful lunch of sandwiches, doughnuts, bananas and lemonade, and one little fellow managed to dispose of 15 sandwiches, by actual count, besides his share of the other good things. A gentle touch of reverence is given at the lunch, when Mr. Bascom, the general secretary, says grace in a manner that touches the manliness, which is in every boy.

The afternoon is passed with games and sports and usually ends with another swim, and the boys depart with many expressions—often crude but always sincere—for the pleasure they have had.

Every donor to the fund and every one interested in boys is invited to visit the Y. M. C. A. building each Wednesday during the summer, and see for himself the fine work which the Newton Fresh Air Fund is doing.

That the work is appreciated in Boston is shown by the following letter from the young lady in charge of one of the parties:—

"I am taking time by the forelock here at the Y. M. C. A. in anticipation of your request to know what kind of a time the Roxbury boys are having. There are forty in all. We were met by a young man at Newton Corner, who conducted us to the Y. M. C. A.

we have got a good deal to be thankful for, so everyone will bow his head," and they responded. He prayed for the boys we left at home and gave thanks in the regular fashion, and I am sure it must have been a new experience to some of them. After the group was divided some went to the game room, others to the gymnasium, and finally they all took another swim. During this time I was invited to the nearby home of one of the young ladies and when I returned almost melted from heat, Mr. Bascom said, "The boys are down-stairs shivering." We went home very soon and on the car an elderly gentleman said, "These boys have clean faces, anyhow,—thanks to the swimming pool and shower baths."

WRATH CAME IN VERY HANDY

So Mad After Spat With Sweetheart That He Whipped a Bandit.

Sam Jones was mad clear through. He had just had a quarrel with his sweetheart, and although he had concealed his anger until he left her home he was now boiling over with rage. As usual, Sam had got the worst of the little spat, for in spite of his 6 feet 2 and his great strength his diminutive lady love had wound him around her finger like so much ribbon.

As Sam alighted from the elevated train at his home station his cheeks were still flushed with helpless anger and he was just "spitting" for a fight or almost any kind of a chance to even up matters on some one. His wish was destined to be granted sooner than he knew, for when he descended the elevated steps to the street a figure blocked his path, a revolver was held a few inches below his nose, and a gruff voice commanded, "Come on! Shell out, Jack!"

Without a second's hesitation Sam smashed the would-be robber full in the face with his brawny fist and sent him reeling several paces backward and stunned him so that he dropped his weapon. Both Sam and the thief were so surprised that they merely stared at each other for a few seconds, then the latter remembered that he possessed a good pair of legs and started to run at express speed.

"Here's a good one," Sam laughed grimly as he set out in hot pursuit of his assailant. "This fellow intended to hold me up and now I'm going to hold him up just to balance things a trifle." Sam was soon forced to give up the chase, however, for he was burdened with a heavy ulster while the holdup man wore a light sweater.

"Gee," chuckled Sam, "I had been as hot under the collar as I was as a result of that little spat with Alice, I'll bet I'd have shelled out like a little lamb when he presented the invitation. I'll go up there tomorrow night with a big box of chocolates and square things up."

ROMAN ROADS IN ENGLAND

Project of Putting Old Highways in Useful Condition Is Being Revived.

British motorists are showing some interest in a project which is being revived of reopening and putting in usable condition the old Roman roads that led out from London to the surrounding cities and that connected up the outlying places. The ancient highways, built by the Roman generals for military purposes, were well constructed and their routes were exceedingly straight, but they have apparently in many instances been practically abandoned.

Few except students of the subject are aware of the great network of highways which were driven across England, Wales and Scotland by the Roman generals. The straightness of these roads probably is explained by the fact that the cities and towns they linked up were founded subsequent to the road making. The roads were constructed for military purposes—the subjugation and control of the turbulent Britons—and had no set objective. Camps grew into cities and towns founded at points of military vantage. These naturally lost their importance in many instances when the conquerors withdrew, and their very sites are forgotten.—Feld.

Eagles Clearing Away Pests.

The wild boars and foxes of Santa Rosa Island, Cal., are being exterminated rapidly and in a novel manner. The American eagle is doing the work. The eagles that have their habitat in the rocky eminences of the island grow to immense size, the smallest mature bird measuring about four feet from tip to tip and the largest being seven feet or more in sweep with wings extended. They can carry thirty or forty pounds dead weight for miles with apparent ease. The eagle swoops down upon its prey and rises to a height of fifty feet or more with the struggling animal clutched in its talons. If the pig shows too much fight it is dropped, the fall killing the animal. Then the eagle descends and carries off the carcass to the distant eagle. Foxes also are the prey of the eagles.

FINE TIME

The annual fishing trip of the Newton Y. M. C. A. last Monday was a huge success, whether measured by fun, fish or mal de mer—the last being humorous or not, depending on whether you were an actor or a spectator.

The party of over twenty, took the early trains to Swampscott, where a fishing schooner was boarded for the fishing grounds. Plenty of fish, a good chowder and rough water furnished the entertainment for the day.

The first prize for the largest fish went to Mr. W. H. Elliott, second to Mr. Richard Jennings and third to Mr. C. E. Josselyn. Mr. H. H. Hawkins caught the largest number, 20, and over 80 fish were caught by the entire party.

The party consisted of H. W. Bacon, Wm. Macpherson, W. E. Fay, C. G. Newcomb, H. J. Newcomb, W. F. Banks, H. H. Hawkins, Richard Jennings, Andrew Kasper, F. A. Moore, H. L. Gleason, T. J. Birmingham, W. H. Elliott, E. E. Snyder, Louis Ellis, M. S. Brooks, Stephen Brooks, F. A. Stone and A. W. Fry.

Wife—I came across some of your old love letters today. How you loved me, Harry! Husband—Yes. Is supper ready? I'm awfully hungry.

Etiquette.

Mrs. Blank—Is your husband going to Mrs. Jacob's funeral? Mrs. Dash—Decidedly not! She never returned my last call.

FINE TIME

The annual fishing trip of the Newton Y. M. C. A. last Monday was a huge success, whether measured by fun, fish or mal de mer—the last being humorous or not, depending on whether you were an actor or a spectator.

The party of over twenty, took the early trains to Swampscott, where a fishing schooner was boarded for the fishing grounds. Plenty of fish, a good chowder and rough water furnished the entertainment for the day.

The first prize for the largest fish went to Mr. W. H. Elliott, second to Mr. Richard Jennings and third to Mr. C. E. Josselyn. Mr. H. H. Hawkins caught the largest number, 20, and over 80 fish were caught by the entire party.

The party consisted of H. W. Bacon, Wm. Macpherson, W. E. Fay, C. G. Newcomb, H. J. Newcomb, W. F. Banks, H. H. Hawkins, Richard Jennings, Andrew Kasper, F. A. Moore, H. L. Gleason, T. J. Birmingham, W. H. Elliott, E. E. Snyder, Louis Ellis, M. S. Brooks, Stephen Brooks, F. A. Stone and A. W. Fry.

Wife—I came across some of your old love letters today. How you loved me, Harry! Husband—Yes. Is supper ready? I'm awfully hungry.

Etiquette.

Mrs. Blank—Is your husband going to Mrs. Jacob's funeral? Mrs. Dash—Decidedly not! She never returned my last call.

What the Man Said

Whenever Millie Kasper and Ralph Waters approached within hailing distance of each other they were instantly plunged into a panicky, embarrassed silence. It was such an assertive silence that it drew the attention of everyone within sight. The knowledge of this added to the misery of the two principals.

It was remarkable that two persons who were so shy should have fallen in love with each other. Not that they precisely knew they were in love. They merely realized that it was impossible for them to stay away from each other, and that it was an agony to be in each other's presence. They suffered because they never had anything to say to each other.

Sometimes Millie in sheer desperation would carefully rehearse a conversation for the next time she saw Ralph, but if she remembered her part Ralph, of course, was not aware of the part she had assigned to him, and nobody can carry on a conversation without at least a little assistance.

While carefully tying his necktie and brushing his coat preparatory to calling on Millie, Ralph frequently fixed in his mind some joke with the intention of repeating it to Millie and thus making himself appear perfectly at ease and indeed a bit of a wag. All the while he was laying these plans he had the hideous certainty in the bottom of his soul that when he arrived at Millie's he would be seized, pounced and gagged by his unconquerable diffidence, and would sit squirming in silence, with his lips as immovable as though padlocked.

It is impossible for two persons, however shy, to sit staring at each other in silence for two or three hours at a time. So it had grown to be the habit of these two to play two-handed cribbage. The necessary remarks of "Fifteen-two," "A pair," "Sequence of four," and the like had to them the reassuring effect of brilliant repartee. Occasionally these remarks so braced them up that they smiled timidly, feelingly at each other, thus making their hearts thump tumultuously and hopelessly confusing their game.

The exasperating part of it was that they were not troubled in this way by the presence of other people. Neither of them was vivacious, yet they found not the slightest difficulty in expressing their thoughts to others when it was necessary. The pall of silence afflicted them only when they were with each other.

When Ralph was seized by jealousy at the sight of Millie talking to another man he began to have an inkling of how things stood with him. The thought of telling her that he loved her sent him into a cold chill. And the idea of some other man making love to her successfully gave him another chill. Altogether he was very unhappy.

There were times when Millie thought darkly of the situation and decided that Ralph cared nothing for her except as a mere friend, yet when she weighed against this decision the fact that he called four or five times a week and endured the anguish of their unconvivial evenings her melan choly conviction was shaken. He must like to come. Still, if he did, why didn't he say so?

Ralph did try once, deliberately. It was just after he had said "Fifty-four" one evening in their third game of cribbage, and he hurried on without taking breath. Before he realized it he had said: "I want to tell you something, Millie—I—er—think it's going to be a nice day tomorrow."

After this tremendous speech they had both sat in electrified silence, not daring to look at each other.

"If that fellow wants to ask you to marry him, Millie," said her father, who was blunt and impatient, "and if he can't say it, why doesn't he sing it?"

Thereupon Millie wept and said that her father had no sympathy and besides it was perfectly ridiculous to assume that Ralph cared a single thing about her!

The family always considerably departed when Ralph arrived, so that no alien presence might distract him, but nothing ever happened. After all this thoughtfulness, it seemed odd that when Ralph finally made himself understood to Millie it was in public.

Millie and he had been to the theater. In the crowd coming out a man touched her arm.

"Your wife," said the man quite casually, handing over the article "dropped her handkerchief."

"Ah—thank you," stammered Ralph in a perfect blaze of joy and horror. She would hate to lose it. Thank you!

They walked on, not looking at each other. Then suddenly Ralph squeezed Millie's arm that rested on his.

"Did you hear him?" he asked. "And did you hear me? You can't go back on that Millie—you didn't object, you know? That makes it legal! You aren't going back on it?"

"N-n-no," gasped Millie, amazed at her own daring.

A supposition.

"I suppose pawnbrokers as a rule are on the water wagon."

"What makes you suppose that?"

"Don't they as a class take the pledge?"

The Doctor's Patients

The handsome estate of Rose Hill, one of the finest in Connecticut, long without a tenant, was sold at last. A gentleman, with an invalid wife and a pretty daughter, purchased and took possession of it. They seemed very pleasant people, but slow in making acquaintances.

Young Doctor Everson always admired the place, when he passed it in his rides; but, of course, he would not venture to call without an invitation. However, one day, accident gave him the desired opportunity. As he was riding by, the front door opened, and Miss Bennett came tripping down the steps.

"Please stop a moment!" she called out. "Are you not a doctor?" she said.

"I am. Can I be of service?" he said, with his most professional air.

"Yes, indeed!" was the quick answer. "My mother is very ill, and papa not here. As we are strangers, I did not know whom to go to, so I ventured to stop you."

"Perfectly right," said the doctor. "I am at your disposal immediately." "Mamma," said the girl, bending tenderly over her, "the doctor is here."

"Oh, well, he can't do me any good," was the fretful answer.

Doctor Everson stepped up and laid his hand upon the invalid's wrist, saying cheerfully: "Suppose we try, anyway. What have you been taking?"

Mrs. Bennett gave a list. The doctor laughed.

"As you are alive after all that," he said, "there's hope yet! Now, can you tell me your bad feelings?"

The lady went over all her symptoms, and the doctor said, in that cheery tone which always brings new life into a sick-room: "That is better than I hoped. You can almost cure yourself, madam, if you will follow a few of the simplest directions."

"What are they?" asked the daughter eagerly.

"Only to dispense with all medicine, unless some light thing for her nerves; eat plenty of nourishing food; throw these windows all open."

Doctor Everson left some simple powders, and, at the daughter's request, promised to call again the next day.

"Papa will be here, and I wish you to see him. Here are our cards," said Miss Bennett, as she showed the doctor downstairs.

The doctor bowed and gave her in return his own card, upon which, after he was gone, she read the name "Frank Everson, M. D."

To effect a cure, of course, the doctor called frequently. And if, in so doing, he became more interested in the nurse than in the patient, nobody was the wiser.

Sometimes, to relieve the tedious hours of duty, he took the fair nurse out to drive, and in those pleasant hours they grew very well acquainted.

Mrs. Bennett had been for two months under the doctor's care, and was so greatly improved that Nellie sometimes left her, to take a ramble by herself in the pleasant fields and woods near Rose Hill.

One afternoon, having strayed down a road which was new to her, she came to an old mill, the ruins of which were grass-grown and rotten. But Nellie supposed they would bear her light weight, and, from mere impulse, walked out on the old timbers, which overhung the stream, and stood flinging pebbles in to the water, to watch the ripples they made.

She did not notice the wavering of the timbers until, just as she turned to go back, crash! went the log on which she stood, and down went Nellie into the stream. As she went down, she gave a frantic clutch and succeeded in grasping a cross-timber, which held her suspended, with her shoulders just out of the water.

Nellie knew that the stream was deep, and she could not swim. She shrieked and shrieked for help.

An instant, and a cheerful shout rang answering back: "Hold hard! I'm coming!"

Poor Nellie knew the voice, and strove to turn her head. She saw Doctor Everson leap from his buggy and fling off his coat as he ran for the creek. A moment more, and he had dashed into the stream, and his strong arms held her firmly.

Nellie, with a great feeling of security, lay passive on his broad breast, until a few bold strokes carried them to the shore.

"I should have come sooner if I had known you needed me," said he.

As he spoke, he hurriedly picked up his coat, fastened it over her shoulders, put her, all dripping and shivering, into his vehicle, and drove like the wind.

As they started, she said: "Doctor, I can't thank you. But you seem to be near whenever I want help."

He turned to her with a great light in his face, and for one instant his arm clasped her as he said, fervently: "My darling, I would ask nothing better of life than to be near you always!"

Then he took his arm away, but gently, and not a word more was said during the short drive. But, as he carried her into the house, he said: "I have said too much to not say more. May I say it when you are yourself again?"

"Yes," whispered Nellie. And, before long, Nellie Bennett was the doctor's bride.

Mothers' Day at the West Newton Playground Annex

An increasing attendance is reported at all the playgrounds. Week before last the total attendance was 4694 and last week it jumped to over 6400. This shows the wisdom of the City in providing supervision and direction. Considering the fact that there is very little of the equipment usually provided in closely settled cities it is clear to an observer that children and young people prefer system and direction during play. This is significant when we remember that play for the child means really very serious work, and because of this, means much in its development of mind and character. Supervision and direction do not mean, however, that our playground directors are only there for the purpose of keeping order, or for teaching and coaching. What they are mainly doing is to organize the children into self-managing groups, and all round various and diversified activities.

If our teachers were merely directors they would waste the most precious opportunities the playgrounds offer. If they can teach the young respect for the rights and comforts of others, if they can help them to learn that right is bigger than might, that co-operation means strength, and that loyalty to a law which they helped to make is the highest duty of a citizen and the greatest civic virtue, then playground direction becomes worth while.

An interesting and picturesque playground exhibit was given on Friday on the West Newton Playground Annex, when the following program was run off by the children, many of them in costume:

Indian Folk-Dance.
Cat and Rats.
Ride a Cock Horse.
Fish and Net.
Shoe Makers Dance.
Bean Bag Board Games.
Irish Jig.
Rope Quilts.
French Vineyard Dance.
Flag Salute and Patriotic Songs.
Playground Cheer.

Chester Prior was the winner of the Bean Bag Board Game and Lizzie O'Brien in the Rope Quilts. Dorothy Cunningham and Mary O'Callaghan did especially well in the Folk Dances. Over a hundred children and a number of mothers were interested spectators.

CLAFIN GUARD NOTES

Owing to a shortage of officers in the company, Lieut. Daniels, the company commander, filed an application with the adjutant-general for the detail of an additional officer to assist in the company work during the coming maneuvers, and in consequence Lieut. Julian L. Chamberlain of Co. L, 8th Inf., M. V. M., has been assigned to duty with us. We are very fortunate in this detail.

Lieut. Chamberlain, formerly our old battalion adjutant is one of the best known officers in the state militia today and has had more than ten years' experience. Previous to his duty as adjutant of the 2d Battalion, 5th Inf., M. V. M., he served 3 years in Squadron "A" of the New York National Guard and 7 years with Battery "A" of Boston. At the Lawrence strike he was very conspicuous and was there elected 2d Lieut. of the Lawrence company of the 8th Regt., after a two months' tour of strike duty. The Lieut. has already made a favorable impression with us and we are sure that his service with us will be pleasant and beneficial to all who work with him.

Major G. F. Guilford, a former company commander, visited the Armory on Monday evening and greeted several former acquaintances.

Several old men have applied for enlistment and now makes our waiting list formidable and keeps these new aspirants guessing when they will be fortunate enough to become a "rookie."

Two old men, Ex-Corporal McNamara and Ex-Private Henry were mustered into service on Monday evening.

There will be a drill for new recruits on Wednesday evening at 7.30 P. M., under Sergt. Reynolds; also a drill for recruits and a Non-Com. school on Friday of this week.

The second and last of the ordered company shoots will be held at the Range on Saturday afternoon at 1.30 P. M. for those men who did not shoot at the competition on the 13th inst. and including those who did not complete their firing on the latter date.

MORGAN-LEAVITT

A pretty home wedding on Saturday afternoon was that of Miss Sara Elizabeth Leavitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Leavitt of Pearl street and Mr. Frederick Warren Morgan of Centre street, which took place at the residence of the bride's aunt, Miss Sara Leavitt, at 29 Pearl street. The ceremony was performed at 4.30 by Rev. Newhall Maynard, of the Congregational Church of Peabody, formerly assistant pastor at Elliot Church. Miss Leavitt was attractively gowned in white and carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas and lilies of the valley. She was attended by Mrs. Harley Gillies of Newton as matron of honor. The best man was Roy Morgan of Newton, a brother of the groom. The decorations were palms, holly-hocks, and sweet peas, the latter blossoms being arranged effectively with gypsophila (baby's breath) in the reception room. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Morgan left on a wedding trip to the White Mountains, and on their return will reside at 148 Pearl street, where they will be at home to their friends after September 1st.

NEW CHURCH COMPLETED

The new church edifice of the Hebrews of Newton at 114 Adams street, Newton, will be dedicated on Sunday, August 4, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Many a fellow who claims he never does things by halves will borrow a quarter.

excessive smokers are troubled with insomnia.

Cigarettes

In using tobacco we take the poison into the tissues. The cheever and the snuffer get the effect through the tissue with which the tobacco comes in contact. The cigarette-smoker almost invariably inhales, and he gets the most harm merely because the bronchial mucous membrane absorbs the poison most rapidly. The tobacco itself is no more harmful than it is in a pipe or a cigar. Indeed, it is often less so in the cheaper grades, for, being less pure, it contains less nicotine. Furthermore, the tobacco is generally drier in a cigarette, and for that reason the combustion is better, for the products of the combustion of dry and damp tobacco are not the same. But since it is a little difficult to inhale a pipe or a cigar without choking, the smoke products of a pipe or cigar are usually absorbed only by the mouth, nose and throat, whereas the inhaled smoke of the cigarette is absorbed by the entire area of the windpipe and bronchial tubes. If you wish to see how much poison you inhale, try the old experiment of puffing cigarette smoke through a handkerchief, and then, having inhaled the same amount of smoke, blow it out again through another portion of the same handkerchief. The difference in the discoloration will be found to be very marked. You will note that in the second case there is hardly any stain on the handkerchief: the stain is on your windpipe and bronchial tubes.

If a man inhales a pipe or a cigar, he gets more injury simply because he gets stronger tobacco; but a man never inhales a pipe or a cigar unless he is a smoker of long standing or unless he has begun on cigarettes. Besides allowing one to inhale, a cigarette engenders more muscular unrest than any other kind of smoke. Because of its shortness, cheapness and convenience one lights a cigarette, throws it away, and then lights another. This spasmodic process, constantly repeated, increases the smoker's restlessness, while at the same time satisfying it with a feeling that he is doing something. Yet despite the fact that cigarette-smoking is the worst form of tobacco addiction, virtually all boys who smoke start with cigarettes.

It is generally admitted that in the immature the moderate use of tobacco stunts the normal growth of the body and mind, and causes various nervous disturbances, especially of the heart-disturbances which it causes in later life only when smoking has become excessive. That is to say, though a boy's stomach grows tolerant of nicotine to the extent of taking it without protest, the rest of the body keeps on protesting. Furthermore, all business men will tell you that tobacco damages a boy's usefulness in his work. This is necessarily so, since anything which lowers vitality creates some kind of incompetence. For the same reason the boy who smokes excessively not only is unable to work vigorously, but he does not wish to work at all. This result, apparent during growth, is only less apparent after growth, when other causes may step in to neutralize it. Tobacco, in bringing about a depreciation of the nerve-cells, brings, together with physical results like insomnia, lowered vitality, and restlessness, their moral counterparts, like irritability, lack of concentration, desire to avoid responsibility and to travel the road of least resistance. If there were some instrument to determine it, in my opinion there would be seen a difference of 15% in the general efficiency of smokers and non-smokers. The time is already at hand when smokers will be barred out of positions which demand quick thought and action. Already tobacco is forbidden during the working hours in the United States Steel Corporation.

The Mass. State Legislature fearing the effects of cigarettes on boys passed a law in 1901 prohibiting the sale of them to boys under 18 years of age.

"At a meeting of the cigar makers Union No. 92 of Worcester it was voted to fine any member $5.00 for smoking cigarettes. The rule was made to protect the sick and death benefit fund as it was found that the cigarette smokers drew more than their share of the sick benefits and more death claims were paid to their families."

An Inventor's Warning

Hudson Maxim, the famous inventor, is an authority on the cigarette habit. "Carbonic oxide," says Maxim, "when inhaled in small quantities produces faintness, dizziness, palpitation of the heart, and a feeling of great heaviness in the feet and legs. These are exactly the effects of the cigarette and the depression and nervousness which follow as a reaction make the victim crave some balm or tonic for his malaise. He is then led to consume the drug in ever increasing quantities. This progressive use of the cigarette is especially true with boys in the period of rapid growth. The wreath of cigarette smoke which curls about the head of the growing lad holds his brain in an iron grip which prevents it from growing and his mind from developing just as surely as the iron shoe does the foot of the Chinese girl."

Luther Burbank says: "Cigarettes are most damaging and their use by young boys is little short of criminal, and will produce in them the same results that said placed in a watch will produce—Destruction. No boy living would commence the use of cigarettes if he knew what a useless, soulless, worthless thing they would make of him."

I have made many personal observations of boys who are addicted to the use of tobacco and almost without exception have found them inferior to non-smoking boys. I have found that the boy who smokes is more apt to be untruthful; he does not apply himself to his duties as well as the non-smoker, and is always more irritable, especially in competitive games, and lacks the nerve in a long contest.

The fellow who usually loses his temper first in a basketball game is a smoker, the ones I have had the most trouble with in discipline are the smokers, the restless, nervous, irritable boy.

A basketball team I was coaching decided to give up the use of tobacco during the whole season, the same team played the year before and had a fair record, but lost a good many games in the second half, and two members were so irritable that they had to be constantly watched. The next season the same team having given up the use of tobacco, defeated every team thru the season in the second half, including a strong college team. Not one man of the team was taken out in the whole season for roughness. This team won the district championship and lost only four out of 22 games.

Now, boys, you can see in just this one instance the difference it made in a team to use tobacco or let it alone; it will make just the same difference with you. Look around your own gang and I will venture to say that the meanest boy there is the cigarette fiend, and the one who is always getting mad is the constant smoker.

Now, boys, if you want to be tall, if you want to be bright, if you want to grow up and do a man's work in the world you will not smoke while you are a growing boy.

Buying Laces

"I beg your pardon," said the young woman in the quiet street suit as she accidentally knocked the elbow of another customer at the lace counter.

The other young woman looked up irritably. Then after staring a moment she reached out her hand with a great jingle of bracelets and chate laines.

"Why, Lucy!" she cried, "I haven't laid eyes on you since we were graduated from school three years ago!"

"Why, it's Corinne, isn't it?" said the quiet girl with no great enthusiasm. "It has been a long time—how are you?"

"To tell the truth," said the young woman with the chate laines, "I'm shopping for my trousseau—I'm to be married soon!"

"Why, how odd!" said the other with a little smile. "That's what I am doing, too!"

"You don't mean it!" cried the girl with the chate laines. "You never seemed to attract the boys—I mean you never had such a trial of them as some of us did. We always said you would surely be an old maid. Well, I'm glad you got a chance at last! I'd have been married a dozen times since those days if I'd said 'Yes,' but believe me, I wasn't going to be in a hurry!"

"I just took my time, because I knew that there would always be plenty of chances for me. I'm marrying very well—a young man who has a responsible position with a big firm, Harker, Larker & Harker."

"Oh!" cried the girl in the quiet suit. "Yes, I know of the firm. Will you tell me what position—"

"Charlie has something to do in the downtown offices," interrupted Corinne. "You wouldn't understand. The firm thinks a great deal of Charlie. It's a fine chance for him and no doubt he'll be at the head of the whole establishment before long. Of course he isn't rich."

"Are you buying these laces?" inquired the quiet girl. "Aren't they pretty?"

"Yes, I've just got some of this $1 a yard stuff," said the girl with the chate laines negligently. "Marrying as I am, I have to dress accordingly, and Charlie and I doubtless will mingle with the best society. You aren't finding anything here that you care to buy, are you?"

"You always were such a quiet mouse of a thing, with no style—that is, mean, you did not care what you wore. There are some good laces around of the other side—only 25 cents, too, and they'd trim very well in a quiet trousseau, such as you are getting up, no doubt."

"I'm nearly worn to a shred getting things in order, for, of course, I had to have dozens of everything. My dear! How I envy you, being able to get a half dozen of everything and let it end there, and just a dress or so! People who live quietly, of course don't expect to be asked out and don't need evening gowns. It's a great responsibility, living up to Charlie's position and expectations. When the head of the firm asks us to dine some times I'm not going to look as though I had to buy a dress for the occasion!"

"Does—Is your fiance very well acquainted with the head of the firm?" inquired the quiet girl.

"Why," said the other, a trifle annoyed, "of course he is! That is, it won't be long before Mr. Harker realizes that he can't do without Charlie in the private offices! Charlie is modest and does not put himself forward and no doubt the other men think he is just one of themselves but he is waiting his opportunity. Why, the firm doesn't realize how much is on Charlie's shoulders! You don't look at all tired, for one getting up a trousseau. Still, I suppose a small, plain outfit doesn't bother one much, does it, dear?"

"Oh, I have been doing it in a leisurely way for some time now," said the girl in the quiet suit.

"To think of you really getting married!" exclaimed the girl with the chate laines. "I always thought you'd take up settlement work or go as a missionary or something? How exciting it must seem to you, when, of course, you never had expected it! Some girls just seem cut out for old maids—I guess Charlie wishes for a little more than that way from the time he had winning over so many rivals. Are you going around to look at the cheaper laces, dear?"

"Why, no," said the girl in the quiet suit. "I think not. I'm just waiting for a parcel here."

"My goodness!" cried her friend. "How foolish of you to be so extravagant when it isn't necessary! Now with me it is different—"

"Here's your parcel, miss," a sales woman interrupted the voluble one handing her a tiny bundle. "An eighth of a yard, wasn't it? Sixty three cents from a dollar!"

"Isn't mine here yet?" asked the quiet girl.

"Let's see," mused the clerk. "Yours was the ten yards at $3 a yard, wasn't it? No, not yet."

"By the way," snapped the girl with the chate laines, as she stuffed her scrap of lace into her bag, "who are you marrying, dear? A bookkeeper, I suppose, or—"

"Why," said the girl in the quiet suit, "I'm to marry Henry Harker. He's the junior partner in Harker, Larker & Harker, you know!"

Commonwealth of Massachusetts

LAND COURT.

To the Hingham Institute for Savings, a duly existing corporation having its usual place of business in Hingham, in the County of Plymouth and said Commonwealth; Marguerite A. Wise, Richard G. Elkins, Joseph W. Foster, William D. Foster, and Georgianna W. Eddy, of Newton in the County of Middlesex and said Commonwealth; and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Clara M. Holmes of said Newton, to register and confirm her title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Newton, and bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on Regent Street, in that part of said Newton known as West Newton, on the westerly boundary line of lot No. 13 on a plan recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book of Plans 3, Plan 47, which point is forty (40) feet southerly from the northwesterly corner of said lot No. 13, and running by said westerly line of lot 13 by land now or formerly of Wise and by Elkins, one hundred twenty five (125) feet; thence turning at right angles and running by land now or formerly of Foster, by a line parallel to the northerly boundary line of lot 13 on said Plan, sixty and 32-100 feet; thence turning and running northerly by a line parallel or nearly so to the westerly boundary of said lot 13, by land now or formerly of Georgianna W. Eddy, one hundred twenty five (125) feet to said Regent Street; thence turning and running westerly sixty and 32-100 feet to said Regent Street to the point of beginning.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the nineteenth day of August A. D. 1912, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Charles Thornton Davis, Esq., Judge of said Court, this twenty fourth day of July in the year nineteen hundred and twelve.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate

By virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Wesley J. Furbush of Newton, in the County of Middlesex and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, to Edward B. Wilson of said Newton, dated July 8, 1901, recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 2908, Page 285, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at public auction on the premises hereinafter described, in West Newton, County and Commonwealth aforesaid, on THURSDAY, the twenty-second day of August, A. D. 1912, at nine o'clock in the morning, all and singular, the premises conveyed by the aforesaid mortgage deed and therein described substantially as follows:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon in that part of said Newton called West Newton, and bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the Southerly side of Watertown Street at land now or formerly of Dennen, thence running Westerly on said street sixty-six feet to land of Jermain; thence running Southerly on land of said Jermain one hundred and eighteen and 11-100 feet; thence running Easterly on land of grantor fifty-four and 87-100 feet; thence Southerly again one hundred and thirty-five 54-100 feet to the centre of Cheesecake Brook in a straight line; thence Easterly along the centre of said Cheesecake Brook ten feet to land now or formerly of Dennen; thence running Northerly by said Dennen's land and land of grantee two hundred and seventy-one and 74-100 feet to the point of beginning, containing about nine thousand five hundred and nineteen square feet of land more or less, being lot 17 on Plan of House Lots in West Newton owned by H. H. Hunt, drawn by E. S. Smille, Surveyor, dated April 6, 1888, and also being a ten foot strip South of said lot 17 along said Dennen's land to the center of said Cheesecake Brook; also a certain parcel of land situated in that part of the said Newton called West Newton, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at the most Northwesterly corner of the granted premises at a point at land of the grantee, and running Easterly by the Southerly boundary line of Watertown Street thirty-three and 5-10 feet to a stake or stone bound, thence turning and running Southerly by land now of Cate, two hundred and sixty-nine feet to the centre of Cheesecake Brook; thence Westerly by the head of said Brook fifty-one and 7-10 feet to land now or formerly of H. H. Hunt; thence Northerly by land of said Hunt and the grantee two hundred and sixty-eight feet to the line of said Watertown Street and the point of beginning. For my title see Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 2552, Page 234 and Book 2647, Page 548. The premises are subject to the right to widen, deepen and straighten the channel of Cheesecake Brook as granted by me and others to the City of Newton by deed dated February 13, 1901, and recorded with said Deeds.

Said premises will be sold subject to all unpaid taxes, assessments and other municipal liens, if any.

Five hundred Dollars on the purchase price to be paid at time of sale. Other terms made known at sale. For further particulars apply to Atwood, Patten & Potter, 27 School Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBURBAN LIFE

With outdoor pictures and entertaining articles aplenty, Suburban Life Magazine for August is an ideal hot-weather issue. A glance at the front piece "On Raquette Lake" will almost make one believe that the temperature has dropped several degrees, even on the hottest of August days.

The opening story is about a St. Louis man who thinks a $50,000 city plot none too good for a vegetable garden. "How to Be Comfortable Under Canvas" contains some worthwhile suggestions for the camping enthusiast.

Ernest Harold Baynes, the eminent naturalist, has an illustrated story about the humming-bird—that smallest of feathered creatures. "Preparing for the Greenhouse" is an article by an expert, on how to go about starting a winter garden, and "What a Woman's Club Did for Its Town" tells how a group of women in a California town organized and conducted a club which proved of much benefit to both its members and its town alike.

Some of the other articles are: "I Have Found It," "Save Your Lawn Clippings for the Poultry," "Training Our Boys for Citizenship," "Morgan's Miracles," "A Walking Trip Through the Adirondacks," "Why I Believe Anconas Are the Best Chickens," "Mid-summer in Flower Garden and Field," and "The Legend of the Poppies."

Wholly Distinct: "What's the difference between your sacred and your secular concert programme? I can't see any." "Why, the sacred concerts are given on Sunday!"—Life.

NOTHING IS EVER DESTROYED

Water Changes, But Does Not Cease to Exist—Simple Experiment That Proves Proposition.

When a candle burns it is not destroyed. What seems like destruction is merely change. Any one can prove this for himself by a very simple experiment.

Take a glass tube and fit a cork into each end. Bore some holes in the lower cork, one of them in the middle large enough to hold a candle. Bend a smaller glass tube to U shape, fill it with small pieces of caustic soda and cork one end. Now connect the two cylinders by a small glass tube through the corks. Insert the candle through the lower cork and suspend the whole apparatus from one beam of the chemical balance. Weigh it carefully.

Connect the free end of the U tube to an aspirator so as to establish a uniform current of air through the tubes. Remove the candle, light it and instantly reinsert it. Let it burn down until entirely consumed. Now weigh the apparatus. You will find that it actually weighs more than it did before the candle was burnt!

What had happened? The carbon and hydrogen of which the candle was composed have been separated, have drawn oxygen from the air and combined with it, forming water and carbon dioxide or carbonic acid gas. The caustic soda has absorbed the carbon dioxide and made sodium carbonate, and has also caught the water. The extra weight is simply that of the oxygen taken out of the air.

This is a practical illustration of the great truth that nothing is ever destroyed. Matter changes, but does not cease to exist. St. Thomas Aquinas taught this in the thirteenth century—thus as in so many other ways anticipating modern scientists—and some of the ancient Greek philosophers understood it. It has only been proved experimentally in recent years.

SINCE TIME OF GRANDMA

Remarkable Changes Effected in Dress and Social Activities in Feminine World.

The modern society woman has a multitude of expenses that her grandmother never even dreamed of; her visits to the masseuse, the hairdresser, the chiropodist, are a necessary part of her grooming today.

While grandma tucked her switch guiltily away in the drawer of her dressing table and could not be bullied into the admission that she used powder, today her granddaughter unhesitatingly admits that she wears false braids and curls and that the soft glow of health on her rounded cheek was skillfully applied by a "perfect wonder" of a beauty doctor.

Social affairs have increased in number as well as in variety, and this has brought about a great change in my lady's wardrobe. Our grandmothers talked about their "best dress" and "best hat," the up-to-date lady speaks of her bridge gown, her dinner gown and her dancing frock. She has not one gown for dress up affairs, but 12 or 15. She has an appropriate outfit for each occasion. Not only must the gown be suitable, but all the accessories, including hat, wrap, gloves, shoes, veil, jewelry and even lingerie must be in absolute harmony.

When one stops to consider that the woman who is "in society" does remarkably well if she keeps within $100 for a year's supply of gloves, some idea may be formed as to the amount which she spends for such items as tailored suits, ball gowns and fur-lined evening wraps.

Arsenic Found in Vegetables.

Arsenic has been found as a normal constituent in man and animals, and now Drs. Jadin and Astrug, two French biologists, show that it may be derived from edible plants and fruits.

They examined thirty-nine vegetable substances, and obtained arsenic from all, the quantities ranging from 0.03 part per million in the leaf to 0.25 part per million in almonds and beans.

Other vegetable matters, containing arsenic are the common cabbage, the turnip, the potato, cultivated mushrooms, black truffles, Japanese rice, red hellebore, white hellebore, gray peas, split peas, lentils, artichokes, salsify, chicory, lettuce, spinach, green peas, celery, carrots, watercress, cauliflower, wild asparagus, hazelnuts, filberts, chestnuts, apples, pears, oranges, pineapples and bananas.

Potted Roses.

There was a time when Englishmen could celebrate St. George's day by feasting on roses as well as wearing them. Old cookery books abound in recipes into which rose leaves enter.

One writer tells how to make potted roses. "I first pound some of the most fragrant roses in a mortar; then I take the brains of birds and pigs well boiled and stripped of every particle of meat. I then add the yolks of some eggs, some oil, a little cordial, some pepper and some wine. After having beaten and mixed it well together, I place it over a slow fire. When this dish is brought to table the most delicious fragrance issues forth, covering the guests with delight."

Every good housewife in the seventeenth century made rosewater, which was used for flavoring food.

Letting Him Out.

DANGER FROM AMATEUR WIRE- LESS INSTALLATIONS

Central station managers, in cities
or towns where there is much experimenting with wireless telegraphy,
should take steps to protect the lines
of the company, as well as the public,
from accidents due to connecting the apparatus to the lighting circuits. A number of accidents have already been reported from this source.

On the Pacific coast trouble of this character became so frequent that the Pacific Gas & Electric Company published advertisements in the daily papers in the territory in which it operates warning against danger, as follows:

"The attention of the public, and particularly of parents and guardians,
is called to the danger of connection
by amateurs, of wireless telegraph apparatus to our lighting circuits. Recently an amateur, through his high tension apparatus, accidentally increased by 50 per cent the voltage on one of our principal lighting circuits and thereby burned out the meter in his home and damaged all lamps, electric heating apparatus, motors, meters, etc., in thirty other residences which were connected to that circuit, and exposed all of these residences to danger by fire.

"The installation of wiring and apparatus by other than bonded electrical contractors is a violation of the city's electrical ordinances, and infringements will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. We also call attention to the fact that wireless masts, as installed by amateurs, on tops of houses, are a source of danger from lightning during our summer months.

"We hereby warn all wireless operators to disconnect their apparatus
from our circuits and to remove from our poles all guy wires to their masts.
We shall hold parties responsible for any damages to our property. Our lighting and power circuits are built for business and must not be played with by those who do not understand the commercial operation of an electric circuit."

NORUMBEGA PARK

The rain, recently, was just what was needed to bring out the shrubbery and floral effects in all their glory. Now everything is just as fresh as in the springtime with the season only just half over. The canoeing season is also at its height
now and daily there may be seen hundreds of festive canoeing parties on the Charles River. The Grape Arbor Cafe with its cozy nooks among the trellis vines and clustered grapes is proving to be a Mecca for automobilists who come all the way over the road to enjoy the excellent cuisine of this popular cafe, there being ample space afforded for the parking of autos. The Zoological Garden with its many rare specimens of wild animals is both interesting and instructive while the monkey cage is the source of much merriment among the patrons. With all the other numerous attractive features of the park wide open and in full blast this delightful summer resort living up to its reputation of being the best resort of its kind in New England. The programme for the coming week, beginning Monday afternoon, July 29th, will be of high class vaudeville which promises to exceed in excellence anything offered here this season. There will be the regular Sunday night concert this Sunday.

ALCOHOL CHAT

A prominent druggist recently said
to us, "You have the goods, but people don't know it." This expression contains some slang it is true, but it explains why we are using newspaper space to convince you that we make Alcohol that can be depended upon, the kind that you will enjoy using, the kind that is refreshing to smell of, and will never have any objectionable odor when used in the sick room. The next time you have occasion to buy any Alcohol, ask your druggist for Graves' Grain Alcohol, and when you get it see that the firm signature, Chester H. Graves & Sons is on the face and neck label
over the cork.

MRS. GODDARD DEAD.

Mrs. Elizabeth Pearson Marsh Goddard, who died last Saturday at 81½ Moore, N. Y., in the Adirondacks, in her eighty-eighth year, was the widow of Edward L. Goddard and the daughter of the late Rev. Christopher Marsh of West Roxbury. Mrs. Goddard was spending the summer with relatives in the Adirondacks. She was the mother of Mr. C. M. Goddard of Newton Centre, who is secretary in Boston of the New England Insurance Exchange, and of Mr. George Goddard, a New York broker who resides in Plainfield, N. J. Mrs. Goddard had lived for the past fifteen years in Newton Centre, and at one time lived in Claremont, N. H.

CITY DEPARTMENTS

Interesting Facts Gleaned from the Annual Reports of the Forestry and Health Departments of Newton

Forestry Department

The report of Mr. Charles I. Bucknam, the Forest Commissioner for the year of 1911 states that gains have been made in suppressing the gypsy

moth in this city and that it is well under control. The expense of caring for gypsy and brown-tail moths during the year was $57,864.52.

The elm tree beetle which has wrought such havoc in our sister cities of Cambridge and Somerville, has been controlled by the use of high powered sprayers which enabled the men to reach the tops of the highest trees. In consequence of this work the beetles on the street trees have

than from scarlet fever. The people should be taught that measles is not
a necessary evil of childhood and can
be prevented.

METHODS OF USING THE HUGE POWER SPRAYERS OF THE FORESTRY DEPARTMENT

Board of Health

Some interesting facts and figures are given in the report of the board of health for 1911.

For the first time in 17 years there

A new contract has been made with the Hospital to run for 5 years. The use of small pox is no longer included in its provisions, and if a case occurs, the board must make special provision for it. The board estimates

DR. FRANCIS GEORGE CURTIS
Chairman Newton Board of Health

MR. CHARLES I. BUCKNAM
Forest Commissioner

been greatly reduced in numbers. The only source of trouble are the trees on neglected private property, as the department does not have the legal right to enter private property for the elm tree beetle as it does for gypsy moths.

The park and playground work of the department is becoming of the first importance. The land used for recreation purposes is valued at $307,- 200, of which $171,450 is in playgrounds alone. Baseball diamonds, tennis courts and skating rinks are provided on most of the playgrounds and it can easily be seen that the public demands for these facilities will rapidly increase.

An excellent feature of the report is the recommendation regarding the kind of trees to be hereafter planted

was a period of six weeks during July and August when there was no known case of a communicable disease in the city.

During the year there were 27 cases of diphtheria with 2 deaths, 63 cases of scarlet fever with no deaths, one case of small pox, which recovered, 268 cases of measles and 4 deaths, and 22 cases of typhoid fever with 1
death.

The board speaks quite plainly on the subject of measles, stating that only two-thirds of the cases are reported, and lectures the physicians for their failure to report this disease.
It also hints that further failure to report will be followed by prosecution.

Measles, it declares, is not a harmless disease, as the deaths are more than from scarlet fever. The people

should be taught that measles is not
a necessary evil of childhood and can
be prevented.

There were 54 reported cases of tuberculosis. The board calls attention to the state law requiring every city and town to provide a hospital and dispensary for this disease, and mentions the fact that the new contract with the Newton Hospital may cover
this matter, if approved by the state
board of health.

The matter of disinfection after cases of communicable diseases is discussed at length. The board does not favor chemical disinfection, altho it will do it on request of physician or citizen. The board believes that chemical disinfection, by giving a false sense of security, causes neglect of other and more valuable precautions against an infection.

The board approves most heartily of the value of the school nurses—the teaching of personal cleanliness—the care of the teeth, and in suggestions made at the home. It believes that a dental clinic should be established in connection with this work. 4224
cases were reported by the school nurses and 753 home visits made during the year.

The total number of deaths was 462 making a death rate of 11.17
which is the third lowest of the past ten years. Heart disease was the cause of 53 deaths, apoplexy of 31 and pneumonia of 29.

The two bathhouses maintained by the board last summer were well patronized, 9310 males and 2009 females
using the one at Crystal Lake and 4428 males and 1329 females the one at Newton Upper Falls. The expense was $559.59.

1663 complaints of all kinds were received during the year of which 586
were for neglect of garbage.
The expense of the department was $22,156.23.

Milk Inspection

The report of Arthur Hudson, the milk inspector for 1911, shows that six-sevenths of the milk consumed in the city is produced within the city or within a radius of ten miles.

The inspector estimates that 19,533
quarts of milk or cream are consumed
each day by the citizens of Newton, or over 7,000,000 quarts a year. He estimates its value at $802,996.35.

ANIMALS' EYES ARE MIRRORS

Reflected Light is What Causes Them to Glow in Dark, Not Occult Agencies.

It is well known that the eyes of animals glow like coals in the dark. The reason for this is commonly believed to be because there is phosphorescent matter in the eyeballs. There are many, too, who attribute it to some weird occult agencies.

But it is all perfectly natural. The light does not come directly from the eyes of the animals, but indirectly. That is, it is a reflected light. Let an animal come out of the forest and approach a camp fire. His eyes glow like two balls of fire. This is because his eyes are mirrors and reflect the light while the rest of him is in darkness, making the spectacle all the more wonderful.

If you go in a dark room with a light the animal will look directly at the light. Then his eyes will reflect that light.

The case is somewhat similar to the way the moon borrows light. The moon itself is an opaque body without any inherent luminosity, and consequently it has no power of emitting light of its own. But when the shafts of light from the sun fall upon the surface of the moon they are reflected back, and it is the sun's light that brightens up the surface of our celestial nightly attendant and makes it visible to us.

—Although the N. C. C. defeated the Lower Falls A. A. in the first game played on last Saturday the home team is not discouraged and is eagerly looking forward to the next game which will be played on the West Newton common. The score was 4 to 1. A McKenna making the only run for the home team. The batteries were Brannan and Silver for the Catholic Club and Pazzetti and Daley for Lower Falls. The Catholic Club now holds the championship and Lower Falls confidently hopes to secure it before the end of the season.

—Here is an actual pleasant. When my youngest boy was quiting a cub, he came into the house, crying. "What is the matter?" said the oldest sister. "That fellow out there hit me in the nose." "Well, why didn't you hit him back?" "I hit him back first," quoth the little pagan.

A KID'S PARADISE

When the youngster met St. Peter at the gate he queried, "Where's the ice cream sodas and pop corn?" And on the good Key Keeper's reply that he knew not the whither of such the youngster scornfully remarked, "I fought dis was Heaven."

Revere Beach consumes 1,000,000 packages of pop corn each season. Some of it is sold with butter and salt in the good old fashioned way. It takes from 50,000 to 60,000 pounds of butter to make it taste good for one season. This butter is contracted for at one Vermont creamery. To make enough of the more modern molasses crispette to supply the beach for a season requires 12,000 gallons of New Orleans molasses. Fifty tons or two freight car loads of corn is the year's supply. It takes 22 employees constantly on the jump in addition to the machines to keep the hungry ones supplied with corn.

Then there is the ice cream cone. About 1900 an Egyptian chef, with a name like a cigarette "Shayeb," invented the first ice cream cone of the kind sold at Revere Beach, for a dinner which his employer gave to some American guests in Paris. The Americans were pleased with the toothsome delicacy and called for the chef telling him he should go to the U. S. A. So he saved his wages and in 1904 went to the St. Louis world's fair where he made ice cream cones. Subsequently he went to Revere Beach where each year he makes 500,000 cones which have been copied all over the country.

Out of a thin batter of butter, eggs, sugar, and flour the cones are gridded in flat discs between two hot irons. While still hot they are deftly rolled and stored away in air tight jars. The cones are then ready for the ice cream parlors.

The amount of soda water sold at the beach in a season would make a good sized lake in itself. There are a score of soda parlors along the boulevard where the big shows are. The largest of these, the Columbia Spa, alone serves 360,000 glasses of soda in a season, about half of which is of the ice cream variety.

And so your reporter is of the opinion that if the good saint wishes to make the celestial realms attractive to the kids he should get up to date and take a lesson from Revere Beach.

POINTERS FOR THE MOTORIST

How Brakes Often Cause Tire Trouble

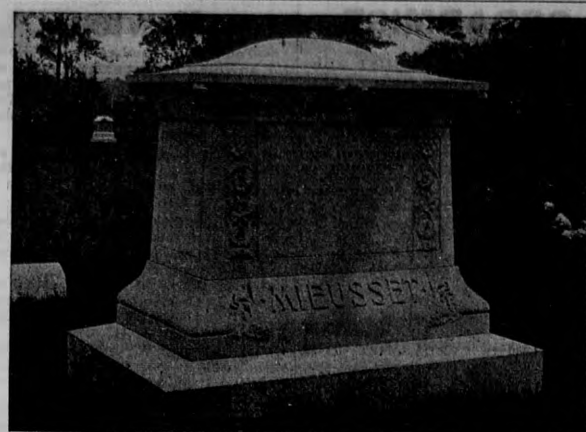

Sudden braking is harmful to tires. It causes the wheels to be dragged over the ground with the result that the tire treads are quickly worn away. Occasionally motorists apply their brakes so forcibly that the wheels are locked. Not only is this absolutely ruinous to envelopes, but according to the Michelin Tire man, it is not generally the quickest way to stop a car. A demonstration of the same principle is often seen in starting a railroad train. If the throttle is opened suddenly the wheels of the locomotive will spin around without gripping the rails and the train stands still, whereas if the steam be applied slowly the cars are set in motion at once.

Moreover, if the brakes act with unequal force, tire trouble is likely to result. One of the wheels will probably run free, while the other is checked suddenly. The tire on the latter wheel will soon show signs of wear.

If the springs are weak, bad jars will cause the upper part of the tires to rub against the mudguards. In chain-driven cars the driving-chains often cause injury of a somewhat similar nature. If they are slack, a swinging motion will cause them to strike the sides of the tires. If the chain line is too close to the wheels or if the chain bolts are too long the envelope will be marked with oblique scratches. These cuts are crossed at regular intervals, being produced first when the bolts strike the upper part and again when they strike the lower part of the tire walls. All these matters require the motorist's careful attention.

"What are you laughing at, my dear?" asked Mrs. Jones of her husband, who was chuckling over his morning paper. "Something I saw here," he replied, "but it's hardly funny enough for two."

"It's all very well for the minister to preach from the text, 'Remember Lot's wife,'" said an overworked, discouraged matron, "but I wish he would now give us an encouraging sermon upon the wife's lot."—Lowell Courier.
